

ATTERBURY TESTIFIES THAT P. R. R. IS READY FOR "ANY SITUATION"

Frankly Admits Preparedness in Answer to Charge That Company Is Maintaining a "Russianized" Police Force.

WASHINGTON, May 5.—Answering the charge of President H. B. Perham, of the Order of Railway Telegraphers, that the Pennsylvania Railroad includes a "Russianized" police force in its organization...

MAY REDRESS GRIEVANCES. "The company has always recognized the right of any man to labor upon whatever terms he and his employer may agree, whether he belongs to a labor organization or not."

AGAINST SYMPATHY STRIKES. "The company is opposed, therefore, to employes affiliating themselves with an organization which might call a sympathetic strike."

PERHAM ACCUSES COMPANY. Before Vice President Atterbury took the stand, H. B. Perham testified that the Pennsylvania Railroad controlled the courts in Altoona, and absolutely dominated life in that city.

Who threw the brick that hit Gilpin Tinney? This question puzzled the shrewd deductionists who thronged the office of Magistrate Campbell today.

NO U. S. DYE INDUSTRY WITHOUT PROTECTION, IS EXPERT'S OPINION

Head of National Aniline and Chemical Co. Tells Hosiery Men Capital Must Be Assured Against Competition After War.

Refusal of aid to the American dye industry by the present Administration has not only successfully blocked efforts temporarily to relieve a serious condition in American textile fields, due to the cutting off by the war of the German dyestuff supply, but will smother all attempts to build up a permanent dye-making industry in this country.

MRS. CARMAN WINS VICTORY IN TESTIMONY

Continued From Page One. house might have hidden him if he had run through the yard. Mrs. Black's daughter corroborated her mother's testimony. The prosecution suffered another setback when Smith tried to have Goldstein repeat a statement he is said to have made at the coroner's inquest, that he saw Mrs. Carman, shortly before the fatal shot was fired, pass from the dining room into the kitchen. Goldstein could not remember making the statement. Smith attempted to freshen his memory with a transcript of his testimony before the coroner. This defense objected to its use and was sustained.

POLICE COURT CHRONICLES

Who threw the brick that hit Gilpin Tinney? This question puzzled the shrewd deductionists who thronged the office of Magistrate Campbell today.

"Where is McCrossin?" asked Tinney calmly when he got on his feet. "I wouldn't bother looking for him now," the surgeon suggested. "I'm very desirous of learning his whereabouts," insisted Tinney as he gazed at a pile of bricks. But he couldn't find McCrossin, and in order to get an opportunity to be near him, went to Magistrate Campbell's office to swear out a warrant against McCrossin's arrest.

not have legs or wings—but they do have a punch. "I know, but it's all guess work," said the Judge. And when the McCrossin passed by, so the "Judge" made the partners shake hands.

"Breathe the air while it is free, for the day will come when it will be charged for by the cubic foot." Thus did John O'Hanlon warn those who assembled about him in Fairhill Square. His appearance gave weight to his words; for he resembled a man of much wisdom. His long hair and beard indicated that he cared little for the styles of today, and the big look which he carried under one arm showed that he was a man devoted to research.

POLICE COURT CHRONICLES

Hundreds of the women rushed to the rear doors of the stamp company in Academy street, north of Arch street, this morning when they learned that those who had obtained gifts in exchange for their stamp books were leaving the building that way.

The rush started two days ago when the Crown Trading Stamp Company, a subsidiary of the Acme Tea Company, announced its intention of selling its stamp books to holders of its stamps, with extra clerks in anticipation of further redemptions.
