

BRITISH LABOR SHIRKS DUTY, LLOYD-GEORGE CHARGES IN COMMONS

Work on Munitions Far Behind Nation's Need, Minister Declares—Ten New Arsenals to Be Established.

LONDON, July 28.—The House of Commons last night decided to adjourn today until September 14, but before this decision was reached the members heard Minister of Munitions Lloyd-George make the following charges:

The munition contractors are behind time in their contracts. Labor is not keeping to its agreement to suspend trade union rules during the emergency.

Four-fifths of the munition-making machinery of England is not employed full time and only one-fifth of it is working at night.

There cannot be an increased output from old works for weeks and perhaps months.

From the other side of the ledger were entered the following credits: That the Government is shortly to establish 10 new national arsenals in addition to the 16 co-operative factories already under Government control.

Forty thousand volunteer workmen are at work and 100,000 are to be utilized, among these being skilled workmen who are to be brought back from the front.

A substantial increase in the output of shells and other munitions from new establishments will largely be made within a few weeks.

Commons adopted the Government's proposal to adjourn without going to the division lobbies and the Government itself emerged from a fiery assault unscathed and with the approval of a majority of the members.

Sir Henry Dalziel, Liberal member for Kirkcaldy, and Sir Arthur B. Markham, Liberal from the Mansfield division of Nottinghamshire, were the chief critics of the Government.

Sir Henry explained that he was not satisfied with the progress of the Allies' troops in Flanders, insisting that the great advance promised for the spring and summer had not been realized.

He asked why, in the Dardanelles, there had been a bombardment by the Allies' fleet without the co-operation of the land forces.

Frankly announcing that the confidence he had had in the Government nine months ago had been completely shattered, Sir Henry also asked if any one in authority in the War Office had been "cajoled" for the failure to supply sufficient munitions.

The Government's delay in using asphyxiating gas against the Germans also was criticized, and the Government also held responsible for the discontent among the workers, due to its failure to deal with the situation.

Markham's contribution was that the public had lost confidence in the War Office, which had proved "miserably inefficient in the conduct of the war."

British self-sufficiency, which has been considered it certain since the outbreak of the war that everything would come out all right, received a rude jolt when Minister of Munitions Lloyd-George spoke.

Coolly, almost coldly, the Minister informed the Commons that the contractors for munitions are already woefully behind in their contracts and that it will be weeks or months before the country can hope for any substantial output from new works.

Four-fifths of the machinery in the armament works is not working full time, and only one-fifth is being used at night.

It was altogether a discouraging picture drawn by the speaker. That affected only present conditions; for the future, he was much more optimistic. He caused a cheer when he announced that at least 50 men, all first-class business men, had volunteered their services for the Ministry of Munitions, the majority of whom would serve without pay.

In giving the details for the establishing of 10 new arsenals, Mr. Lloyd-George said that the scheme had originated in his recent conference with the French Minister of Munitions at Boulogne-sur-Mer, when the chief officers of the British and French artillery met and compared notes.

This new program, he admitted, would very severely tax the engineering resources of the country for some months and the exports of the existing armament firms. He would start to equip the arsenals and the new munition volunteer army, and skilled men brought home from the front would provide the labor.

He also intended to employ women munition makers in the arsenals. The new establishments, he thought, would be ready in a few weeks. They would enable England to equip her armies in such a way that the best armament equipment would be unable to claim the slightest superiority.

GERMANY PROMISES TO SEND ARMY THROUGH SERVA TO TURKS' AID

Reinforcements for Ottoman Fighting on Gallipoli Peninsula Pledged Within Month, Enver Pasha Tells Troops.

ATHENS, July 28.—Enver Pasha issued this message to his troops on the Gallipoli Peninsula before the last big attack:

"Soldiers, you will fight with all your strength. At least, you will resist as long as possible, for I can promise you that within a month's time I shall be able to send you to your homes. Servia cannot now last longer than a month. Within that time the German armies will crush her and will come to our aid."

Great pressure has been put on the Germans by the Young Turks to make them fulfil a promise to send German armies through the Balkans to the assistance of the Turkish army.

The Young Turks regard the achievement of that plan as the only hope for the Turkish Empire in Europe. A prominent military expert who has just completed a tour of the Balkan States and who has lately been in Austria says that such an effort will be the next great move on the part of the Austrians and Germans.

Should this cross move be made it will have immediate and important results in this corner of Europe. It is permitted to say that the Austrians are moving rapidly, and the Germans' plans may quite possibly be nipped in the bud by a surprising move, of which the public should hear at an early date.

LONDON, July 28.—The Earl of Crewe, Lord President of the Council, replying in the House of Lords yesterday to a question by Viscount Blyth concerning the killing of Christians in Armenia by the Turks, said that information received at the Foreign Office showed that such crimes lately had increased both in number and in degree of atrocity.

The Earl of Crewe contended that the unmitigated curse, both to the Christian and Moslem populations, "They have shown a most complete cynical disregard for the country and the people who inhabit it."

ESCAPED LUNATIC DESTROYS STATUARY IN ITALIAN CHURCH

Sent Back to Philadelphia Hospital After Hard Tussle.

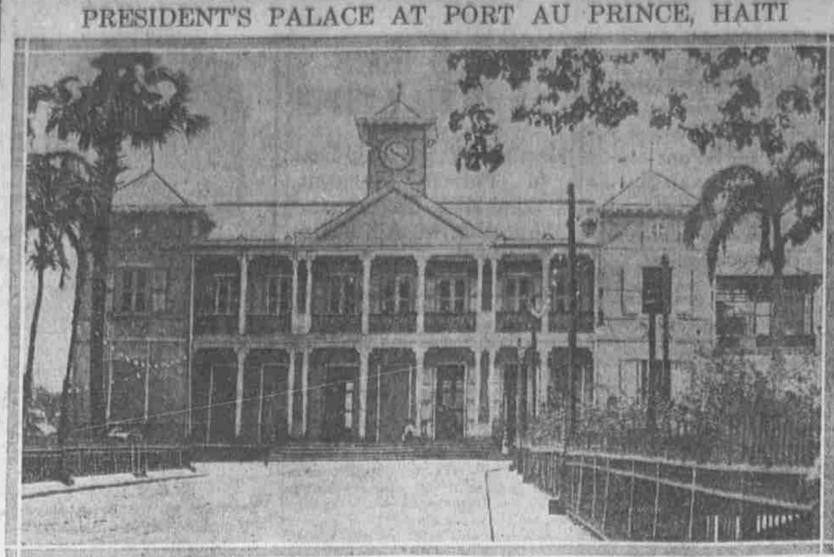

"Little Italy" today was thrown into a fever of excitement when an escaped lunatic from the Philadelphia Hospital broke refuge in a church at 11th and Christian streets, and was overpowered only after a violent struggle with three policemen.

The man, Frank Ranagano, 23 years old, slipped out of the hospital during last night's storm, and, after hours of wandering, appeared at his former home, 731 Christian street. His cousin, Julia Ranagano, who was in bed, was frightened when he clambered through a second-story window and demanded $10.

He called her father, Joseph Ranagano, and brother, Ralph, who quieted him. His uncle took him to a store at 8th and Christian streets to replace his muddy clothing with a new suit.

While he was changing his clothes Ranagano slipped out, and, followed by a large crowd, ran into a church at 11th and Christian streets. Ranagano was demolishing a candleabra and statuary when Policeman Winters, of the 7th and Carpenter streets station, entered the church and dragged him out. Winters, who was hardly a match for the man, was being handled roughly when Police-men Gallagher and Lints came to his rescue.

Ranagano was committed to the hospital nine months ago.

It was from this palace that President Guillaume Sam fled after ordering the execution of 160 political prisoners. He took refuge in the French Legation whence he was dragged and killed.

WHITMAN ORDERS SHERIFF TO DISARM AUSTRIANS

Foreigners Said to Have Been Carrying Loaded Weapons.

ALBANY, July 28.—Governor Whitman yesterday ordered Sheriff William H. Stitt, of Little Falls, to disarm members of various Austrian and Slavonic organizations there of rifles.

The weapons were being carried in parades and, according to information that reached the authorities, later taken to the front. Investigation proved, it was reported to the Governor by George H. Bunce, a delegate to the Constitutional Convention from Herkimer, that some of the rifles were loaded.

There are two laws under which the Governor could order the men disarmed. One provides that only regularly constituted bodies of men such as the militia shall carry arms, and the other makes it a felony for any person not a citizen of the United States to carry arms without a license.

WOMAN DRINKS POISON

Child's Promptness, However, In Calling Police May Save Life.

The prompt action of Marie Fisher, her 11-year-old grandchild, in calling the police, may be the means of saving the life of a woman who attempted to commit suicide today by drinking poison.

Marie saw her grandmother drain a bottle of poison, stagger and fall to the floor, and called the police of the 20th and Berks streets station, who took the woman to St. Joseph's Hospital. Physicians at the hospital said the prompt action of the child may save the woman's life.

The police say Mrs. Hinkle was despondent because of a long illness, and that the act followed a visit to an invalid sister in the Philadelphia Hospital, about whom she worried.

Lafferty, the president, has announced that he will produce 200 witnesses in court if necessary.

U. S. MARINES PUT END TO HAITI DISORDER

Arrival of American Bluejackets Cows Revolutionists in Port-au-Prince.

PORT AU PRINCE, July 28.—Haiti's bloody revolutionists were cowed and inactive today. United States marines and bluejackets from the cruiser Washington, numbering 500 men, surrounded the United States Legation, the French Legation and the United States Consulate, and the collier Jason is on the way from Guantanamo, Cuba, with reinforcements.

The revolutionists' lust for revenge following the execution of 150 prisoners by order of Governor Oscar and President Guillaume is expected today. The arrival of the French cruiser Descartes is expected today. The French Minister, M. Girard, is said to have reported, in an angry message to his government, the action of the mob yesterday in dragging the Haitian President from the French consulate, where he had taken refuge.

No resistance was offered at the landing of the marines and bluejackets. A detachment of the latter were placed in the Hotel Montaigne, overlooking the city and bay. Foreigners came from behind closed doors to cheer the United States troops as they marched through the streets.

A wireless station was erected on the roof of the American Legation. Americans here believe the events of yesterday will result in more drastic action by the United States Government than ever before. A new government established by the United States and controlled by Americans is the thing many want.

U. S. MARINES CONTROL TWO PORTS IN HAITI

WASHINGTON, July 28.—American marines are now in control of the two important ports of the island of Haiti, Port au Prince and Cape Haitien.

The Eagle took the place of the cruiser Washington at Cape Haitien, being of light draft and able to enter the harbor.

LU LU CARAVAN LAUGHS AT RAILROAD WASHOUT

Artie Bittng, as Charley Chaplin, Wins Amateur Prize

DENVER, Col., July 28.—The cloud-burst and tornado which caused a washout on the Denver and Rio Grande Railroad this side of Canon City held up the Lu Lu Caravan until 10 o'clock today. Fortunately, however, the track was repaired in jigtime, considering the damage, and the Philadelphia Shriners missed only the five-hour stop at Colorado Springs.

Myrtle Shriners reached Denver on time at 6 o'clock, toured the city in sight-seeing cars and were greeted by members of El Label Temple here. They leave here at 3 o'clock for Des Moines, which they will reach at 11:20 tomorrow.

Potentate Kendrick met in Denver a man of his own name, W. Freeland Kendrick. Each has a brother named Charles H. Kendrick.

The delay in Canon City was enlivened last night by a show in a motion picture theatre. Four hundred Lu Lus attended. Artie Bittng, made up as Charley Chaplin, won first amateur prize from four others. Bittng, a screaming comedian, is the life of the Caravan.

COMPANY MAY BUY LAND

Bethlehem Steel Negotiating for Purchase of Steel Mill Ground.

WILMINGTON, Del., July 28.—It became known today that the Bethlehem Steel Company is negotiating for additional land adjoining its plant at New Castle and intends to enlarge it. All the New Castle plants are at work on war orders and there are no houses for rent there, a number of the employees being compelled to live in Wilmington.

The Baldt Company has a contract for a large number of locomotive frames for one of the foreign governments, and the other plants are also busy with various orders.

WINDSOR, Vt., July 28.—President Wilson was worried today about his 4-month-old granddaughter, Ellen Wilson McAdoo, daughter of Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. McAdoo, so he sent his personal physician, Dr. Cary T. Grayson, to the McAdoo home, at North Haven, Me., to attend the child. The McAdoo trained nurse joined Doctor Grayson at Boston. The baby is said to be suffering from dietary trouble.

DOCTOR PRODUCES DRUGS CUT OFF BY WAR IN EUROPE

Physician Solves Shortage Problem by Growing Plants.

A physician's hobby has, through the war in Europe, become the means of saving his hospital much money. Dr. John A. Borsmann, of the Hahnemann Hospital, has made it his chief interest to grow drug-producing plants, and as a result he is now supplying from 10 to 20 hospital at prices ranging from 10 to 20 per cent of the cost on the open market.

Doctor Borsmann grows various plants and small trees on a farm near the city. From them he has been successful in deriving belladonna and atropine, hyoscyamus for use in nerve cases, digitalis, hydrastis and pulsatilla, all of which are not generally produced in this country.

While there is no imminent danger of a shortage of drugs in this country, prices on many of them are nearly prohibitive, physicians say. An idea of what Doctor Borsmann has saved the Hahnemann Hospital by selling the drugs at cost may be had from the list of present prices: Belladonna, which sold at 10 cents a pound, now costs $1.50 a pound; hyoscyamus has jumped from 10 cents a pound to $1.50 a pound; pulsatilla from 20 cents a pound to $1.50 a pound; digitalis from 10 cents to $1.50 a pound; atropine from $5 an ounce to $20 an ounce.

DELAWARE FARMERS VISIT STATE COLLEGE

Two Thousand Hear Addresses, Inspect Experimental Plots and Lunch on Grounds.

NEWARK, Del., July 28.—It is estimated that 2000 farmers are attending the Farmers' Day celebration being held at the Delaware College Experiment Farm today.

This morning was spent going over the farm, with the experiment station staff, viewing the various experimental plots and asking for information. The visitors brought their lunch and the college furnished coffee and lemonade.

At an open-air meeting interesting speeches were made. Dr. Samuel Chiles Mitchell, president of Delaware College, made his first address to the farmers of the State, a plea for support for the college. Professor Harry Hayward, dean of the Agricultural Department, spoke of the work being accomplished there. Professors Charles A. McCue and A. E. Grantham outlined the accomplishments in animal husbandry, horticulture and agronomy.

Eugene S. Shalleron, Samuel H. Derby and Charles Barker, of New Castle, Kent and Sussex counties, respectively, told of the advantage which the college experiment station had been to their counties.

At this was Governor's Day at the mill camp, Governor Miller was unable to be present here. A pleasing feature of the day, however, was the visit of the Wilmington Chamber of Commerce trade boosters.
