

SCHOOL OF COOKERY OPENED TO WOMEN BY EVENING LEDGER

First of Series of Lectures and Demonstrations by Expert, to End June 12, Presented in Horticultural Hall This Afternoon.

The Evening Ledger cooking school opened at Horticultural Hall at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon.

Before an audience of several hundred women, Mrs. Anna A. Carroll, culinary expert, began her series of 11 lectures. Armed with notebooks and pencils, many of the self-appointed pupils had encoined themselves in advantageous seats long before Mrs. Carroll came on the stage.

Mrs. Carroll built her first lecture, as she will build the others, around a plain, practical menu, and she supplements her talk with an actual demonstration, which includes mixing the ingredients and cooking the meal.

The lecture course was opened with a very plain menu, but one that gave Mrs. Carroll an excellent opportunity to display her practical ideas on cooking and housekeeping.

Mrs. Carroll has a big array of followers in Philadelphia. Many of the younger women of the city who are devoting their time to domestic science teaching have learned much from her.

LECTURE FOR BUSINESS WOMEN. This morning Mrs. Carroll announced that she would deliver a special lecture to business women and others who have not the advantage of large ranges on Saturday afternoon, June 5.

PRaises EVENING LEDGER SCHOOL. The menu for this afternoon consisted of broiled steak and mushrooms, stuffed baked potatoes, fresh string beans, strawberry short cake and hot milk sponge cake with chocolate icing.

CLAIMS BODY OF HUSBAND WHO BEGGED HER TO RETURN

The body of Louis Wachenaphler, who committed suicide, the police say, by inhaling illuminating gas yesterday at his home, 2113 Bolton street, was claimed today by his wife, who left him two months ago.

MUST GO BACK TO PRISON 17 YEARS FOR BREAKING PAROLE

Man Who Left His Native State Must Finish Term for Indiscretion.

Frank Seaton was "on the level" when he was doing his bit of time in the Illinois State penitentiary at Joliet, and after he had served three years of a 20-year allotment for burglary, the Governor let him go on parole. "Don't go out of the State, Seaton, and you can be a free man the rest of your life," he was told. He lived "straight," the paroled man declares, but after staying in Illinois a year the call of the open road came to him, and telling himself he wouldn't be caught, he started east.

63 years old he hadn't accomplished very much. He began to wonder if he had done the "square" thing by the Governor who paroled him. He tried to forget his troubles by drinking too much alcohol and then, rather "light," he became so noisy in talking about his history that he was arrested.

SOCIAL CALL ENDS IN BRAWL

Holiday Enjoyment Takes a Bad Turn After Shades of Night Fall.

A peaceable friendly family call on such a delightful holiday as yesterday broke up in a general fight between two families, and as a result one of the families was held under ball today.

street, paid a sociable call on Michael Stank, of 928 North Front street. He stayed a little longer than his wife Mary thought, he should and she went after him. John thought it was impolite for her to act in this manner and said so. Mike thought so, too, and he said so, too. John decided he didn't approve of Mike's remarks about his wife and neither did Mary. When Mary started in to "clean up" John helped. Sophie, Mike's wife, came to his rescue and the allied armies locked horns. While Mary smashed windows and crockery John stood off Mike and Sophie, and bit Policeman Hansen on the nose when the bluecoat intervened in the war.

DAVID GRAHAM PHILLIPS author of "Old Wives and New," "The Grain of Dust," "The Price She Paid," Etc., Etc.

"And Jesus said unto her, Woman, hath no man condemned thee? * * * Neither do I condemn thee: go, and sin no more."

This text inspired the writing of David Graham Phillips' greatest novel, "The Story of Susan Lenox Her Fall and Rise" By DAVID GRAHAM PHILLIPS

Dr. CHARLES H. PARKHURST, the famous clergyman, says:

"This great novel, having read it in manuscript, its spirit and purpose have not passed from my memory.

"The heroine is depicted as an illegitimate child, and the purpose of the fiction is to show the blight that attaches to innocent illegitimacy.

"The treatment accorded her by her kindred, who by ordination of nature ought to have protected and cherished her, illustrates in a graphic way the vicious tendency imminent in human nature to think the worst of people rather than the best.

"It is one of those fictions that has a meaning, the only kind of fiction that moral and intelligent people have any right to spend their time over or give their thought to."

To this most startling American novel ever written, David Graham Phillips devoted six years of his life. Today, four years after his death by assassination, this, his greatest work is given to the public in Hearst's Magazine.

A million fathers and mothers will see this story, and read the lessons in it.

Deeply they will sympathize with the child unhappily born, and rejoice that they can protect as she was not protected, those within their care.

In Susan Lenox, David Graham Phillips shows with all of his courage and power the story of life as it is.

A girl beautiful, intelligent, unhappily born, cursed with the cruel stigma of illegitimacy, fights against the world.

Phillips tells of her journeys down the hill, the cruel selfishness of relations, pushing their own daughter ahead of her.

The marriage forced upon an inexperienced child. The horrible revelations of what false marriage really is.

The curse of a union without love on the woman's part, without refinement or kindness on the part of the husband.

The flight of the girl hating immoral marriage more than any risk in life.

Then the story that the public will read with breathless interest, the hard struggle, against hunger, cold, anxiety, and the last, worse danger, that threatens every helpless woman.

It is indeed as Dr. Parkhurst says, fiction "that has a meaning, the ONLY KIND OF FICTION THAT MORAL INTELLIGENT PEOPLE SHOULD READ."

With his extraordinary power fully developed, David Graham Phillips tells of the fall that could not be avoided, and then of the spirit conquering, of the rise of the soul, the end of a struggle.

The story of Susan Lenox, is the story of cruelty inflicted by cold civilization upon helpless girls.

It is a story of beauty as well as of horror.

It is a lesson in powerful literary work, a lesson of true moral teaching.

Many a man who reads it, many a man who feels within himself part of the guilt that pushed Susan Lenox down the road, will feel as those men felt in the ancient days, when "Jesus stooped down, and with his finger wrote upon the ground, as though he heard them not."

Many realizing in Phillips' powerful, vivid teaching, how defenceless is woman cursed by man's brutality will wish that they might slink away from their own past, as "they which heard it, being convicted by their own conscience, went out one by one, beginning at the eldest, even unto the last."

No story but this wonderful narrative of the fall and the rise of a beautiful, unhappy spirit, will be discussed in this country, as long as the reading of the story lasts.

First,— A bad start, illegitimately born.

Second,— The relations jealous and unkind.

This is SUSAN LENOX — the heroine of David Graham Phillips' great American novel.

Third,— A fall to the depths, but the power of the spirit raised her.
