Italy's Troops Continue to Advance in Drive Across Isonzo-Hold Monte Nero Under Heavy Fire-Command Entire Friuli District.

Trieste Reported in Panic, People Flee-All Shops Closed - Troops Prepare to Make Last Stand as Victor Emmanuel's Troops Destroy Monfalcone.

The Austrians have at last taken the offensive, and in the Carnic Alps are delivering smashing attacks upon the positions recently taken by the Italians. At Monte Croce the assaults were especially strong, but were repulsed, according to the official report of General Cadorna.

On the Friuli frontier the Austrians are also stubbornly resisting the Italian advance, and have made several attacks upon Monte Nero which the Italians hold in conjunction with the entire ridge in this district.

The Italians report that they are making steady but slow progress in their drive across the Isonzo, and have captured several Austrian works defended by heavy artillery.

ROME, June 4. After retiring steadily before the Italian invasion the Austrians have finally assumed the offensive. An official stateent, based upon dispatches from Lieutenant General Count Luigi Cadorna, chief of the general staff, announces that the Austrians are striving violently to retake the positions which they lost to the Italians at Monte Croce. All along the Carnia frontier the Austrians are delivering fierce attacks in the Alpine passes, but everywhere these have been

PROGRESS ACROSS ISONZO.

We deem it expedient to call attention the slow though determined offensive of our troops in the mountains on the left bank of the Isonzo River, overcoming the Austrian works which are strongly defended by big guns. Our troops have progressed steadily through mountain gorges and over precipitious cliffs. Along the frontier of Carnia the Austrians are flercely but unsuccessfully attacking our positions. In Carnia the Austrians are endeavoring without success to retake the position lost to us at Monte Croce. We are now complete masters of Monte

King Victor Emmanuel, who is daily inspecing troops at the front, has personally decorated Lieutenant Peter Clochino, of the Alpine Chasseurs, who led an attack against the Austrian trenches in the Inferno Valley (Vallone Della Miniera), where he showed exceptional gal-lantry. Although wounded, Lieutenant Cleechine kept directing operations and exhorted his men to go forward.

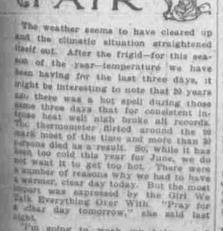

TRIESTE IN TERROR

Refugees from Trieste declare that the Austrian city is in a state of terror and that thousands of the residents have fied, fearing the bombardment by Italian artillery. The theatres, cafes and most of the ahops are closed. There is a great scarnity of food, as the military authorities seized most of the provisions for use of the army.

Only gendarmes have been left to guard the imperial castle at Miramar and High school athletes were busy on Houston Field this afternoon in the sixth annual games known in the past as the quadrangular, but likely in the future as the sentangular contests. Athletes representing Central, Northeast, West Philadelphia, Southern, Germantown and Frankford High Schools and the Trade School lined up for the competitions.

The events were started at 3 o'clock and Dr. Mathew C. O'Brien, of Central High School, was the starter. A great of scholastic followers hand to cheer their favorites in the contests.

The $80-yard run was featured by Mc

Hale, of Central High School, who estab-lished a new record for the distance, his time being 2 minutes 14-5 seconds. The former record for this distance was held by Wolters, of Central High School, 2 minutes 3.2-5 seconds, in 1913. So many dash men were entered in the 100-yard race that three heats were necessary to bring about the proper elimina-tion for the final dash. In all of the qualifying heats contests were tiptop. The first place in the final dash to the tape in the century was won by Ebert, of Northeast High School, who breasted the tape just 10 2-5 seconds after the flash of the starter's gun. Weldell was second, for West Philadelphia High School, and Blackus third, of Central. Smalley, of Central, was in good form

The arrests mark what the police say is the beginning of a crusade against members of the baseball pool which made its appearance here a few weeks ago, and which, according to one of the prisoners, is backed financially by two prominent New York Senators.

An order to arrest every person affiliated with the pool, which, according to the police, has made more than $50,000 since the baseball season started, has been issued by Director of Public Safety Porter.

According to the police, more than 200 additional arrests will be made to-additional moreuw.

The arrests of the three men, one of whom, according to the police, is the general distributing agent of the combine, were made on warrants issued by Magistrate Beaton. After the three men were arrested a squad of detectives, armed with additional warrants, were dis-
