Roger Townsend, of Merion.

Joe Armstrong, former Minnesota champion, now a member of Merion, started off well against the veteran, J. R. Carpenter, Jr., of the Philadelphia Cricket Club. His speedy ground strokes and pretty play at the net seemed to give him an advantage over the steady game of his older opponent.

J. S. Disston, Jr., the U. of P. star, started off with a rush against R. C. Mason, of Merion, and seemed assured of a straight set victory.

From Craig Biddle's play in the early afternoon he seemed to have rather an advantage over "Alec" Thayer, 1911 city champion, though as usual Thayer won many points on his beautiful backhand driving. The Merion star, however, was steadler and rarely lost points on errors.

GIANTS HAVE HAD SORRIEST PITCHING IN NATIONAL LEAGUE

By GRANTLAND RICE

The Duffer Interlects

(After watching shots leave the club-heads of Gil Nichols Chick Evans, Walter Hagen and F. Oulmet.) The Duffer stood beside the tee

And watched the ball careen

And watched the ball careen
Three hundred yards upon the line
Along the Ancient Green;
He saw them swipe with wood and iron,
With brassis and with spoon,
A white streak always on the spin
Against the ckie of Juns.

And drifting from the tee,
He saw them plunk a mashle pitch
And sink it for a "three";
He saw them plunk a mashle pitch
Two hundred yards or more,
And holes that cost him "six" or "eight."

He saw them grab in "four." Shot after shot upon the line He saw them drive and pitch; White streaks against the open sky

Beyond the guarding ditch; Until, bewildered by the whirt Of pars so neatly apun, He turned away and merely said-"Aw hell, it can't be done."

The Giants, as proclaimed in these dis-patches, have been hitting the ball harder than any other entry in the National or American Leagues. They have an average as bat beyond the Tigers. Braves, Red Sox, Dodgers-one only a point or two shy of sid-time Mackian marks, when Connie's pulverizing ma-china was at its best. Which, coupled with their present position, is a terrible knock on the pitching they have received all year. It is doubtful if any ball club in major league history ever drew worse pitching than Perritt, Marquard, Mathewson and even Tesreau have been yielding since April.

For when a club can lead a league at bat by a fairly thick margin and its pitchers are dragging even this offense down into last place, the answer is fairly But Would This Be Neutral?

Sir-I know Harvard has a good crew, but after watching Yale take a workout the only chance I see for the Crimson is to Garmanize the situation and torpedo the Yale shell just before the race. Otherwise there will be nothing to it.

"Is it sportsmanlike," queries a reader,
"to cut a tennis ball?" This depends on whether or not the cutter uses a racquet or a knife for the sprightly enterprise.

"Speaker, Hooper and Lewis — the greatest outfield in the same," says an exchange. Possibly, But we'll take Cobb. Crawford and Veach for the first club we buy and make an attempt to stagger through before the next drafting period basins.

They look to be the best rounded machine of them all, with every cog in the machine in place. But as conditions stand now, the three best clubs in baseball are White Sox, Tigers and Red Sox, who look to be several degrees stronger than the first three entries in the N. I.
