PHILLIES MAULING BALL TO ALL PARTS—WOMEN READY FOR GOLF AT PHILMONT CLUB

PHILS' PENNANT? CAN IT BE TRUE? GEORGE WHITTED SWEARS BY IT

Ex-Brave, Peppery and Game, Declares Moran's Team Is Greatest in Country and Will Win Out-Home-Run Drives Bring Joy to Hearts of Fans.

George Whitted, the Phillies' brilliant outfielder who is out of the game with two broken bones in his ankle, says that the Phillies right now are a better ball club than the Boston Braves, with whom he played when they wor the world's championship last fall. Whitted says that his statement is in no way influenced by the fact that he is now a member of the Phillies, but because he knows just where the strength of each team lies.

When he joined the Phillies, Whitted said he figured he was going to play with a second division club, something which is rather distastful to him as he is one of those fighting, ambitious youngsters who love to win. It took him just three weeks to discover that he was playing on a team that is-in his opinion-due to become one of the game's most famous machines.

Takes Chances With Phils for World's Series

'If I were made a free agent tomorrow, and had my pick of any club in the entire country and were figuring on playing in a world's series, I would not healtate to pick the Phillies. I think, right now, it is the best team in the country, and it will get better right along.

"I was afraid of the pitching, aside from Alexander and Mayer, for a time, but I have seen enough to convince me that Chaimers, Demarce, Rixey. and the youngsters Oeschger, Baumgartner and Tincup form the best staff in the land, and I know there are several managers who agree with me. The people here do not appreciate just how strong the youngsters are, because they have had no chance to show with the veterans going so well.

Ranks Phillies' Pitchers Higher Than Braves'

"Our pitchers are better than the Braves', and that is saying something, because nobody realizes better than I do what Rudolph, James and Tyler meant to us in Boston last season. And, let me tell you, the pitchers are getting better every day. Chalmers looks better than ever before, and has more stuff than he has had since I have been in the league. Of course, Alexander is in a class by himself.

"There is more power to the Philly attack than there was to the Braves', and wher, the same club gets in there playing regularly day after day, you will see a system of team play that will open your eyes. The Braves may look faster on paper, but one must remember that the Phillies have been badly crippled since the season started, and still have not slowed up. That is more than you can say for any other team in either league.

Phillies' Defense Getting Stronger Every Day

"Defensively, we have made many misplays on easy chances, but we have also made other plays that will more than make up for the misplays. In a short time you will see the misplays rapidly disappearing and a smooth defensive team in action. Bancroft and Niehoff are becoming accustomed to each other, and there is likely to be a new pair of "keystone kings."

"About Pat and Stallings? Well, that is something I would rather not talk about. They are of entirely different types. I owe Stallings a lot for what he has taught me, but I want to tell you that there is not a man in the game who knows more baseball than Pat Moran, and he is not a slave driver. Every man on the club is pulling for Moran, on the field and off, and that is an unusual thing on a ball team. I have played on several, and never saw one where there was absolutely no friction of any sort until I came here.

"The Very Best, Including Boston"

"It is tough to be out of the game, and I can't stand around watching the boys. I am going home tonight for two weeks, and then will take another week to get in shape. By that time this fellow Paskert will probably be going like a house a-fire, and I will find myself a substitute. I love the game and want to be in there all the time, but if 'Dode' is going good I will be the last one to want to take his place. You can just say for me that it will take a wholesale crippling to prevent the Phillies winning the pennant in the National League this season. It is the best ball club that I ever played with, and that includes the Braves at their best."

The "Wrecking Crew" Is Still on the Job

When Sherwood Magee and Hans Lobert departed from the ranks of the Phillies it was generally believed that the "wrecking crew" was a thing of the past at Broad and Huntingdon streets. But Pat Moran is fast convincing the fans that the "wrecking crew" is still there, with a few other things that those who departed did not have.

Beals Becker is proving the Magee of the "wrecking crew," with Bert Niehoff more than taking Lobert's place. Niehoff, as was predicted in these columns a few days ago, is just getting the range of the left-field bleachers and will hit many drives among the bleacherites before the summer is over. Yesterday he supplied his first circuit drive of the season, and it was a beauty.

Becker's drive went over his favorite spot on the right-field fence, about twenty feet from the foul line. Cravath, who plays no favorites, hitting them to all fields, placed one into Broad street a few feet below the place Becker's drive disappeared. Three home-run drives are indeed out of the ordinary, and when one considers that the Phillies scored only five runs, it is the ribbons in the harness horse classes all the more remarkable.

Crowds Love Those Home-Run Swats

The drive that turned the trick for the Phillies was the one made by Cravath, with two men on base, in the third inning. These three runs gave Mayer a lead that made it an easy game to win, although, as it turned out later, the circuit drives of Niehoff and Becker were needed to clinch the victory. It was a most unusual way to win a ball game, but it is safe to say that there is no other way so pleasing to the fans, and it is a pity that such a small crowd turned out. The crowd did not number more than 1200, as but few knew there would be a game after the heavy rains of the early morning.

Erskine Mayer pitched great ball for the Phillies, except in the fourth and fifth innings, when he grew careless. A game that should have been an easy victory was made hard through this carelessness, and Mayer was fortunate in being able to come back in such fine style. Generally, when a pitcher lets up he finds when he tries to get working that he has lost all his "stuff."

For one thing, Mayer was grooving many fast balls in both innings, but completely changed his style of pitching after the fifth inning, with the result that the Cardinals were helpless and went hitless for the remainder of the game. In the early innings Mayer was using plenty of speed, but after the fifth inning he used a slow curve ball with great success. The side-arm expert's control was great and he mixed them up with rare judgment,

Cravath Tries Cooley's Old Bunt Trick

An interesting incident occurred when Cravath went to the plate for the third time. On his previous turn at bat he had lofted the ball over the rightfield wall, and the Cardinal infield was playing deep for him. Cravath thought he could catch them napping and turned the handle of his bat in laying down a bunt.

It was the first time that a player has tried to bunt a ball that way on the Phillies' field in years, since Dick Cooley's famous trick was abandoned after Roy Thomas had used it with great success about ten years ago. One spectator at the same remembers, to his sorrow, the origin of the trick. That man is Al Maul, who was deprived of a no-hit game through Cooley's success in this respect.

Al was pitching for Brooklyn a morning holiday game at the Philly park back in 1898, and had held them hitless until one man was out in the ninth finning, Cooley was sent in to pinch hit for Frank Donohue, now dead, and, with but one man out, the catcher played back until two strikes were called on the butter. Cooley turned the handle of his bat and laid down a bunt that did not roll a foot from the plate. He naturally beat the throw to first base, with the catcher 50 feet back. This was the only hit the Phillies got, and Maul, who is the scout who picked up many of the Athletics' wonderful youngsters a few years ago, says he will never forget the trick, as it was the first time to his recollection that it had ever been done.

Lobert, Big Noise in the Big Town The New York Sun has this to say concerning Honus Lobert:

Honus Lobert, hitting around .326 and playing his position in speedy and reliable fashion, has been a valuable man for the Giants all season, even if they are last. In all-around work he has excelled any other third baseman who has played on the Polo Grounds this season. Two strong points in his fleiding are going in for bunts and getting drives hit between him and the foul line. In the latter specialty he has done conspicuously well and surpansed any other third baseman."

DEMAREE VS. DOAK PROBABLE HURLERS IN PHIL-CARD FRAY

St. Louis Pitching Staff in Bad Shape Unless Doak Can Come Back-Southpaw Choice Possible for Contest.

Al Demarce will pitch for the Phillies In the third game of the series with the Cardinals this afternoon, provided he has anything in warming up. The former Giant has pitched fine ball in every start this season, but has been rather unlucky. With the team hitting again, At has a better than even chance of winning from Huggins' team.

The latter's pliching staff is shot to pieces, and he intends to send Bill Doak back against Moran's league leaders. Doak twirled one inning on Saturday and was greeted with a fusiliade of base hits that sent him to the shower in about five minutes. It is not often that Bill is treated that way and he plans revenge.

a hard one for the Phillies, but otherwise Moran's men should win in a canter. The Cardinals look to be by far weaker than last season, especially at the bat, Perhaps the club is merely in a batting slump, such as the Phillies had for ten days, as the added strength of Long should make the team stronger in this department, but then it must be considered that several of the Cardinals were going above their usual calt last several ered that several of the Cardinals were going above their usual galt last season, and a few others are past the prime of their baseball careers.

The four innings that Dan Griner twirled yesterday may eliminate him from the series, and it is good news to the Phils, who fear him by far more than Doak. Sallee, Purdue, Niehaus or Meadows. Griner has always been effective against the Phillies, and most other clubs for that matter, but has always been a hard luck pitcher. His work yesterday was high class and Moran is hoping that Doak will start today, with a southpaw tomorrow.

The fight between Joe Hirst, weighing 15114 pounds, and Joe Heffernan, 14514, in the star bout at the Olympia A. A. was one of the most disappointing encounters seen at the Broad street arena for some time. At the finish Hirst was a winner because of his better judgment in landing punches.
After the third round many of the spec

Matches in both divisions of the Men's Interclub Tennis League and one in the first division of the Women's League are on for decision today.

The Merion Cricket Club men, who won both divisions last year, are having a hard row to hoe this season, due virtually to the fact that some first-class tennis players have been added to other organizations. Leading the newcomers is W. E. Davis, Philadelphia Cricket Club, Davis is a Californian, now studying at the Univer-
