Posed as Wife of Noted Men and Practiced Unique Swindle.

Captain of Detectives Cameron was advised today by the Chief of Police of New Brunswick, N. J., that a woman wanted in this city for passing bad checks and posing as the wife of various noted men had been captured. She is now being held to await requisition to New York, where she also is wanted on similar charges. and the local police will put in a claim for her when she is released by the New York authorities.

The woman once went under the name of Buth Curry in this city. She obtained employment as a nurse last November with Mrs. A. W. Jacobs, at 2040 Mount Vernon street. According to the police, she obtained a checkbook in the house and cashed two checks, one for $60 and the other for $100. Then she disappeared. While at the house she told Mrs. Jacobs that she was a noted author.

The woman next was heard from at wo West Philadelphia homes, where. after obtaining work as a nurse or house-keeper, she got the checkbooks and cashed checks. She then left this city and got into some trouble in New York which she disappeared and was found at New Brunswick.

Her method, the police say, was to answer an advertisement for a nurse or housekeeper, and after she got a job to say she was the wife of Richard Harding Davis, the author. In 1999 and in 1910 she was sentenced to prison terms in this city. The police at that time caught her through a fake advertisement that she answered. The same plan was used by the New Brunswick police, who learned she was in that city.

When the woman was sentenced in this

When the woman was sentenced in this city in 1910 her term was one year. She served a few weeks, the police say, and then feigned insanity. Physicians, hood-winked, sent her to the Norristown asylum. After two months in that in-stitution she was discharged as cured.

U. S. NOW IS MONEY CENTRE OF WORLD

in London When Sterling Exchange Market Falls.

The United States now is the world's money centre. This was amply shown by the drop in the sterling exchange market in London yesterday to the lowest point ever reached, $4.76%. In other words, this means that the American dollar, when represented in the terms of British coinage, is worth $1.024. At the low figure sterling exchange is 10 cents below parity, or about By per cent. dis-

The decline in sterling exchange, which has been going on for some time past, with new low records being made almost daily in the last few days. Is due to the heavy purchases of ammunition and other supplies by the warring nations of Europe and to the constantly increasing trade balance of the United States, which, at the end of the fiscal year, June 30, will stand at about one billion dollars. That is, the United States exports will have exceeded imports from the European nations by that amount.

While the sterling exchange market was While the sterling exchange market was a trifle higher today. Wall street realizes that something must be done to put rates back on a normal basis. In order to accomplish this, gold has been imported from various parts of the globe by the million of dollars worth, but this has had no effect, except for the temporary strengthening of rates. With 12,500,000 of gold brought in from Canada today, the gold imports from all sources since the first of the year now tand at $108,-915,000, and of this amount $70,700,000 has of gold brought in from Canada today, the gold imports from all sources since the first of the year now stand at $108,-915,000, and of this amount $76,700,000 has come from Canada, where it was taken from the vaults of the Bank of Ottawa. the branch of the Bank of England.

Before the outbreak of the war, the United States made large gold shipments to Canada for the account of the Bank of England, the amount being about $102,-000,000, the most of which has now come back. These outwardbound shipments were made when the United States owed Europe a large amount of money, esti-mated at the time at about $700,000,000. The establishment of large credits by the European Governments here for the purchase of war supplies and to strengthen the foreign exchange market are again being talked of, but bankers here are waiting for European bankers to take the initiative.

It is just as important to have skilful, professional service for the correction of minor eye defects as for the more serious cases. Minor cases, unless properly treated, become serious. And fortunately for the public in general, the principal work of Ocullats the world over is the correction, in time, of eye troubles which some might regard as unimportant.

Your Coullat will prescribe.

Your Oculist will prescribe glasses if glasses are the necessary treatment. Your prescription should then be taken to an Optician who is careful, painstaking and skilful and who specializes in prescription work. Your eyes are worth proper treatment.
