IMPIRE TIM HURST DIES OF POISONING AT MINERSVILLE, PA.

Famous Sport Figure Stricken With Acute Indigestion, Which Developed Into Uremic Symp-

Tim Hurst, the former American League ampire and referee of many of the great fietic battles in this country, died of acute indigestion today at Mineraville, Pa., where he had gone to attend the funeral of a relative. The death of Hurst marks the passing of one of the most famous neures of the national game.

Hurst was provably the most popular and set the most feared umpire ever connected with the national game. He was popular because of his remarkable wit and feared because of his prowess with his flets. Hurst always tried to dedge a fight with wit, but when that failed, he took things in his own hands and proceeded to fight the offending ball claver.

railed, he took things it and proceeded to fight the offending ball player.

In his career as an umpire Hurst had more physical clashes with ball players than any other man ever connected with the game, and it has often been said that he was the only official who could run a same properly when the famous Baltimore Orloles and Cleveland Spiders were playing. These teams were noted for their scrappy playing, and they did not mind roughing an opponent or getting into brawls with spectators.

Hurst's pugnacious disposition was seenfually the cause of his undoing, as he was discharged from the American Legue staff of umpires in 100 for spitting in the face of Eddie Collins and spiking him on the foot at Ehibe Park for protesting a decision in a manner that was not pleasing to Hurst. The famous official respected this set, as he realized that Collins is one of the cleanest players in the same. He would not applogize to save his position, but as soon as he was discharged he went to Collins and offered an apology, which was accepted. It was typical of Hurst, who was always defiant of both players and league officials. Hurst would rather lose a position than admit he was wrong, but would willingly admit his mistake a short time after.

Hurst was born at Ashland, Pa., on June 30, 1855, and started his career as an ampire in the Pennsylvania State League in 1888. In 1858, he went to the Southern League, which, however, disbanded in July, and he finished the season as an ampire in the Western Association. In 1890 he was engaged by Minneapoils as manager. Hurst had a fight with one of the owners and quit this job at the close of the season. Nick Young, president of the National League, signed Hurst as an umpire in 1891, and he continued as a National League, signed Hurst as an impire in 1895, when some of the clubs objected to him because he had refereed several boxing matches during the winter. In 1895 he umpired in the Eastern League under P. T. Powers, now president of the Newark Federal League Club. In the spring of 1898 he was engaged to manage the St. Louis Browns, known as one of the request to the play as a single point, but for once in a way she met an opponent who was even a trifle better in this respect than herself. One season of managing was enough for Hurst. It is said that he licked almost every member of the club during that season for dissipation and multip. He returned to the staff in 1902 and remained until the close of 1904. He was then engaged as an American League umpire by Ban Johnson in 1905. He remained on the American League staff until the Collins incident in 1909. Since that time he has refereed prize fights and has been interested in six-day bicycle and horse racing. He was reputed to be wealthy and has lived a life of case for the past five years.

to bring the game to its present high standard.

"Hurst lost his head at times, and this was eventually his undoing," said Mack, "but he did more to stamp out rowdylsm than any other official I have known. He was fearless and one of the gamest men who ever handled an indicator. In the old days, when an umpire had a harder class of men to deal with, Hurst used ferce when necessary, and I never saw him get the worst of an encounter with a player. And at the same time he was siways a friend of the player and I have also seen him go to the aid of a player who was being mobbed by a spectator more than mee. I can remember one instance in particular where he took an awful licking from a gang of blencherites to protect a player. I am certainly shocked to hear of his death, because I saw him alive and healthy and full of his own humor just a few weeks ago. The game has lost a great man in the death of Tim Hurst." PENN NINE READY

Will Oppose Yale Squad Tomorrow at New Haven.

The University of Pennsylvania base-ball team went through a snappy practice this afternoon in preparation for the third and last game of its series with Yale, which will be played tomorrow at New Haven. The team will go to New Haven tomorrow merning on the 8:04 train. Coach Thomas was afraid this afternoon that he would have to depend on his second-string pitchers. This was chiefly responsible for the loss of the Columbia game on Wednesday, when Wisher was the only pitcher not obliged to take final examinations.

This afternoon Coach Thomas gave the varsity a "war-game" practice, in which sil the men took turns at batting, the coach keeping tabs of the men who were supposed to be on bases. The pitching was done by Thompson, of last year's Princeton team. He is now a student at Pennsylvania, but insligible on account of the one-year residence rule. His curves were hard to hit, and Coach Thomas expects him to be a good twirier next year. The University of Pennsylvania base-

SHIBE PARK, Phila., Pa., June 4-A dark brown taste was handed to the Mackmen early in the proceedings this afternoon. St. Louis scored three runs. so fast it made the heads of the Middle Westerners awim. One might almost say they became excited. Certainly they re-complex for any save an expert. If you are curious see the box score and the account of the game by innings. Of course, errors were present, but there was also some walloping of the pill.

The crowd today was small. Also it was quiet, at least in the early innings. Nobody let out a whimper, not even a howl of rage, when the Browns were hammering over the plate so fast they almost ran over each other. Nobody that is, but the players.

On the field, the game started out to be the noisiest on record at Shibe Park, distinguished for its sylvan quiet. Everybody talked, especially the St. Louis players, who all talked at once.

Hecause of this little habit it was next to impossible to figure out what they were saying. Perhaps it was meant to encourage the pitcher, who happened to be Weilman.

the lead somewhat.

There was some hope prior to the start of play that Stuffy McInnis was to return to the maimed Mackmen. He worked out in practice, but did not start in the game. For the first time since the youth was brought here, Mack's new second sacker was introduced as Malone. His nom de plume of Ryan was cast aside, having been seen through.

The celebrated Rueben came up to bat again in the third. Two men were on base and two out. A fan with a voice like a professional flah-peddier was working overtime on a long-drawn-out repeti-ing overtime on a long-drawn-out repeti-tion of "there he goes." Finally Rube forced Barry. Then there were three out and that chance had sone assimmering.

All the chill had not left the air that filled Shibe Fark today, but in spite of this the fans who never pay to see the game probably remembered that it was the month of June. Accordingly, they came out in goodly numbers on the porch tops over on 20th street. A few more occupied roof seats there and cupled roof seats there and on Somerset street.

The silence of the fane was so noticephic that the single man making any noise finally was induced to moderate his tones on the ground that it might disturb somebody's sleep. But this was not for long. In the fourth inning McAvoy was caught off second and everyterly took up the mournful refrain of the fish peddler. They held the "go" until it sounded like the wall of a sick canine
