The German-Austrian armies have since that time forced the enemy back until the Russian grip on Galica has become greatly weakened. One army of the Czar has been carried back from the Donajec River to Lemberg, a distance of about 140 miles, or approximately the distance from Washington to Philadelphia. The Teutons, after driving the Russians out of Przemysl, are now seeking to throw a circle round Lemberg, which Austria lost to the Czar's men last September. Teutonic drives are in progress toward Lemberg from the north at Zolkiew, from the west at Grodek and from the south at Mikolajow.
