85 BRYN MAWR STUDENTS LEADING PROCESSION TO GYMNASIUM WHERE DIPLOMAS WERE AWARDED
This picture was taken when the procession of graduates, students and guests started from the library led by three marshals bearing batons. It was one of the most impressive processions in the history of the Main Line institution. After the marshals came the sophomores, then the juniors and then two more marshals. Then came the resident graduates, two marshals, the alumni, two marshals and the candidates for degrees.

EVEN CHILDREN OF PEACEFUL SWITZERLAND PLAY WAR GAMES
This picture is one of many recently received from abroad which indicate how rampant is the military spirit throughout Europe. Though Swiss boys are trained in the use of the rifle at a very early age, they have not been able to wait for practice time. They are staging here the taking of a hilltop battery by a mimic charge.

THE GILDED HORSES OF VENICE DISAPPEAR IN FACE OF WAR
The famous horses which have adorned for a century the principal portal of the Cathedral of St. Mark's at Venice have been removed to a place of safety because of the fear they might be damaged by hostile aviators. They probably once adorned the Triumphal Arch of Nero and afterward that of Trajan. In 1797 they were carried to Paris by Napoleon, but in 1815 they were restored.

WHEN JOHN TOMAN WED MARY McDERMOTT IN PORT RICHMOND
The donkey in the foreground is none other than McTammany's celebrated animal, with his chauffeur, "Jimmy" Byrne, grasping his bridle on the right. 'Tis the wedding party on its way to St. Ann's Church. Inside the jitney chaise are the bride and maid of honor, with the groom and best man on the front seat.

LITTLE ITALY DISCUSSES THE WAR, WHICH HAS NOW BECOME A PERSONAL MATTER
On the bulletin board are seen pictures of soldiers, cartoons and symbolic representations of Italy in arms. The flag, too, is prominently displayed. At such rendezvous gather the old Garibaldians now in this country and the young manhood which may soon leave to take its part in the fighting.
