IS WOMAN OLD AT 39? OH, HOW DARE YOU!

Miss Ellich Taliaferro Announces Discovery of Fountain of Youth.

RECIPE FOR PERPETUAL YOUTH Enthusiasm-oodle's of it. A few harmless firtations indicating healthy interest in the opposite sex.

A powdered nose. Hobbies, and a keen interest in work

A broad sympathy with mankind. A bubbling sense of humor.

"A woman ceases to be young at 30," the cooing voice of Miss Edith Tallaferro trailed up into an inflection of positive horror. "Mercy, I should hate to believe that; but, of course, it isn't true; a woman is usually only feeling her oats at that tender age. She's a flly; who said she was old at 307"

The Boston Young Womants Christian Association has said it. With a cold brutality that threatens to make it one of the most unpopular institution in the country it has announced that in the near future it will close its doors to all feminine callers who have passed the threedecade milestone, for after that time a woman loses her claim on an organization with the word "young" in its title.

When this had been explained to Miss Tallaferro, who, perhaps, of all the actresses on the stage today most typides youth, because she is so young, that dainty little person made a charming and went on to give her views:

woman need ever get old," she con-"for every one who has any sense at all knows that age isn't a matter of years. It's a question of almost everything else. Of enthusiasm, one must have codies of it to keep young; a few harmless flirtations, just to indicate a healthy interest in the opposite sex. Nothing so marks a woman as aged as a lack of interest in those creatures of the masculine persuasion. "A powdered nose," she continued, her eyes twinkling merrily, 'is also an aid to the maintenance of youth, for as soon as a woman loses interest in her personal appearance she is beginning to get old. But chiefest of all, I believe, that a keen interest in one's chosen work—and one should have a chosen work, if it only amounts to a hobby. Add to this a broad sympathy with the affairs of the men and en she meets and an unquenchable se of humor, and I defy any one to such a woman old, even though she 0 years of age."

n the opinion of Mrs. Wilfred Lewis, attractive Philadelphian of promi-nce, president of the Equal Franchise ociety, an open mind and an advanced pirit are the best youth preservers. "A woman," said she, "only begins to how her age when she allows her ideas to ossify, when she becomes callous to the wonderful development of everything about her. A woman of 30 has scarcely passed out of her girlhood. This is the very time when she is entitled to be called

Suburb High School Too Small, So Sunday Speaks in Theatre. By a Staff Correspondent

PATERSON, N. J., May 20,-Ridgewood the fashionable New York suburb, thought it was going to hear "Billy" Sunday once today. Instead it heard him The town's little high school was too small to let in the fathers and mothers and sisters, cousins and aunts of the students. So "Billy" took himself and his message across the street to a movie house, where he played as a counter attraction to Mary Pickford and "Charlie" Chaplin.

Nothing to the discredit of those famous people, the manager of the moving-pic-ture palace announced he had never had a "swell" audience before in his He meant "fashionable." Millionbled with the washerwomen for front-row seats, and many of their domestics winning out in the scrambling, not a few of these socially elect found themselves outside the house admiring the pasteboard figures of screen

"Billy" talked on the 23d Psalm in the movie house. In the high school he de-livered his usual talk to the students. He was cheered and applauded in the movie place just as he was in the school. Sunday has promised his bitterest at-tacks upon the Unitarians for this afternoon's service, when he speaks on "The Incarnation of Christ."

FALLS 150 FEET: LIVES

Remarkable Operation, Removings

Section of Skull, Saves Man. John Donohue lives today, although he fell 150 feet ten days ago and went under an operation in which a piece of his skull was cut away. Dr. H. Augustue Hacon, who performed the remarkable operation in the Garretson Hospital, declared the man will recover, and prominent surgeons of all parts of the city, who have examined the patient's condition, agree.
Donohue is 22 years old and his left side is paralyzed. He lives at 1706 Fairmount avenue. On May 10 he climbed to the top of a smokestack of the Bornot Cleaning and Dyeing Works, 17th street and Fairsount avenue because his fellow-workers there would not believe that he previously had accomplished the feat.

From the top of the stack Donohus fell. His skull was fractured, and, with faint hope that his life could be saved, Doctor Bacon removed a portion of the bone larger than a 5-cent piece.

FOUNDER'S DAY KEPT AT GIRARD COLLEGE

Students and Faculty Observe 165th Birthday-Tablet Memorial for Loved Teacher.

The 165th anniversary of the birth of Stephen Girard is observed today with a brilliant Founder's Day program at Girard College. Hundreds of alumni attended a luncheon and reception this noon and heard an address delivered by Ferdinand H. Graser, of the Class of '96, presenting a tablet given by graduates and students in memory of Hessy R. Miller, a teacher beloved by graduates of the college.

Former Governor Edwin S. Stuart, president of the board of directors of City Trusts, and Henry Kraemer, of the ing the terrible noise and shouting which class of '83, are speakers participating in the afternoon program, in which music by the college band and the college chorus plays a large part. The day's festivities will conclude with a spectacular dress parade of the college cadets.

Louis A. Menegaux, of the class of '54, made an address at the 8 o'clock chapel service, which opened the Founder's Day celebration. Following an alumni luncheon was a reception for alumni and guests by the board of directors of City Trusts and the president and faculty of the college in the main building.

Following this the presentation of the memorial tablet in honor of Hessy R.

Miller, for 42 years a teacher at the col-lege, who died last July, was made by Ferdinand H. Graser, of the class of '96. The bronze tablet was purchased by graduates and students who studied under Miss Miller. Miss Miller was always a stanch friend of the students and be-queathed half of her small estate to establish a scholarship for their benefit in University of Pennsylvania.

Mr. Graser praised her as a woman who, like Stephen Girard, was "truly a lover of humanity. "We pause," he con-tinued, "to examine the work and influence of one of its humble agents, who revered his memory and studied ever to interpret and carry out his expressed wishes in the education of his wards." An invocation by Dr. Cheesman A. Her-ick, president of the college, opened the afternoon program, after a rendition of the "Raymond Overture" by the band. The march from "Aida," rendered by a college chorus, and a cornet solo by Thomas Marple, followed.

The introductory address will be delivered by former Governor Edwin S. Stuart, president of the Board of City Trusta, and after another selection by the college chorus, "Send Out Thy Light," by Gou-nod, William Potter, chairman of the committee on arrangements, will intro-duce the orator of the day, Dr. Henry Kraemer, of the Class of December, 1883.

The review of the college cadets will be held north of the main building, Major Robert M. Brookfield commanding. The reviewing officer will be General Albert L. Mills, chief of the Division of Military Affairs, United States army. The annual dinner of the Girard College alumni was held last night at the Scot-tish Rite Building, Broad and Race streets. The speakers were former Gov-ernor Stuart, Doctor Herrick, Franklin S. Edmonds, William L. Pascoe and E. J.

Several hundred graduates last night met at the annual dinner held in Scottish Rite Hall. Ex-Governor Edwin S. Stu-art, president of the Board of City Trusts, was the principal speaker. Others who made addresses were Dr. Cheesman A. Herrick, president of the college; Franklin S. Edmonds, William L. Pascoe, of the Class of '76, and E. J. Cattell, City Statistician.

The committee in charge of the dinner included H. F. Schwarz, '09, chairman; S. W. Brown, 76; John E. Rodgers, '85; J. A. Campbell, '81; Albert N. Graser, '01; Robert Radford, '94, president f the Alumni Association; F. H. Graser, '96; C. A. Bothell, '03; Robert U. Frey, '07; A. L. De Luca, '08; John W. Stehle, '08; A. H. Edelman, '09, and C. Frank Crane, the "silent director," also one of the most popular and efficient directors in the business, is just finishing a five-reel picture named "The Moonstone," at the World Film studios. He is reckoned throughout filmdom as the most silent director in the business. a fact seemingly very unusual, consider most directors consider necessary in the taking of a picture. Crane used to be a noisy individual:

in fact, he could make several well-known directors renowned for their shouting. appear like deaf mutes in comparison. He would yell and scream and megaphone, and the larger or more important a scene, the more racket he would raise. But, as the old saying goes "there is an end to everything," and the Simon Legree vocal instructions of little Frank Crane finally met their Waterioo.

Crane had a large mob in a particularly important scene, and noise galore was to be the method. During the rehearsals he raved and howled, he shouted and yelled, and still the crowd failed to give him what he wanted. Finally, even his leather lungs gave out. And then his Sandow vocal cords rebelled. In no time the erstwhile noisy Crane was reduced to a voiceless human, somewhat peevish, but as quiet as a clam in nice moist mud. He could not say a word. He was speechless, and everybody thought that the scene would never be taken until he had recovered his 45-calibre voice.

Next day he could speak in a whisper and he outlined his new plan to his assistant. That party told the mob that Mr. Crane would direct by motions, much as a band leader directs his men. The scheme worked marvels. They understood his actions easily and now all his big scenes are directed in the same man-

After this experience, Crane commenced to wonder if shouting was necessary. He came to the conclusion that it was not, so he gradually softened his voice until at the present he is not heard from one end of a picture to the other. He knows what he wants each character to do, which he explains in a very confidential tone, each person getting nothing but their own directions. Then the rehearsals commence, without anyone knowing what the other

Aside from this unusual fact, the sub-ject attaches a unique interest because connected with the production are a number of original and totally unconventional incidents. For the first time in their en-

Prominent Members of Other Give Warm Approval to Pa Churches Extend Their Congratulations.

Philadelphia Methodism, since Its foundation leading the denomination throughout the country, marked a new epoch in its history today when its $300,-000 building at 17th and Arch streets was dedicated. In the presence of several hishops, scores of clergymen and hundreds of prominent laymen from this city and other towns and cities in the Philadelphia conference, the six-story building was dedicated formally with elaborate ceremonies this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock

Bishop Joseph F. Berry, who has been ne of the most active advocates of the building and was among the very first to urge its completion, presided at the afternoon services. In the evening, when a general congratulatory reception will be held, W. S. Pilling, chairman of the Committee on Plans and Building, will be in the chair. The exercises were held in the assembly hall, and the entire structure was thrown open during the afternoon for inspection by the Methodists and their friends. William H.
