Northeast High School's baseball team has a mighty good chance of returning to the first position in the Interscholastic League race this afternoon, sharing the berth with West Philadelphia High School The Red and Black nine was toppled from top of the heap when the Speedboys won a close victory on Wednesday.

A victory for the Red and Black over Southern High School, which is almost certain, and a Central High School win over West Philadelphia High School will even up the victories and defeats, 5 and 2 for each team. The Broad and Green streets baseballlans are playing a crackerjack game of late, winning their last three games in auccession. A victory over the Orange and Blue today will give the Crimson and Gold four wins, and place Doctor O'Brien's

Gold four wins, and place Doctor O'Brien's nine right at the heels of Northeast and West Philly.

The regular weekly Interacademic League matches also are on tap today. Germantown Academy and Penn Charter, tied for first place, will tackle Episcopal Academy and Friends' Central, respectively. As in the case with Central High School the Penn Charter boys are combing from the rear and making a hard ing from the rear and making a hard bid for the leadership.

The announcement by Bill Silverman,

Northeast High School's crack player, to the effect that he will play professional ball in the future has affected Red and Black students with the blues. The loss of Silverman has weakened the team both in the field and at the bat and may mate-rially prove in sidetracking Northeast from the Interscholastic League race.

Captain Barnitz, of Central High School, is doing better work with the stick than any other player in the Scholastic League. In the match with Catholic High School the other day the Crimson and Gold leader succeeded in hammering out saieties every time up. George Holmes, Germantown Academy's backstop, is wielding his willow in great style the last two weeks. He was one of the leading stickers on Coach McCarty's nine last year, but it seemed as if he had lost his eye the early part of the season. His work behind the bat also is improving and to date few men of the op-position have succeeded in piffering bases. The shift is the Friends' Central line in The shift in the Friends' Central line-up, with Drake at short and Lartung in the outfield, has proven a good move on the part of Coach Jacoby. The Blue and Gray nine is putting up a fine article of bell, and if its recent games can be taken as criterions the F. C. national pastimers will be up near the top at the conclusion of the Interacademic League

ALEXANDER OR RIXEY WILL PITCH TODAY

Coombs Slated to Twirl for Brooklyn in Last Game of the Series.

Manager Moran announced at the start of the season that Grover Cleveland Alexander would be worked every fourth day, regardless of conditions. If Pat goes through with his plan Alexander will pitch this afternoon, but there is a possibility that he will select Eppa Rixey for today's game and save "Alex" for the Giants tomorrow.

In this way Alexander could be used in two of the New York games instead of one, and as the Giants are considered pennant contenders Moran is anxious to race. The Giants have never bothered Alexander much, while Brooklyn is the hardest club in the league for the big Nebraskan, with the possible exception of Manager Robinson hardly knows who he will use, as his entire staff is in poor shape. Since the club arrived here, Robinson has been arrouncing Combi-Robinson has been announcing Coombs as the probable pitcher, but it begins to look as though the Brooklyn manager was doing this in hopes of drawing more people, because the former "iron man" appears to be far from the Coombs of Those who have watched the Colby collegian warm up before the game each day have come to the conclusion that the wonderful pitcher of a few years ago will not star very strongly in the "come-hack" act. He might come back enough to hold his own, but it is hardly likely he will ever be the Coombs of old. As Rob-inson is still picking Coombs as his likely twirler, it is necessary to also select a probability. This choice seems to lie a probability. This choice seems to lie between Airchison and Cadore, who looked so good in the one inning he worked on Wednesday.

It makes its way with a putt—putt—putt.

"If Vardon, Ray, Duncan and Taylor all come to Baltusrol in June," queries an exchange, "who is there in America to hold Great Britain in check?" All right, we'll be the goat. Who is there?

To get the lay of the land, or, rather, to discover about how they felt about it, we put this proposition up to an American golfing pro: "Even money that Varden, Ray or Duncan wins." "Nothing doing," he replied. "I think the same way." Which outlines the terrific confidence Uncle Sam's entries have in repelling the next British invasion.

The best chance America has is to send West for Helnie Schmidt and get him to operate a submarine in the water hazards, with the prize torpedo pointed exclusively in Harry Vardon's direction.

War and Sportsmanship

If you were a soldier in the trench, how much sorer would you be at an enemy that killed you with poisonous gases in-stead of blowing your bean off or maim-ing you for life with shrappel and such? Would it make an awful lot of differend your checkered career in place of having a 500-pound shell rip out your abdomen?

We may be near-sighted, but we fail to see where there is any lack of sports-manship in killing an armed enemy all the ways there are, plus any new way that might be discovered.

The Winning Spirit

Back in 1908 Bill Bernhard, the old Cleveland star, came down to Nashville to take charge of the club. The year be-fore Nashville had finished a moldy last. Bernhard, always popular, adopted the system of encouragement. He paid as much attention to developing club spirit as he did to team play and batting and pitching. Every member of the club was anxious to get out and do his best. From last place in 1907, Nashville won the pennant in 1998.

Pat Moran, of the Phillies, and Bill Donovan, of the Yanks, are using almost exactly the same system as that em-ployed by Bernhard. They are building the interest and loyalty of their clans by encouragement and friendly methods

Both have developed ambition. But, after all, the main test will not come until later on, when Yanks and Phillies hit their first slump. For a protracted slump is the greatest little test there is as to true morale. AMERICAN LEAGUE

Meanwhile, the local crack, who is favored for the final, Maurice E. Risley, put up an undeniable game against A. H. Johnson, of National Links and Sleepy Hollow, the margin

The Canadian took the lead over Marston at the first hole. Bogart is a short driver with a flat swing, due to his plentiful waist, but on the greens he was deadly, quite in contrast to the tall Baltuarol player. In fact, Marston had almost an unconquerable desire to visit any place off the tec. Only through good approaching could he hold his own. Even so, he steadled down on the critical late holes and settled the match with a 3 on the 428-yard 17th. The Canadian fell off badly on the latter holes, accounting for the wide discrepancy in the William Fox is the censor of his own shows. No foot or mm appears upon the stage of any of his 22 theatres without first passing the keen and appraising judgment of the "Big Boss." It has been estimated that Mr. Fox sees about 50,000 feet of motion pictures a week. He is his own most exacting critic. Time and again he orders cuts made that drive his directors to the verge of despair, but he insists rigidly that his product must be "better than the best" before he will permit it to be released.

It was in 1905 that Mr. Fox saw the handwriting on the wall and went into the moving picture business, which was the moving picture part of the entertain-ment telling how we could be transported to all parts of the world for a nickel in more luxury and comfort than a million-aire would enjoy in his private car. The idea went like wildfire, and during the first year we made $40,000 on an invest-ment of $10,000.

"About this time I acquired 15 smail theatres and also set to work resolutely to abolish the popular idea fostered by certain newspapers that the motion picto abolish the popular idea fostered by certain newspapers that the motion picture theatre was a hotbed of inciplent crime. I tried to make my theatres as well ventilated, well managed and as clean as possible. It meant 24 hours' work out of the 24, but it was worth it. "I caused considerable amusement and derision among other theatrical managers when I presented the idea of giving the audiences at the Academy of Music performances headed by such Broadway stars as Robert Edeson, Edmund Brese, Marguerite Clark, H. B. Warner and Amelia Bingham. It proved an enormous success, and the luminaries who headed my star stock plays agreed with me. "When I entered, actively, the producing field of motion pictures, I was actuated by a double motive. The so-called features that I had been selecting with all the care possible for my theatres did not fill my ideas of the highest standard possible in motion pictures.

"The building of a studio and the formation of an efficient organization for this purpose presents more of a problem than most people would imagine. I decided to carry out, in my motion picture producing career, the same ideals as I had introduced at the Academy of Music.

M. D. P. Frankir, do not seek work in the movie field. It is overcrowded, the work is hard and thankies and only those bleased by nature with unusual talent get to the top. Apply to any director at Lubin's; Viagraph East 15th street and Locust avenus, Prookiry Thanhouser Company, New Rochelle, N. V. Patile, I. Congrass avenue, Jersey City; Century Films, Easyone, N. J. But there is little hope of your getting even a foothoid.
