PENN'S BASEBALL TEAM RANKS LOW AMONG NINES REPRESENTING AMERICAN COLLEGES

YALE TOPS COLLEGE BASEBALL TEAMS: PENN BRINGS UP REAR

Princeton Close Second in Showing Thus Far This Season-Cornell Just Now Striking Its Stride-West Point Has Made Wonderful Record.

With the intercollegiate baseball season nearly half completed, first honors must go to Yale, with Princeton a very close second. This, of course, leaves out of consideration West Point and other teams, usually classed as the minor colleges. West Point, due to the wonderful pitching of Neyland, who, counting his last year's performances, has won 19 straight games, still has a clean slate, but the Army does not play so difficult a schedule as Yale, Harvard, Princeton, Pennsylvania, Cornell and Dartmouth, which are usually ranked as the "Big Six."

To date Yale has lost but a single game, Georgetown having trounced the Ells in their first game of the season, on the Southern trip. But Yale made amends for that beating by winning from the Southerners last week. Princeton has played more games than any of her rivals and has been beaten three times. Pennsylvania's is the saddest record of the lot, for the Quakera have won but two games out of the ten they have played. The following table shows how the leaders compare;

College.	Games.	Won.	Los
Yale	. 10	9	1
Princeton	16	13	3
Dartmouth	7	4	3
Harvard	. 0	5	4
Cornell	. 12	5	7
Pennsylvania	10	2	8

College baseball statistics are more or less worthless unless the institutions considered be grouped in the same class. For instance, it is ridiculous to work out team hitting, fielding and pitching averages when the teams considered play an entirely different class of opponents.

Only those statistics are worth while which can be computed from teams of the same strength and which meet common opponents. That is why in this comparison the minor colleges are not considered.

Yale and Princeton on Top

Yale and Princeton deserve to rank at the top for the reason that they possess all-around strength. Not until the two meet in their championship series of three games will it be possible to finally rank them. But ranking them in accordance with the showing they made against Pennsylvania, the Elis are the stronger team. Yale has an infield without an equal in the East, a splendid outfield and a team of good hitters. The Elis have two good pitchers in Way and Underwood. They are trying to make a dependable twirler out of Watrous, but so far have not succeeded. In individual stars, too, Yale has the advantage, for Legore, at shortstop, and Reilly, at third base are almost good enough for professional baseball.

Only three teams have been able to beat Princeton. Villanova turned the trick in the second game of the season, with a score of 6-5. Two weeks ago Brown did it, with an 8-3 score, and on Saturday Pennsylvania humbled the Tigers, 7-5. There is no particular department in which Princeton looks unusually strong, but there is a uniformity of strength in all departments. Princeton is blessed with two very good pitchers, in Deyo and Link, although neither looked his best in that spectacular game with Pennsylvania.

Loss of Ayres Crippled Harvard

The Harvard team was late getting under way. Then the Crimson was weakened by the loss of Captain Ayres, through illness. Harvard is not very strong in pitchers this year, and right now has to depend upon Willcox, the star quarter miler, for much of the pitching. But Willcox is, first of all, a track man, because he is Harvard's best quarter miler. He won't be available for the baseball team regularly until after the intercollegiate championships.

Cornell Just Striking Its Stride

Cornell is at last beginning to strike the form expected, and the Ithacans may be counted on to make a strong finish. On their Southern trip they won their first game. Then they lost seven in a row. That losing streak has now been broken and the team has won the last four games played, beating Dartmouth twice, in successive days. The Ithacans are fortunate in possessing three star pitchers, in Reegan, Bryant and Russell, who compose, perhaps, the best staff in the college world. If the team hitting and fielding can follow the pace the pitchers set Cornell will yet be a contender for championship honors.

The Dartmouth team was handicapped by a poor start, due to the lateness of the spring season in New Hampshire. For that reason Dartmouth has been playing the small colleges of New England, and the real strength of the Green will not be known until they start on their Southern tour.

Penn, in the Cellar, Has Little Hope

Pennsylvania is too weak in the pitching department and too erratic otherwise to make a very strong finish now. Spielman and H. K. Wallace have emerged as the best of the pitchers, but neither has yet proven to be dependable. The Quakers have played ten games and have won only two. Aggressiveness, as displayed in the use of the squeeze play, coupled with Spielman's heady pitching, pulled them through against Princeton.

Of the other colleges, Brown and Columbia are strong. It is hardly fair, though, to compare Brown with the other institutions, because the Providence men play semiprofessionals, and enjoy an advantage here which other colleges are not permitted to take. Columbia has a fair team and a very good pitcher in Smith, but the New Yorkers were badly beaten by both Yale and Harvard.

West Point's Wonderful Showing

It is not offen that a team outside the "Big Six" makes such a record as West Point has done. The Army lads haven't lost a game this season, due to the wonderful twirling of Neyland. Doubtless, some of the professional league managers would like to have the services of this young cadet if he were not committed to military service. West Point has played only one member of the "Big Six," that being Harvard, and, of course, the soldiers won.

Harvard Peraists in Old Four-Oared Races

Yale's rowing authorities have been unable so far to get Harvard to agree to substitute a junior eight-cared race at New London for the old four-cared contest. And this in spite of the fact that last year Harvard's junior eight not only won at the American Regatta in this city and beat Yale at New London, but later went to England and lifted the Grand Challenge Cup, being the first American crew to achieve this honor.

One would think that, under the circumstances, Harvard would promptly consent. Why Harvard sticks to the four-oared race is a mystery to rowing men, for there is no other institution in the East that develops such a crew, and Yale will do so only under protest.

The experiment of substituting the race for junior eights for the four-oared intest at Poughkeepsie was so successful that there has been no thought of retuning to the old, uninteresting struggle.

Leland Stanford Rowers to Compete

There is much rejoicing in the East over the announcement from the Pacific ast that the Leland Stanford crew will compete at Poughkeepsie this year. The competition of the California oarsmen is made possible by the action of the students in subscribing a fund of $1000 for their expenses.

Their entry will be even more gratifying since Wisconsin has temporarily given up this sport. Next to the competition of these Western crews, what the college world would like best would be to see one of them sweep the Hudson. It has never been done, even Wisconsin never getting any nearer than second.

For a crew that has lost six out of eight men from last year, it must be said that Columbia is supremely confident. The New Yorkers have not rowed a race this year against an outsider, yet Coach Rice and his followers are already picking the Blue and White to beat both Princeton and Pennsylvania when the three meet for the Childs Cup on Lake Carnegie Saturday afternoon.

VICTRIX CLUB'S STAR BATTERY

The Victrix baseball team opened its season on Saturday with a victory over the Atlantic Refining Company's nine by a 6 to 5 score. Manager Weeks has a corking battery in Heavner and Livingston. Besides playing a good defensive game, each had a hit to his credit, while the backstop also scored two of the half-dozen runs. Next Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock Victrix will meet the winner of the Havana Reds-Cuban Giants game, which will be played at 2:15 as the first half of a double-header.

CASE OF J. FRANK BAKER UP BEFORE AMATEUR LEAGUE

Protest Against Playing With Upland Club to Be Heard.

Club to Be Heard.

President Joseph P. Rogers, of the Interstate Association, has called a special meeting of the "National Commission" of amateur baseball tonight to take up E. M. Hackney's protest on the playing of J. Franklin Baker, formerly of the Athletics, with the Upland Club of the Delaware County League. Hackney, who is president of the Philadelphia Suburban League, contends that the signing of League, contends that the signing of Baker is in direct violation with the spirit and object of the Internate Association and his protest is sustained by President Rogers and practically the entire asso-ciation. The Delaware County League, of which J. Borton Weeks is president, has threatened to withdraw from the association if Baker is not allowed to play.
President Rogers stated that if Baker had played last Saturday with the Upland Club he would penalize the club $20 and forfeit the game, but Baker very op-portunely received a broken rib by falling down stairs in his Trappe home, and reports have it that he will not play until There promises to be a real interesting time at the Philadelphia Athletic Club. where the special meeting has been call-ed. It is reported that the leagues who will back Hackney will be the Philadei-phia Suburban, Northeast Philadeiphia, Main Line, Interborough and Burlington County. The Delaware County and Del-aware River are expected to vote against the protest.

ALEXANDER TO TWIRL FOR PHILS IN CLOSING BATTLE WITH GIANTS

Tesreau, Mathewson or Ritter Due to Pitch for the Giants if Ground Is in Condition - Mayer Held for Brooklyn.

Grover Alexander is slated to twirl for the Phillies this afternoon if the weatherman can bring enough sunshine to dry up the field at Broad and Huntingdon streets. It is Erskine Mayer's turn to Mayer is much more effective against Brooklyn and also is anxious to cinch the final combat with the Glants.

Moran gave Alexander an extra day's rest last week in order to save him for the New York series. But he figures that Alexander needs plenty of work to keep him going at top speed, so he will take no chances on laying "Alex" off can defeat the Dublin giant. today and having rain interfere with the first two games in Brooklyn. Too much rest is worse than too much work for Alexander, and Moran is going to use him all he can without overworking him.

If the field is dry Bill Killefer is expected to return to the game, but if the condition of the field is bad, Manager Moran will not allow his star catcher to take a chance with als injured knee. Bert Niehoff will not be able to get back for a few days, as he worked out too strenuously on his first day out after his intury, and as a result, is still stiff. Manager McGraw says that he has no idea who will pitch for the Giants. His

Reich and Coffey wound up their training yesterday after two weeks of hard work, and the condition of both men is almost perfect. ONLY USEFUL TROPHIES TO GO IN RIVER RACE MEETS

Delaware River Yachtsmen's League, at its monthly meeting at the Walton last night, made arrangements for the selection of prizes for the series of race meets to be held during the season. Cups and shields are taboo, and all prizes offered are to be of the utility class.

An offer of a silver ice pitcher bearing the pennant of the league and the pen-nants of the five affiliated clubs was received from a local business concern. In addition, Commodore J. H. Miller, the president of the league, announced his intention of donating a valuable prize of a utility character. These prizes, with several others, are to be used as special trophies to be competed for at the final races to be held on September 25.

PENNOCK TO PITCH FOR ATHLETICS TODAY

New York Fans Wild Over Showing of Yankees - Ray Keating Due to Hurl.

NEW YORK, May 5 .- "Wild Bill" Donovan's Yankees will make a gallant attempt to break a record that has stood unchallenged by the Highlanders for seven years. Back in 1908 the Yankees, under George Stallings, won six straight games. That was considered a remarkable feat for a New York American League Club.

Just how much longer this order will prevail is not known, but Connie Mack says that he is going to take a fall out of the Yankees this afternoon. To accomplish this purpose he has selected Herb Pennock, who has won three games in four starts, to oppose the home team. Ray Keating will be Donovan's choice. In his last start, Keating shut out Wash-ington and appeared to have regained his old form.

With two star slabmen slated to oppose each other, a fast game may be expected. This would be a relief to the fans after watching the Mack pitchers hand out bases on balls for two and a half hours each afternoon.

AL BRITT DEFEATS MURPHY

Latter Rallies Too Late to Overcome Rival's Lead at Fairmount A. C.

Although Danny Murphy made a spurt in the final round of the main bout at the Fairmount Athletic Club last night and by launching out with a series of hard right and left swings had his opponent, Al Britt, of Baltimore, bleeding freely from the mouth and nose, his rally came too late to overcome the lead gained by his opponent during the early rounds. The spectators were brought to their feet in the fourth round of the semiwind-up when Ty Cobb crossed a short right hook to Harry Sullivan's jaw, knocking him out. Although Sullivan had been on the losing end during the early session, he was boxing strongly at all times and the sensational ending to the contest was unexpected. Marty Kane and Young Jack Toland boxed six exciting rounds in the fourth number. Toland was the aggressor, but the right swings which Kane sent to his opponent's mid-section carned him the In the other bouts, Jack Brady defeated

Catholic High at Northeast High. Several school-boy pitchers who give promise to develop into star slabsters have been performing brilliantly on the diamond under colors of local institutions this season. West Philadelphia High School's surprising exhibition of the national pastime in making almost a runaway race of the interscholastic league campaign is due chiefly to sood mound duty on the part of four boys, who have had little experience until this year. Coach Alker, who is credited with the remarkable showing of the orange and
