The contest editor has been asked if the cabinet any ranges, which are being given as first prizes in the four divisions of the contest, will be delivered to the homes of the winners. The range will be delivered and the United Gas Im-provement Company will connect them ready for use, giving each a thorough test and adjustment to insure complete satisfaction. All of the prizes will be dis-tributed to the homes of the winners under EVENING LEDGER auspices.

There have been few contests for children which featured such valuable, de-sirable, useful and appropriate prizes as are being offered in the Evening Lepona Baking Contest. Even the children who win the third and fourth prizes will have something that will prove of use for a number of years. In addition to the prizes an appropriate ribbon will be given for first, second, third, fourth and honorable mention in each of the four divisions. This will give the winners some thing they can treasure for a lifetime

ENTHUSIASM INCREASES. As the time of the contest draws nearer the enthusiasm among the children is becoming more intense. After today there will be but eight days for contestants to prepare their entries. Of course, it would not be advisable to do the baking too soon, as the exhibits would lose their value before being entered in the contest, but many wise contestants have been the side of domestic education. Housewives See and Hear How Meal Is Scientifically Yet Easily Prepared.

"Pie-well, I am going to talk a little about ple in some of my later lectures, but I am not a believer in pie unless it is very well and very carefully prepared. Most ples are unwholesome, though they do tickle the paiate."

This was one of the startling remarks made by Mrs. Anna A. Carroll, the lecturer and expert demonstrator of cooking, at the conclusion of the opening lecture at Horticultural Hall yesterday afternoon. This remark was in response to a question by one of the women of the audience.

The big hall was not filled for the open ing of the EVENING LEDGER Cooking school, but the attendance was far larger than had been expected, owing to the fact that it came at the beginning of the week and immediately after a holiday.

Such rapt attention was displayed by he audience that there is no doubt that the course will prove a big success. Mrs. Carroll held the attention of all from he-tinning to end. There was not an un-nteresting minute. All of the lectures, from now until June will open at 2:30 p. m. All women are elcome to attend any of the lectures or all of them.

It is true that Mrs. Carroll will have more to say about pies during later lectures, but it probably will not be very pleasing to pie lovers, because, incl-dentally. Mrs. Carroll never has pie served in her own home. However, from the manner in which she proceeded with the menu she prepared yesterday and the entire lecture it is evident that she will know what she is talking about when she comes to pie or any other article of food. In fact, the women of the city will have a big opportunity to learn what is best with regard to all forms of cooking. One of the most interesting features or yesterday afternoon's lecture was Mrs. Carroll's remarks on the quick preparation of meals. She told her audience how meats, vegetables, desserts and other foods which go to make up a complete dinner may be prepared before leaving the house in the early afternoon for a party or a lecture. This feature of her lecture proved of great interest, because many of those present asked questions as to how special dishes, such as stuffed potatoes and macaroni, may be prepared so as to be brought to a quick conclusion after the return home in the late afternoon. This part of the lecture alone was worth a visit to the hall. It is true that Mrs. Carroll will have MUCH TAUGHT IN SHORT TIME. The lecture yesterday centered around a menu, but all Mrs. Carroll had to say and the cooking of a complete meal was done well within an hour and a half. It is expected that the lecture each day will not last much longer than an hour.

The first article of food placed in the gas range was a pan of string beans. The of each article on the menu she told exactly how it should be carried to a conclusion. When she finished cooking, her lecture was completed, so the steak, potatoes, beans, sponge cake and short-cake were passed through the audience. Every member of the audience was surprised at the savory, inviting appearance and those who tasted the food were both surprised and delighted.

The menu to be prepared during Thursday's lecture will be as follows:

Brolled Soft Shell Crabs. Tartage Saura

Broiled Soft Shell Crabs. Tartare Sauca
Asparagus on Toast
Romaine Salad with Roquefort Dressing
Strawberry Whip
Gingerbread with Lemon Icing

PROMINENT WOMEN ATTEND.

Among those present at the lecture yesterday were several women distinguished in the city's public and philantrophic movements, Mrs. Sarah Rorer, who is known from one end of the country to known from one end of the country to the other as a cooking expert, attended. Dr. Eleanor M. Hiestand Moore, of 1922 Clinton street, who was formerly demonstrator of chemistry at the Woman's Medical College of Pennsylvania and who is now one of the leaders of the woman suffrage movement, heard the lecture and afterward complimented Mrs. Carroll and the Eveniva Lengers upon the successful launching of the cooking the successful launching of the cooking school. She also commented upon the questions of the home and domestic science as follows:

"Yes, I am deeply interested in scien-

Tes, I am deeply interested in scientific cooking and all sorts of culinary reforms, and I believe I may be permitted to speak of these with some degree of authority. I am interested not only beauthority. I am interested not only be-cause my professional training in earlier years was along special lines which in-cluded the chemistry of cooking and the science of dieseles, but because I like to cook and still occasionally give myself a treat by getting up a substantial meal of my own planning. I used to tecture on foods and I believe that the crying need of our time is a better understanding need of our time is a better understanding of the problem of nutrition through a properly balanced dietary.

"No, it is not true that 'the good old-fashloned housewife' knew how to manage the kitchen better than the modern woman who has kept pace with the advance of science and knows the physiological basis of right feeding. Many of the serious digestive troubles and the present evils resulting from mainutrition are the heredistry outcome. present evils resulting from mainutrition are the hereditary autoome of our grand-mother's frying pan and the much-vaunted pies that mother made.' Cooking is both an art and a science; above all it is a medical specialty. Most women who know how to sook like it. They also like marketing. Personally, I know of nothing more attractive than an early morning visit to a good market, especially in agring time.

"What women object to generally is dish washing and scouring pote, and they what washing and scouring pots, and they object to this on much the same ground that man opjects to sweeping out his store of office and sindling the fires. Most men who can afford it keep an office boy, and women who can afford it keep a maid to do this sort of drudgery. But those who cannot, if they are wise, get busy and tearn how to manage their tasks ap as to eliminate as much of the messy part of alteban work as they can.

"Of course, modern improvements have Wrought revolutionary changes in house-keeping. I have always said that the success of women's clubs and the femi-niat movement in general has been largely due to the advent of the gas range, of aluminum pots and enameled kitchen utensils. Think of the time once spent in scouring iron pots and copper kettles! in polishing sinks and scraping the dough tray! All that sort of thing has given place to an easier, more effectual and more sanitary system of cleanliness through the advent of improved appoint ments. The result of this is an economy of time and labor whereby women have gained their opportunity for activities outside of the home.

Do I think that a woman necessarily neglects her home because she takes an interest in outside affairs? Far from it! The woman who neglects her home is fundamentally defective, and we all know that long before the woman's movement had its use there were slutterns among housekeepers just as there were slouches among business men-and are still! The woman who keeps in touch with the world's progress, who is up to date on modern methods of housekeeping and cooking, who understands the drift of sublic discussion on domestic problems, is the woman who introduces into her home unovations tending to the advantage of the entire household.

Yes, I am a great advocate of scientific cooking, not only because I think it is essential to health, but because I know it lessens the labor of kitchen work and promotes leisure, which is the greatest need of American life. I am especially interested in modera improvements of methods and appointments because they methods and appointments because they contribute to this end. They also make it possible for the women of today to do what it would have been impossible for our grandmethers to do. I regard the gas range as one of the saviors of women in days when wood and coal had to be carried, sahes lifted, lamps filled and women were always waiting for the fire to come up. When there were no drains, no water pipes, no pneumatic sweepers or washing machines, woman had little time to spare for outside activities. What are they all doing with the leisure which such modern improvements have secured to them? They are gas range was a pan of string beans. The lecturer placed this in the baking oven immediately after the gas was lighted to heat the ovens preparatory to cooking the remainder of the meal. Then she placed potatoes in the oven to bake. In this way the beans and potatoes were being cooked while she was stirring a sponge cake and a strawberry shortcake. Though it is usually considered that almost every one knows how to broil a steak. Mrs. Carroll gave this feature of her meal the greatest attention and the most careful explanation. When she placed the steak in the gas oven she showed how it should be arranged so as to sear it quickly and keep the juices in the meat. After she seared both sides she turned down the gas in order to cook the meat more slowly.

As she proceeded with the preparation of each article on the menu she told exactly how it should be carried to a conclusion. When she finished cooking, her

"What has woman suffrage to do with the question? Well, if you want to know, will have to admit that, in my opinion it is the crux of the whole situation. Scientific methods are imperatively neces-sary, but these cannot be had unless many spreliminary measures are made a sufferer fr feasible. No amount of good cooking had impaired will bring about an ideal diet unless we have pure food. Women are interested in securing legis-lation which will make good cooking effectual. They want pure milk to feed their children; they want the garbage properly cared for; they would like to have het water shorts. have hot-water plants,

"Yes, I think it perfectly possible for women to be active in the suffrage move-ment or any other public interest without neglecting their homes. We have out neglecting their homes. We have plenty of good housekeepers who are working for the cause and they have plenty of time to do this because they have had the wisdom to fit themselves for more than one task. The woman who knows how to do a thing scientifically can do it in half the time an untrained person requires, and she has all the other down comfortably to those home duties ters. Moreover, I think that the en-franchisement of women will eliminate many duties which occupy us now when our struggle for political freedom de-mands of us so much effort. The source mands of us so much effort. The sooner we get the vote the sconer we can settle down comfortably to those home duties which enfranchisement will enable us to do in a better way. Every woman ought to know how to cook scientifically because such knowledge is a guarantee of leisure. Every woman ought to have the vote so she can promote those measures which will give her culinary at-

TWO YEARS FOR RICH MOTORIST

Colonial Motor Company's Presiden Convicted of Killing Woman.

BALTIMORE, June 2 .- James Walsh, president of the Colonial Motor Company and heir of an estate valued far up in the thousands, was sentenced yesterday to two years in the penitentiary, under his plea of guilty to an indictment chargng manslaughter in running Mrs. Annie ils automobile and killing Mrs. Annie McI. Seymour on the night of March 12. Judge Bond, in the Criminal Court, in passing sentence upon Walsh, said that assing sentence upon Walsh, said that is could see little difference between the insegard of motorists for the safety of pedestrians and a deliberate intention to kill. The Court ruled out, with little comment, the plea of Walsh that he was a sufferer from nervous trouble, which had impaired his mentality. Walsh, who is 29 years old, received the sentence without a tremor and was taken to the pentientiary.

INJUNCTION STOPS SALE

CAUSING OWNER'S SUICIDE

The sale at auction of valuable old manuscripts of the Revolutionary War and historical documents relating to the State of New Hampshire in the auction rooms of Stan. V. Henkels, auction commission merchant, at 1204 Walnut street, has been prevented by an injunction issued by the court.

The lyme swepts were turned over to Mr. Hen, els by Frank C. Moore, of Brooklyn, N. Y., for sale at auction. Officials of the State of New Hampshire learned of the projected sale and laid claim to the documents as being the property of the State. Assistant Attorney General Joseph S. Matthews, of New Hampshire, arrived in the city yesterday and got an injunction stopping the sale. The case will now either be compromised or go to court, with the State of New Hampshire as plaintiff and either Mr. Moore or Mr. Henkels, or both as defendants.

Henkels, or both as defendants.

According to the State officials of New Hampshire, the documents were taken from the State archives illegally by Gov-ernor Weare, first Governor of the State. C. T. Smith, of the Henkels auctioneering firm, said today. They then came into the possession of various persons and trace of them was lost. The first the present officials of the State heard of them was that the papers were bequeathed to Frank C. Moore by a relative of Jacob C. Moore, Jr.
