

THAW DECLARED SANE BY STATE COMMISSION

General Streeter Testifies Investigators Made Thorough Study of His Condition—Report Admitted as Evidence.

NEW YORK, June 28.—Harry K. Thaw scored heavily today in his fight to prove his sanity before Justice Hendrick and a jury, evidence being admitted that the state of New Hampshire found White's slayer to be a sane man after his escape from Matteawan Asylum.

General Frank S. Streeter, of Concord, N. H., who was chairman of the commission appointed by Federal Judge Aldrich in 1914 to examine Thaw as to his sanity, swore that he firmly believed the prisoner was sane. The commission found Thaw sane.

The state failed to shake Streeter on cross-examination. Deputy Attorney General Becker attempted to show that as a sane man General Streeter did not know enough about paranoia to judge Thaw's condition. Streeter replied that he was the defender of the late Mary Baker Eddy, Christian Science leader, in her famous trial on the same charge.

Streeter said he received about $100 for his work on the Thaw commission, and that the other members received $1000 each. Thaw, he said, paid for this.

A sharp clash between counsel occurred when Becker objected to reading into the record the sanity commission's report. Justice Hendrick ruled that the commission's report would be admitted as evidence. This commission, on January 6, 1914, gave the slayer of Stanford White a clean bill of health regarding his sanity. A vivid word picture of the dramatic killing of White in Madison Square Roof Garden nine years ago was given by General Streeter, who said Thaw told the commission that it was when he first proposed to marry her that he broke out with the story about the architect that finally led him to shoot White.

Streeter testified that Thaw told the commission the story of the killing unemotionally, and said he said he was sorry a moment after it occurred.

"Thaw told us," said Streeter, "that as he and Evelyn were going down the aisle she leaned over and whispered 'there's that beast White.' Then Thaw walked over to the table where White sat, pulled his gun and shot him. He broke out with a moment later to reassure the crowded room. Thaw told us that he knew he had done wrong instantly and regretted it."

General Streeter said he firmly believed that Thaw is sane.

MISS WANAMAKER MISS GURNEE MUNN'S BRIDE

Continued from Page One. Alice Gray and Miss Frances Moore, of Washington. Two flower girls were Miss Pauline Munn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Munn, and Miss Auton de Heeren, the bride's niece.

The gown which the bride wore was a wonderful imported creation of satin tulle and brocade. It arrived in this country only last Friday on board the Atlantic, which also brought John Wanamaker, Jr., home from abroad in time to attend his sister's wedding.

The bridegroom had as his best man his brother, Charles A. Munn, and the ushers were John Wanamaker, Jr. of this city; W. Rhineland Stewart, Jr., Lee Gwynn, Gustavus Breen, Hamilton Flib, Jr., Alfred S. Dabney, Q. A. Shaw, McKean and Robert F. Sterling, all of New York city; Reginald Broadman and Charles D. Amory, of Boston, Ector O. Munn, of Washington, and Thomas Blumer, of Providence.

After the church ceremony members of the bridal party and guests motored out to Lindenhurst, the country home of John Wanamaker, in Jenkintown.

At the gates of the estate the party was met by a band, and to the strains of wedding marches found places at tables scattered about the lawn and under a large pergola which had been erected for the serving of refreshments.

Motion pictures were taken of the scenes. SOME OF THE GUESTS. Among the guests were the following: Mrs. Charles A. Munn, Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Munn, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Paul Denckla Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Barclay Warburton, Mr. and Mrs. Norman MacLeod, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Jackson Jorris, Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Herwig, Mr. and Mrs. Cath. F. Fox, Mr. and Mrs. Caleb F. Fox, Jr., Miss Margaret A. Herwig, Mrs. William Canon Waters, Mr. Herman F. Kremer, Mrs. E. R. Hart, Mr. and Mrs. William Elynn Wellington Martin, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. E. Roberts, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred G. Clay, Edward Norris, Mr. and Mrs. Clement Rescoe Walverton, Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Day, Mr. and Mrs. John C. Gilpin, Mr. and Mrs. John Shilley Dixon, Mr. and Mrs. A. Howard Pennock, Mr. and Mrs. George H. Horwarth, Mr. and Mrs. William Elynn Sullivan, Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Smoot, Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Smoot, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Van Valkenburg.

THE PRINCE AND HER CHAUFFEUR HURT IN CRASH. Pinned Beneath Auto When It Is Hit by Another Car Near Ambler.

Mrs. Phebe W. Downs, wife of Dr. Norton Downs, of Forkhooker, Pa., Three Tuna, Pa., and Henry Crook, a chauffeur, were seriously hurt yesterday in an automobile collision at Broad Ave., Pa., near Ambler. The car overturned pinning Mrs. Downs and the chauffeur beneath it.

Mrs. Elizabeth Downs, 18 years old, and Miss Altee Downs, 12 years old, who were riding with their mother, were thrown out of the car, but escaped unharmed. Mrs. Downs had several ribs broken and Crook's back was hurt.

The accident occurred while the Downs family was on their way to the Protestant Episcopal Church of the Good Shepherd, Rosemont. Doctor Downs' auto was out of order, and for that reason his family was riding in the car owned by Henry Pratt McKean, a brother of Mrs. Downs.

WANAMAKER-MUNN WEDDING PARTY LEAVING ST. MARK'S CHURCH

The picture was taken just after the ceremony at noon today. Among those shown are Norman McLeod, at the extreme left; John Wanamaker, with Mrs. Charles A. Munn, Jr., in the foreground; Barclay H. Warburton (in silk hat), and Charles A. Munn, Jr., brother of the bridegroom, at the extreme right. Inset is the bride, who was Miss Marie Louise Wanamaker, with her husband, Gurnee Munn.

CITY HAS RIGHT TO CUT THROUGH KIRKBRIDE'S

Judge Sulzberger Rules 44th Street May Be Extended Across Asylum's Grounds.

The first victory in the fight of West Philadelphia for access to Market street through Kirkbride's was gained today when President Judge Sulzberger, in Court of Common Pleas No. 2, ruled that the city has the right to run 44th street through the grounds of the high insane asylum, from Market street to Haverford avenue.

Mr. Johnson acquiesced in the opening of the street when it was conceded by the City Solicitor that the hospital authorities would have the right to put in a claim for the ground they already had dedicated to the two thoroughfares, Powelton avenue on the east and 40th street on the west of the hospital.

EMILY ACKER NEAR DEATH WHEN HER HORSE BOLTS

Park Guard and Motorist in Sensational Riverside Drive Rescue.

Miss Emily Acker, daughter of A. Lincoln Acker, 1814 Venable street, was saved from possible death or serious injury yesterday by a motorist and a park guard when her saddle horse became frightened and bolted along the Riverside drive.

Miss Acker, who is 19 years old, was riding with a friend when her horse bolted and ran down the drive amid a maze of fast-moving automobiles. Park Guard Furman saw the girl in danger and called a passing motorist, W. S. Coleman, of 212 Chestnut street, who speeded after the horse with Furman on the mud guard.

When abreast of the plunging animal, Furman leaped far out and clutched the bride. Coleman reduced the speed of the machine, and the horse was forced to stop. Miss Acker, who was none the worse for her experience, praised the nerve and strength of Furman and thanked Coleman for the part he had played in her rescue.

DETECTIVE'S SECRET OUT

Meant to Surprise Friends With News of Marriage, But Plan Fails.

When Charles F. McGinty, a District detective attached to the 29th and Federal streets police station, quietly married Miss Clara Ocher, 1728 South 24th street, May 5, he intended to keep the wedding secret and spring a surprise on his fellow policemen and friends at the wedding of his sister, next Wednesday morning.

McGinty met his bride in February when he was working on a case near her home. They were married by the Rev. Charles Conway, in St. Edmund's Catholic Church, 234 and Millin streets.

All went well in the matter of secrecy until McGinty suddenly suffered an attack of acute indigestion and lay unconscious in the Polyclinic Hospital, several days ago. Mrs. McGinty became apprehensive and went to the station house to learn from Sergeant John Freeman the whereabouts of her husband. Then the secret was out.

MYSTERIOUSLY KILLED IN HIS OWN GARAGE

Atlantic City Police Investigating Death of Wealthy Contractor.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 28.—Police officials are not altogether satisfied with the first theory that Randolph Young, a wealthy contractor found dying in his garage on North Ohio avenue, late last night, was crushed to death by an automobile truck. Young was pinned between a truck with its machinery in motion and the walls of the garage when a neighbor discovered his fearful plight after a single outcry.

The assumption is that Young started the machinery and was hurled against the wall when the truck jumped forward. He was secretary of the Law Enforcement League, which has been agitating the suppression of all forms of Sunday amusements, not excluding moving pictures.

BIBLE SCHOOL PUPILS MOURN SLAIN TEACHER

Many Children of Devon at Funeral of Miss Hattie Watson, Butler's Victim.

The closing chapter of the murder of Miss Hattie M. Watson will be enacted at 4 o'clock this afternoon, when children of Devon and most of the nearby towns, with the congregation of little St. John's Presbyterian Church, will attend the funeral of Miss Watson in the home in which she was murdered by a negro butler on Saturday, Berkeley road and Fairfield avenue. It is the home of F. E. Hainsting, whose sister-in-law Miss Watson was.

A pall of sadness hung over Miss Watson's Sunday school class yesterday. Most of the children, when told that she was dead, cried heartily, and one brought some money for flowers for her grave. Not only the children missed their Sunday school teacher, it seemed that all Devon was in mourning for her. Miss Watson was superintendent of the primary department of the Sunday school and had attended for more than 17 years.

Sylmar Olive oil—worthy the San Francisco grand prize

Sylmar has been crowned at San Francisco as the queen of olive oils. Just those qualities that made us first select it as the olive oil we were willing to recommend to our customers, induced the judges to award to this superb product, the Grand Prize for merit.

We are pleased principally because this again confirms our judgment. It is by no means the first award for superior merit that Sylmar has won—but it proves that Sylmar is prepared for your table under the most perfect, approved sanitary methods.

25c, 50c and $1 bottle. Royal Olives are soft gelatine capsules filled with this same superb oil. Very agreeable to take—very convenient for travelers.
