WHEN A FELLER NEEDS A FRIEND

TIM CAVANAUGH HONEST? OF COURSE; SO ARE MANY COPS

Police Sergeant of 10th and Buttonwood Station Regards His Sobriquet as Conveying a Reflection on Worthy Comrades.

"HONEST TIM" "Why stamp me as 'Honest Tim'?" There's nothing unusual in a policeman being honest. Yes, I mean it. A cop can be on duty in the Tenderloin and still be honest—that's if he has any respect for his wife and kiddies at home. There are many honest policemen on the Philadelphia police force. All this hullabaloo over an honest cop, I suppose some reporter thought it was strange to hear of an honest cop, so he wrote me up. Keep me out of the limelight."

Street Sergeant Timothy Cavanaugh, for 20 years attached to the 10th and Buttonwood station, and known as "Honest Tim," sat in his home, at 524 North 10th street, with his son, Paul, 5 years old, in his lap, as he spoke those words. Cavanaugh's police career has been spent in the heart of the Tenderloin. He began his life as a "copper" when the Tenderloin was wide open. He first began to swing a club when apaches and other dives were operating in full blast.

"But things have changed," said Cavanaugh today. "I hear lots of stories of abduction by the white slave gang. Say, this white slave talk just gives me a headache. And a pretty bad headache at that. Of course there is a gang who make it a business to deal in white slaves, but I believe this

"When I became a policeman the Tenderloin was running along at a pretty fast pace. There were many yegmen around. We still have crooks and other criminals in the Tenderloin whom we arrest often. But what's the use? You arrest a crook these days, bring him into court, and for some little legal technicality he is discharged by the Magistrate or Judge. At the present time we have a few criminals who are on the job the same as a hawk is when he is skimming for a sparrow."

"In my experience as a policeman I found that most of the crimes in the Tenderloin were committed by women and the women came from outside. In my opinion, about 20 per cent. of the crimes in Philadelphia are committed by natives. The rest of the offenses are committed by out-of-town people."

sent him a telegram. The Director congratulated him for being known as "Honest Tim."

"Say, it made me laugh," said "Honest Tim," "when I read in the newspapers stories about your truly, in which he was called 'Honest Tim.' I don't deny that I am honest. Maybe I am a little too modest. But then there are other cops who also are honest. Why, have reporters come around to your house and asked for interviews and pictures just because you are honest? May I ask a policeman supposed to be honest? Isn't he getting paid by the taxpayers to be honest and protect people from dishonest and crooked persons?"

"Well, I suppose some reporter thought it was a good story. Let it go at that. There are many honest policemen on the job today. My little boy Paul wants to be a policeman. I haven't made up my mind whether he will be a policeman or a doctor. It is up to him."

"Sure, I want to be a policeman, papa," said little Paul, who was listening to his father.

AMERICA MUST HAVE HER OWN DYESTUFFS, SAY TEXTILE MEN

National Association of Underwear and Hosiery Manufacturers to Discuss Question of Creating New Industry.

Because Great Britain's embargo against German commerce has cut off the supply of dyestuffs to American firms leading members of the National Association of Underwear and Hosiery Manufacturers, an organization which represents a capital of more than $50,000,000 and which opens its convention here tomorrow, predicted today that the dye industry would be transplanted ultimately to the United States. Textile manufacturers, as well as others engaged in industries in which dyes are used extensively, insist that America must learn to produce her own dyes.

Already a plant for the manufacture of aniline oils and salts, used in dyeing textile fabrics, is being built on a 75-acre lot at Marcus Hook. The plant is being erected for the Benzol Products Company, of this city. Its present plant is located in Frankford.

It was learned today that in Johnstown, Pa., and Hanover, Pa., plants for the manufacture of dyestuffs will shortly be constructed. For a long period the Department of Commerce in Washington has had experts traveling through various parts of the country, studying the progress and advancement in the American manufacture of dyestuffs.

The subject of manufacturing dyes in this country will be discussed at length during the convention of the National Association of Underwear and Hosiery Manufacturers. The convention will be held in the Armory of the 1st Regiment, Broad and Callowhill streets.

Manufacturers admitted today that many textile plants were working on half time because they were unable to obtain dyes. It was also frankly admitted by the president of a prominent hosiery firm in Kensington that several firms have actually failed since Germany ceased to export dyestuffs into this country. Manufacturers today urged the establishment of more dye plants in various parts of Pennsylvania.

The Benzol Products Company has acquired 15 acres of land directly opposite the General Chemical Company's plant at Marcus Hook. The company has opened temporary offices in the Commonwealth Building, this city, where engineers and draftsmen who are in charge of the construction of the plant make their headquarters. There will be one building 36x75 feet in dimension, three stories high; one 60x300 feet, two stories; and another 54x30 feet, two stories. There will be other buildings, including a boiler house, an engine room and pump house.

John Hadfield, Sr., president of the Hadfield Hosiery Company, Kensington Avenue and Huntingdon street, today said the price of raw material of dyes has increased close to 300 per cent.

"The manufacture of dyestuffs in this country will be discussed, no doubt, at our convention," said Mr. Hadfield.
