

GREAT CAVALRY FORCE ENGAGED IN 'BATTLE' FOR STATE'S CAPITOL

Biggest Assemblage of Mounted Troops in North Since Civil War Engaged in Maneuver at Mt. Gretna.

MT. GRETTA, Pa., July 30.—Military cavalrymen from Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Maryland met today in the country surrounding their first joint instruction camp here in the biggest assemblage of mounted troops staged north of the Mason and Dixon Line since the Civil War.

The maneuver began at daybreak this morning, when the several units of the camp left on diverging routes. There had been no night bivouac, with the troops occupying their shelter tents, it being the purpose of the commanding officer, Colonel W. C. Wilder, 5th United States Cavalry, to conserve the strength of both troops and horses for the strenuous work planned for today. This change of original plans was a fortunate circumstance for the cavalrymen, for there was a heavy electrical and rainstorm last night. As the several units moved out of camp, both men and horses appeared fit for a test of skill and endurance, and it was not long afterward that they entered upon the first real stage of the maneuver.

Pennsylvania is pitted against New Jersey and Maryland in today's engagement. Colonel John P. Wood, commanding his own 1st Cavalry, is directing the operations of a force which represents the advance force of a superior invading army aiming to take Harrisburg, while an inferior cavalry force, acting as the rear guard of an army aiming to take up a defensive position before the State Capitol, is seeking to retard its progress. The force impeding the advance of the Pennsylvania is in command of Major John Bryant, commander of the New Jersey squadron. The schedule calls for the completion of the war game some time during the late afternoon.

The sun had not yet climbed over the hills when the troops, under the critical eye of the United States Army observers and umpires, began showing the results of their training under the earlier stages of instruction camp. The portage of the messenger work had been impressed on the guardsmen, and they combed the Lebanon and Conewago Valleys in searching out the "enemy" during the preliminary stages of the engagement. Many sharp brushes between the hostile patrols occurred, troopers were "wounded" and others taken prisoners. Strenuous had been laid on "first aid" and the "wounded" were being properly "marked" and bandaged before being sent back. Numerous squads on both sides were declared "out of action" by the umpires, and they became prisoners.

TRY TO OUST OFFICIAL

Cape May County Prosecutor Must Face Court.

Justice Garretson, sitting in the New Jersey Supreme Court, Camden, today issued an order compelling former Prosecutor Matthew Jefferson, of Cape May County, to show cause why he should not be ousted from office. Arguments will be heard at Trenton, September 8.

Jefferson was convicted last June of malfeasance in office. He was sentenced to serve a term of two years in the State prison. He is now out on bail pending an appeal to the higher courts. Since his conviction Jefferson has refused to resign. Recently Attorney General Wesscott instructed County Prosecutor Kraft, of Camden, to institute proceedings against Jefferson in bringing about his dismissal.

DARBY "COPS" AND SHERIFF STAGE THRILLING SCENARIO AND BATTLE

Guardians of Law Mistake Each Other's Identity and Lively Chase for "Stolen" Auto Ensues—Shots are Exchanged Until "Villains" and Hero Realize Joke.

Somewhere who is looking for fame and fortune by writing a first-class Broadway farce to run at least a year and who is scouring his mind for a plot cannot do better than set the scene in Upper Darby, record the event of a certain June 28 and take as his heroes and villains the police of the neighborhood.

The plot was unfolded yesterday at a hearing behind closed doors before Upper Darby's nine commissioners. Fortunately, the windows were open and the facts are new public property. The commissioners were trying to find out why Policemen of Morris Block and Charles Wagonman, of Darby, and Constable William F. Thompson, of Haverford, should shoot at each other. Block and Wagonman were summoned by Magistrate Edward Martin to come to the rescue of a woman who needed assistance near the home of John Lewis, according to the testimony. They went in Block's car. While they were looking for the woman Lewis saw the vacant car and telephoned to Constable Thompson, of Haverford, to remove it because somebody stole it. Thompson started to remove the Block car, leaving his own by the road. Block and Wagonman returned and, thinking somebody was stealing their car, jumped in Thompson's car and started in pursuit. Thompson looked back and, thinking his car was being stolen, opened fire, who was hit by the shot. The document came in Barney Flynn's hand, where the fight got close enough for the opposing forces to recognize each other.

Block and Wagonman's avowedly to assist the woman, who, by the way, had not appeared in the episode, is the direct result of an edit in Upper Darby against appointing an automobile in that locality. The car was standing in a machine in $5 per week, and the costs are $1.50 per person.

HOSIERY MEN SAY U. S. MUST HAVE HIGH TARIFF AFTER WAR

Temporary Prosperity Today Will Give Way to Fierce European Competition at End of Conflict, Manufacturers Assert.

U. S. WILL BE FLOODED WITH HOSIERY AFTER THE WAR

Manufactured goods and hosiery will sweep from Germany and other nations toward this country when peace is declared, manufacturers say.

Only a protective tariff, according to hosiery manufacturers, will prevent a depression in their business.

Manufacturers say that Germany had more manufacturing power on hand than she needed when the war began.

Extreme depression in the hosiery industry of the United States, according to prominent Philadelphia hosiery manufacturers, will follow the conclusion of peace in Europe, unless a sane and adequate protective tariff law is enacted by Congress. Leading hosiery manufacturers urged today that a high protective tariff law should be enacted to check the flood of manufactured goods that will sweep from Germany and other European nations toward this country. Exports of millions of dollars' worth of hosiery and other goods from Germany, Belgium, France, Austria and other countries is looked for by the hosiery men soon after the end of the war. Continued prosperity in the United States, the hosiery men contend, depends almost wholly upon whether or not a sane tariff law is provided by the next Congress. Manufacturers said today that a tariff sufficiently high to enable the American manufacturer to compete with foreign manufacturers is required.

"We need a measure that will guarantee us the protection against the products of Europe's cheap labor, and this is essential to continued prosperity after the conflict in Europe comes to an end," said J. E. Johnson, president of the Allegheny Hosiery Mills, at Jasper and Orleans streets, today.

The war in Europe, in the opinion of hosiery manufacturers who employ thousands of workers, is having the effect, while it lasts, of a protective tariff. Manufacturers pointed out today that before hostilities began European goods were being shipped to the United States in enormous quantities.

"With our higher standards of living it was impossible, the manufacturers say, to compete with any great degree of success with the cheap labor in Europe, and the general result was a nation-wide depression in the hosiery industry. Mills were working on half time, while other manufacturing plants were closed.

But the war, in the opinion of the hosiery men, has done what the tariff could not do. It has resulted in barring cheap products from this country. Now they are in European warehouses.

"We must have a sane and sufficient protective tariff law," said Mr. Johnson. "It is true this war has been instrumental in creating a wave of prosperity in this country, but we must remember that the conflict will not prevail for ages. The war must come to an end some time. The war may last another year or longer. Nobody really knows just how long it will last. But it is certain that the war will end some time. Therefore, we must plan for the future. Germany, no doubt, will get busy with what capital she has left and will begin to manufacture many things. Her factories will again become busy and goods will be manufactured and sent here. It is true that German factories will be kept busy in supplying the demands of the German nation, but even now in some of the storehouses of that country there are loads of goods from Germany, ready to be sent here to be sold without missing them, were it not for England's blockade.

"Creating a high protective tariff is an important thing. We must have it. As I said before, we have had some prosperity as a result of this war, but we must not forget the future. I mean the time when this war will be at an end. Germany and the other nations will begin to export things to this country, and then, probably, we will again have some 'Underwood Holidays.' Those days are well remembered by working people of this country. They suffered a great deal through the closing of mills, shops and factories when the Underwood tariff measure became law."

MAILS 'DOPE' PACKAGE; NABBED BY INSPECTOR

Wholesale Drug Vender's Arrest Here May Lead to Capture of Patrons.

An attempt to send a seven-pound package of cocaine, opium, heroin and derivatives through the registered mail was frustrated at the postoffice by Chief Postal Inspector Cortelyou. It was addressed to a woman in Baltimore. Joseph Hart, of Darden street, near Vine, the man who registered the package, was apprehended last night by the postal authorities and locked up in the 11th and Winter streets police station. He is believed to be a wholesale drug dealer, doing business especially with drug distributors in the South.

Seven pounds of drugs is the largest amount ever confiscated by the Federal authorities here at one time. Chief Cortelyou says he believes he has uncovered the source from which drug peddlers in Richmond, Baltimore, Roanoke and other Southern cities have been obtaining large supplies of "dope."

Letters found in the man's pockets and in his room containing orders for various quantities of drugs indicate that he is an extensive business.

An order from the Baltimore woman for the package removed from the mails yesterday, stating the precise amount desired, was also found. Hart has been under suspicion, but worked cautiously, and before his arrest last night had foiled every attempt to trap him. His record as a vender of drugs has not been completely investigated, and the Federal authorities refused to talk about his operations in the "Tenderloin." The letters found on Hart will lead to many arrests in the South, and the Baltimore police have been instructed to arrest the woman to whom the drugs were sent for fear that she might in some way receive warning and escape.

MAYOR RIDICULES WANAMAKER PLAN

Blankenburg Calls Proposal to Buy Back Belgium From Germany a Dream.

Mayor Blankenburg in a letter made public today, characterized John Wanamaker's proposal to pay Germany $100,000,000 for Belgium as a "midsummer dream" and as a "proposition that should be treated with as much seriousness as the Arabian Nights tales or the fables which whiled away many an hour in our childhood days."

All the money in circulation at the present time, the Mayor writes, would not be sufficient to pay one year's interest on the "ransom" money, which exceeds by $55,000,000 the national debt of all the nations before the war, and which would increase our per capita interest from 25 cents to $2 and our per capita debt from $10.50 to $100.

Let us analyze the midsummer dream of the Honorable John Wanamaker, to pay a hundred thousand million dollars ($100,000,000,000) for the restoration of Belgium to its king and people, a proposition that should be treated with as much seriousness as the Arabian Nights tales or the fables which whiled away many an hour in our childhood days.

The national debt contracted during the Civil War, from 1861 to 1865, amounted to about $2,700,000,000; the ransom for Belgium after one year's war would be 25 times this amount.

Our present national debt, on which we pay from 2 to 4 per cent interest, is about $1,025,000,000, with interest charges of $22,000,000. Mr. Wanamaker's generous proposition (to whom?) would increase our debt nearly a hundred times, and interest charges, taking 4 per cent per annum as the lowest rate at which any considerable loan could be negotiated, from $22,000,000 to $40,000,000 a year, or 13 times. The per capita interest would be increased from 25 cents to $10, and the per capita debt from $10.50 to $100!

All the money in circulation at this time, gold, silver and paper, $1,450,000,000, would not suffice to pay one year's interest of $40,000,000 on Mr. Wanamaker's dream. We would have to borrow $500,000,000 every year to make up the deficit, and where could we get it?

The newly proposed national debt would be nearly 10 times as great as the cost of the 23,000 miles of railroad we have built in the last 30 years, including the total equipment.

The national debt of all the nations of the world amounted, before the present war, to about $45,000,000,000, or $55,000,000,000 less than the debt Mr. Wanamaker would place upon this single nation of ours. I have always been generous, but my generosity pales; I am almost speechless!

The total interest charges on the debt of all the nations of the world amount to about $1,750,000,000 a year. We would have to pay $2,500,000,000 more interest a year on a loan that would not benefit us in any, not even the slightest degree than all other nations combined.

SHORE OFFICIALS ORDER VIEW OF SEA FOR VARE

ATLANTIC CITY, July 29.—"Fort Lambert," on the most exclusive section of the Chelsea beach, is to be a battleground.

"Fort Lambert," a rough pine shack, and the spite fence masquerading as a billboard, which cuts off the Vare view of the rolling breakers from the Vare plaza, have been officially declared to be a nuisance.
