DUE COLONNE NEMICHE ARRESTATE E BATTUTE IN TERRA ITALIANA

Gli Austriaci Avevano Tentato l'Invasione dell'Italia dalla Strada dello Stelvio, verso Bormio

ALPINI ALL'OPERA

Nulla di Nuovo sul Fronte del Carso Dice il Rapporto del Generale Cadorna

ROMA, 13 Agosto. n Ministero della Guerra pubblicava teri il seguente comunicato ufficiale:

"gull'Itopiano del Carso, dopo avere nella notte del 10 Agosto respinto attacchi del nemico nella zona di Monte Sei Busi, noi abbiamo eseguito nella mattinata peruente un contrattacco, ottenendo sensivili vantaggi in alcune sezioni di quel

"Come dicemmo gia' nel precedente omunicato, la nostra fanteria attacco' con tale irresistibile slancto che due compagnie (500 uomini) riuscirono ad impos-sessarsi con un assalto alla baionetta di alture assai ben fertificate e situate molto addentro alle lines nemiche. Questa posizione pero' non fu mantenuta a causa del violento fuoco dell'artiglieria nemica e del vigorosi contrattecchi degli austriaci. Questi contrattacchi pero' si spez-zarono contro la resistenza delle nostre che tenevano posizioni gia' con-te e situate alle spalle di quelle occupate dalle due compagnie spintesi in e la stessa citta', ma questa volta senza alcun risultato.

Nella sezione di Monfalcone l'artiglieria austriaca ha ripreso a bom-bardare le nostre posizioni della Rocca e la stessa citta', ma questa volta senza

"Nel Cadore, mentre la nostra artiglieria continua ad operare contro le poderose opere difensive delle alte vallate, il nemico ha tentato con frequenti ma inutili attacchi di ricacciarci indietro e aloggiarci da alcune delle posizioni da noi conquistate. Le nostre truppe hanno respinto tutti gli attacchi.

"Nella Carnia si sono avute azroni di Nella Carnia si sono avute azroni di artiglieria e piccole avanzate della nos Nella regione di Plava ieri sera le nostre truppe respinsero un deppio attacco del nemico che era appoggiato da nu-merose batterie di artiglieria."

Piu' tardi veniva pubblicato un nuovo comunicato ufficiale annunciante che due colonne austriache avevano tentato di invadere l'Italia nella regione dello Stelvio. che erano state respinte. Ecce il testo

"All'entrata di Val Furva gli austriaci sitaccarono le nostre posizioni di Passo Forno, a 10,845 piedi di altezza, da dove essi erano gia' stati respinti nella notte del 9 Agosto. Nello stesso tempo una seconda colonna austriaca attaccava Capanna di Cedeh, ad 8220 piedi di altezza, dope avere attraversato il Passo di Cevedale. Le nostre truppe Alpine frustra-tono pero' tutti e due i tentativi di in-vasione e con vigorosi contrattacchi ri-cacciarono indietro gli austriaci.

"Nel Cadore vi sono stati piccoli com-battimenti favorevoli a noi nella valle A Visdende noi abbiamo fatto prigionieri 40 cacciatori alpini aus-"Nel settore della Carnia si sono avuti combattimenti isolati. Un contingente austriaco e' stato respinto nella valiata del torrento Pontebbana. "Nella regione del Carso non vi e' nulla di nuovo ad eccezione dei soliti combatti-menti senza importanza." Un telegramma da Zurigo dice che, mondo notizie giunte dal teatro meridi-spalo della guerra, gli italiani hanno penato sul fronte della Carinzia e ell'Isonzo grandi quantita' di nuova arti gleria di grosso calibro e che da qualche glorno dura un terribile duello tra le batterie italiane e quelle austriache.

OBSERVER WITH GEN. JOFFRE ADDRESSES TOBYHANNA CAMP

Pennsylvania Battery Companies Hear Lieut. E. St. J. Greble, U. S. A.

TOBYHANNA, Pa., Aug. 13. - Friday, the 13th, dawned clear and bright at the artillery instruction camp, after a downpour of rain beginning yesterday noon, and lasting all night. Captain Cox and B members of Battery C, of Phoenixville, busied themselves packing dog tents and ther paraphernalia in preparation for the three-day bivouac which starts to-morrow. The army officers refuse to dis-close the line of march, but promise a realistic campaign. Colonel Howard C. Williams, of hoenixville, is expected to visit the camp today, stopping en route to Indiana, where he will inspect the 40th Regiment where he will inspect the 40th Regiment of Infantry.

Lieutenant Edwin St. J. Greble, U. S. A. who spent a year with General Joffre's army in France, delivered a lecture to the battalion, last night, in which he compared the prepardness of France when the European war broke out with the preparedness of the United States in case of symbolic strick. We are not invinced of probable attack. We are not invinci-ble to attack, the observer said. He also approved the business mean's military camp now in progress at Platisburg.

LEAVES ESTATE TO DAUGHTERS

Will of Jesse A. Tilge, of Germantown, Bequeaths $135,000 to His Two Children

Jesse A. Tilge, of the firm of Henry Tilge & Co., who died at 6335 Greene street, Germantown, August 4, left an estate of $125,000, of which $100,000 is personal property. His will, admitted to probate today, leaves the estate to two saughters, Mrs. Jessele T. Craven and Mrs. Kate T. Ward and children. The executors of the will are the Germantown Trust Company and Morris R. Bockius.

Other wills probated today include those of Patrick Carroll, who left $12,175; Josephine A. Brunet, $3000; Harry N. Blanchard, $2500; Elizabeth Kraemer, 1950. Personal property of Mary Meredith has been appraised at $18,672.20.

HOTEL LEASE RENEWED

G. C. Boldt Will Control Walderf-

BEAUTIFUL MARNE VALLEY STREWN WITH TRACES OF GREAT BATTLE

Many Are the Impressive Sights Which Meet the Eye on Fields Where France, and Perhaps the Whole of Europe, Were Saved From German Domination

By ELLEN ADAIR

Interest. It takes four hours by train from Paris and very often more than douole that time. Leaving Meaux this morning, we traveled through the beautiful valley of the Marne. The railroad runs close beside the river and, looking out of the carriage windows, we realized we were passing vast miles of recent battle-fieldr, and that that river not so very long ago ran red with blood. ago ran red with blood.

long ago ran red with blood.

This areat battlefield of the Marne is the most famous and epoch-making in the whole of European history. For there it was that General von Kluck, presuming that the British expeditionary force was crushed, stopped in his advance on Paris and, swinging to the left, endeavored boldly to smash the French centre! This was a tremendous strate-

Staff Correspondent Evening Labour VITRY-LE-FRANCOIS, France, July M. | our own women and children or we THE Journey to this place is one of great selves must be moved down by the Ger-

'At first we did not fire. The Germans shot us down like corn, and in doing so they shot many of the women, whom they were driving before them for their own protection. It was a disgusting sight, that slaughter! Finally, in self-defense, we had to fire on the Germans!" "I have seen so many sights of atro-city, but still I have a feeling of nausea!" he continued. "It is terrible to witness the old men and old women massacred. One old man who was being driven in front of the German was One old man who was being driven in front of the German troops could not walk fast enough, for he was bent with age. The soldiers kept piercing him with their beauty of the was bent with their beauty of the soldiers and the soldiers with the sold age. The soldiers kept piercing him with their bayonets until he dropped dead from wounds. It made me feel a little faint—that cruel sight!"

"Do you think that America should

GERMAN SOLDIER DEAD ON MARNE BATTLEFIELD

gleal mistake and the great turning point in the war. To this the final subjection of Germany will be traced, and through this miscalculation Von Kluck lost his rank and position in the army. His retreat, however, was one of the most matterly in the whole course of Fig.

most masterly in the whole course of Eu-ropean history, for it had seemed as if his whole army must be captured. Though his losses were tremendous, he yet managed to retire. Everywhere we saw soldiers, guns, sentineis and long cavalcades winding their way amidst clouds of dust to the front. All along the railway line were stationed sentinels, and the train tealf was nucled with soldiers.

the train itself was packed with soldiers.

The countryside was entirely deserted, except for the soldiers. Where the inhabitants had vanished to I do not know, probably to Paris. Not a soul was to be seen anywhere for miles upon miles. Then in the distance we would see a great cloud of dust which gradually grew bigger and bigger, and a glint-like fire would shine out suddenly. It was a regiment of helmeted soldiers on their way to the front, with horses, great guns and a hundred wagons following behind. Here and there some old man in a blue linen smock would spring up from some lonely cottage to stare, open-mouthed, at the cavalcade. Our journey was not easy, for many bridges en route had been blown up in order to check the German advance, and these bridges had been patched up for the time being, and must be crossed with great care. However, no one felt in the least uneasy, for these things are but trifles incidental to traveling in this re-

DETECTIVES ON TRAIN. Several plain-clothes French detectives were on board the train, and it was amusing to note their tactics and be-haviour. After chatting pleasantly with you and finding out as much as they could in that way they would suddenly demand to see all your papers and ask you a series of most searching questions. I was particularly struck with the beautiful white roads, all leading to the front, and by their deserted appearance. One of the detectives informed me that ivilians are forbidden to walk on these roads, as they have been entirely taken over by the military authorities.

over by the military authorities.

Near Epernay, where the whole valley is so beautiful and the river winds its way through green tobacco fields, we saw the body of a dead French soldier floating in the Merne. At one time the bodies were thick in that river. Tall popular trees line its banks and weeping willows droop lazily, while the water itself is a curious shade of bright green.

The houses in that district are all of a pale pink shade, with roofs a deep and mellow red. The red-capped sentries, with their gleaming bayonets, made another splash of color and the bluest of biue skies shone serenely above.

blue skies shone serenely above. At Epernay we stopped to have all pas-sengers examined, and the railway platsengers examined, and the rallway platform was the setting for a scene such as no stage has ever yet produced. Every nossible shade of blue, pink, red and yellow was fully represented in the costumes of the soldiers, for the French uniforms are quite kaleidoscopic in coloring. They crowded the little platform, for there were more soldiers there than the station could well hold. A babel of voices went on in great confusion—gendarmes, detectives, officers, zouaves, hussars, Red Cross surgeons, Moroccans, cavalrymen and army service men.

and army service men.

An interesting Belgian noncommissioned officer, Isidore Nort, an "auto-mitrali-leuse" of the 2d Division Cavairy, was in our carriage, who but the night before had been at the front, and he talked in a most interesting fashion.

a most interesting tashion.

Apparently the greater part of his work was to drop hombs from aeroplanes on the German troops and trenches, and also to hurl hand grenades from armored metercars. 20,000 BODIES IN STREAM.

"Yesterday I was fighting at the Maison du Passeur, near Ypres," said he. "It is just a pretty little house on the edge of a stream, but we have been fighting there since last October, and that little stream holds 30,000 corpses. This is the first leave I have had since the war began." "But isn't it most insanitary there?" inquired one of his hearers.

"The air is perhaps a trifle odious," said M. Nort, cheerfully, "but we take hygienic precautions. Every day we make coffee from the water of that stream, and it does not make us ill. Yes, I do assure you that there are 30,000 bodies of Belgians. French and Germans in the Yser there! They crowd the place, but one must pay no attention to sights one sees. The stream is narrow, only 19 yards wide, and the Germans occupy one bank while we have the other."

George C. Boldt, owner of the Bellerus-Stratford, has renewed his lease of the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in New York, the that he will control the hotel until April 30, 1928, it became known today, Mr. Boldt's present lease expires on April Ris, and papers have just been signed for the renewel. Mr. Boldt said today hat the Astor interests in the botel had Affeed to expend about $600,000 in improcessing.

This roof garden will be entirely rebuilt and enlarged, the plants calling for ruining room as by 70 feet overiooking the large part of the roof will be deroof large part of the roof will be deroof at the roller akating in the aummor

Toung Russian Ordered Deported fath Augustowski, II. who arrived in the country from Couriand, Bussia, was and guilty in Quarter Seasons Court ally of a theft committed by him whole the french and Belgian women and children, when the women and children, when the vount the Germans drive from Russian Ordered Deported
fath Augustowski, II. who arrived in the country from Couriand, Bussia, was
and guilty in Quarter Seasons Court
ally of a theft committed by him whole the roof will be senticed to roller aware ago. Judge Sheeto rollers aware ago. Judge Sheean anarly two years ago. Judge Sheetor ordered the youth sent tack to amenance Physical Court and I have seen many infants slaughtered in this way."

"Is it true that the Germans drive from Russian Women and children, so that they may we held a spiendid position, our big guns
we held a spiendid position, our big guns
we hed there."

The work and children with a ferocity unbelievable. All the stories one hears of attrocity are indeed true more than true. At Alost, enterity took the breasen and round their heads and hurled them at us. One little bays sire fell at my feet, her back and skull broken in many places. It is a practice of the fermans to so hard the Germans drive is the French and Belgian women and children,
when the women and children,
when the word and round true.

"I have witnessed it a hundred times, wanced on enter this war?" asked another in the "No, I do not," said Nort, decidedly, "because if she does enter the war she will no longer be able to continue her splendld work of sending food to the poor Belgians -I have just received a letter today from my mother, Mme. Nort, who is a prisoner in Brussels, and she says that without the assistance of the kind Americans there would be no food. When you go back to America, mademoiselle, please tell the Americans there that we Belgians owe them a debt of undying gratitude for their promptitude and kindness in this matter. No, I do not wish that they enter this war, they are doing splendid work already!"

When Chalons was reached, we had another examination of papers and photographs and passports—I quite fall to see graphs and passports-I quite fall to see how any spy could ever reach the French firing-line without detection, so rigorous is the system!

When Vitry was gained we had to leave the train and proceed by motorcar. In the station we underwent one of the most searching examinations of the journey. We had to proceed to the Mayor's house and the commissaire de police to be fur-ther examined and get fresh passports. The little town was guarded by sentinels at every road!

After an hour's investigation we were released and decided that before proceeding by car we would walk to a village, one mile distant, to see the ruins caused by the last bombardment. Sentinels held us up along the dusty high road and examined our papers carefully. road and examined our papers carefully Any one not in the uniform of a soldier is an object of strong suspicion in these

MORE THAN 200 PERSONS QUALIFY AS CLERKS

Of Large Class of Eligibles, 56 the "mixer" or "human roulette wheel. Are Women-To Serve Any City Department

Fifty-six women and 157 men, from a mixed class of 720 applicants, qualified in tests of the Civil Service Commission for appointment as clerks in any department. at salaries ranging from $750 to $1000 a

WOMEN.

OMEN.
Abby C. Barr
Rsba White
Rose Levinstein
Mildreth G. Phillips
Edith B. Sharp
Anna Blaker
Sara E. Woods
Cath. M. Connoily
Dorothy VanCampen
Rose H. Meadew
Mary F. Hurley
Ada B. Warburton
Myrtle R. Hartman
A. Reba Eyre
Elizabeth M. McKeon
Elisie C. Garretson
Bara Shapiro
Blanche Krassonstein
Abhie K. Tuttle
Sara J. McClain
Wilma Parry
Rose B. K. Baragen
Eda S. Haywood
Elizabeth E. Caines
May G. Glimore
Bertha Blaker
Fannye Abrams
Catherine Patterson
EN. Elizabeth Hoffman othy Davis
ry L. McKernan
hy R. Gallagher
h L. Sommerlatte is Wolpert ma L. Yerkes
iam Jaspan ia Preuss MEN.

Charles H. Dougherty
L. Hernard Levinson
James J. Mariner
Harry J. Rauth
E. J. McMenamin, Jr.
John W. Morris
Louis Buster
Elvin Orlando Kilme
William F. Kullman
Manuel Hirsch
Joseph A. Wilson
Joseph H. Hahn
Samuel Maisels
George W. Welsh
Allen D. Young
Joseph J. Feensy
Herman Lipschutz
Harry C. Vellenoweth
Thomas P. Cassy
Robert O. DosPassos
Richard W. Rudolph
Alfred A. Bubirnie
Harrison R. Drew
W. C. Eichenberger, Jr.
Nathan Hetckien
Albert V. Gas
Jay D. Lawrence
Harry Wiltheaul
Samuel L. Goo'man
J. Robert Cameron
Edward J. McCrossin
Louis J. Treutas
William J. Goldon
Francis J. McCosri
Harry A. Duffins
John L. Jennings
George B. Goshe
Samuel D. Bredit
Albert Rosenfeld
Samuel Darwood
Harry Hown
Goshamin F. Pudinan
Francis M. Van Schyer
Lowaria M. Rand
Benjamin F. Pudinan
Francis M. Van Schyer
Lowaria M. Steinmais
Relatin M. M. Steinmais
Rudin M. M. Steinmais
Samuel Pomerauts
Latrick A. Carruli Frank W. Clark
Frank W. Clark
Albert S. Falrfield, Jr.
Harry Kimmelblatt
William I. Blumberg
Bernard E. Wilain
Warren J. Fisher
Leo S. Gallagher
Abraham Leftoy Renic
Einner W. Thoraton
Samied Ray

Pallip H. Mattman
Samuel Pomeractz
Patrick A. Carrull
Harry R. Kurta
William J. Bieluman
Charida Jos. Schränk
Frank R. Ward
Morris Borr
Raiph L. McCless
Meyer W. Ginaburg
Harold Shields
George F. Gonaver
Haussell E. Hubbard
Affred A. Srvaelmoor
Harry Polman
Islder Schackter
Isadore Jewin
Norton I. Lar
Prederick
Thies
Prederick
G. Cowan
Antheory P. Cristian
Januar
H. Wilson
Pred E. Krasger
Harry W. Kohl
Samuag Bilver

PHILADELPHIA BABIES WIN TWO PRIZES AT ATLANTIC CITY SHOW

Robert Greenfield Adjudged Best Dressed Infant, While Joseph Goldstein Is the Fattest

AVIATOR IN SMASH-UP

Chelsea Cottagers Busily Engaged Giving Parties-Society Circus Planned-Personal Gossip

ATLANTIC CITY, Aug. 13.-Philadelphia did not do very well in the last baby show of the season, held on one of the piers yesterday. That city won only two out of the five events. Atlantic City won the prizes in the "prettiest" and "cutest" classes, and Pittsburgh walked away with the prizes for favorite twins. Robert Greenfield, of Philadelphia, took the prize for being the best dressed baby in the show, and Joseph Goldstein, also of Philadelphia, had no difficulty in winning the prize offered for the fattest baby.

A brilliantly illuminated vessel lying at anchor about five miles from shore has caused much talk for the last two nights. Many nervous people claimed that it was a warship of some foreign country, and others declared that it was the yacht of a millionaire who was enter the yacht of a millionaire who was enter-taining guests at a dance while his craft was bobbing up and down on the waves. The true story about the vessel is that it was a menhaden steamer waiting for a sheal of those fish to appear so that ne fishermen could get busy.

SHOEMAKER STICK TO YOUR LAST Jacquith, the aviator, who has never met with an accident since he started flying here two years ago, is now suffering from a fractured ankle and a split collarbone. He did not receive these in-juries while engaged in the seemingly perilous occupation of navigating the air Last week he took a trip to New York on a motorcycle and collided with a Ford truck, demolished his machine, and received the injuries from which he is now suffering. Hereafter, he will stick to air flights and attempt no stunts on the CHELSEA'S SOCIAL WHIRL. Chelsea is now in the zenith of its glory The fashionable people who reside there are vieing with each other in the giving of social events, so that every day and night there are from 10 to a dozen dansants, card parties, musicales and other affairs. A circus is to be given the latter part of this mention, and social circus.

part of this month—a real society circus, only under a different name, so that the benefiting charity may get a large sum of money Young men are practicing gymnastic stunts on the beach during bathing hours, young women are devising elaborate cos tumes for parts they will assume, and it is even hinted that a well-known society eader will use her own horse and do a regulation circus riding act. It is also said that two debutantes of last season will don the motley garbs worn by circus clowns and cut capers in the ring. 'his will be the big event of a remarkable successful social season.

A new method of entertainment has been put in operation at one of the piers. It is called the "Panama Canal," and consists of a long trough of water, over which is stretched a tight rope. The people who want to play the game try to walk the length of the trough on the rope. If they slip, they go down in the water ankle deep, and many of them do. provoker it is even more successful than

PHILADELPHIA COLONY PHILADELPHIA COLONY
Among the Philadelphians here are Mr. and Mrs. John F. Bolger, Dr. Gilbert J. Palen, O. F.* Letorien, Mr. and Mrs. Horace S. Rels and Miss Rose Schneiderman, Miss Lillian Busch, Miss Adele Bryan, Miss Lena Fleishman, Dr.
and Mrs. M. O'Hara, Miss Constance O'Hara, M. and Mrs. Thomas M. Gillingham, H. C. Megargee, Garrett H.
Plowman, Miss Guspie Davison, Miss
Ethel Davison, Mr. and Mrs. Ferdinand Wallace, Mr. and Mrs. Charles S.
Mattson and family, Griffin Grebel and family, Miss Emily W. Biddle.
Dr. T. S. Bach, Mr. and Mrs. Hubert

Dr. T. S. Bach, Mr. and Mrs. Hubert C. Felton, F. A. Clarke and family, Wal-C. Felton, F. A. Clarke and family, Wal-ter S. Cramp, Richard M. Cadwalader, Alexander Cadwalader, Dr. Martha E. Osmond, Miss Edith Clymer, Miss Jo-sephine Dodge, Miss S. C. McKnabb, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Sickles and family, of sephine Dodge, Miss S. C. McKnabb, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Sickles and family, of Diamond street; Mr. and Mrs. Aifred Rosenstein, Miss Amy Rhode, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Witty, Miss Loraine Witty and Mrs. Hilda Witty, Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Hess and Frederick Hess, Frank Klenzie, John J. Kierans.

Charles B. Cooke and family, of Wayne avenue; Mr. and Mrs. Emil Selig, of North 18th street; Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Sexton, of Pelham; Mr. and Mrs. I. M. Koch, of Green street; Miss Edna Carson Smith, of West Philadelphia; Jesse O, Reidsei and Miss Florence Reidsel, of North 18th street; Charles G. Garlling and family, of Tioga; Miss Beatrice Smiler, Miss Emily Baird, Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Luders, of Cynwyd; George Kelly, of Roxborough; Dr. and Mrs. Charles W. Luders, of Cynwyd; George Kelly, of Roxborough; Dr. and Mrs. Elizabeth Walraven. Miss Elizabeth Walrayen Supposed "Black Handers" on Trial WILMINGTON, Del., Aug. 1.—Alexander Umbino and Cantela Michele, alleged by the police to be "Black Handers" from Philadelphia, were tried on the charges of pointing a gun, carrying a gun and threatening bodily harm in the City Court today. Decision was reserved in these saces and the men will betried tomorrow on a charge of assault. Nicholas de Gross charged the men had threatened him for giving information concerning the "Black Hand." The prisoners denied the charge and several well-known Italians testified in their favor.

Women Under Polygamy An interesting mass of facts on 'Women Under Polygamy' (Dodd Mead Co., N. Y.) has been collected by Walter Gallichan. There is little controversy as to whether individual women thrive better or less meli under polygamous relationships; Mr. Gallichan simply presents the results of intimate study of conditions in the ancient Jewish families, the Turkish harem, modern Egyptian harems, and the state of things in Persia, india, Japan, Africa and China, as well as the pros and cons of the Mormon settlement in Utah. A sich bibliography gives many of the rich bibliography gives many of the sources of information and illustrations help to fix certain points in the mind of the reader.

newestands

AMONG THE NEW BOOKS NOVELIST H. G. WELLS TURNS CARICATURIST

TALKING AT ONCE In "Boon" (Doran), H. G. Wells does a lot of other things besides pretending that two gentlemen named Bliss and Boon are re-sponsible for all the whimsical and sometimes biting comment on contemporaries to be found between its covers. One of the most interesting features of the book is the sketches which Mr. Wells has indubitably contributed, but which he insists on palming off as the work of this mystical master-novelist, Boon.

Wells Takes Another Holiday

If "Bealby" was a holiday, then "Boon" is a whole vacation. It is more. It is an intellectual "bat." Wells' new volume, from Doran & Co., which he insists on palming off upon one Reginald Bliss, "author of Whales in Captivity," is just the sort of "indiscreet, ill-advised book" that every author ought to be compelled to write just once in his life.

How else are we to learn that Henry James Is "a leviathan retrieving peb-bles"? No critic, even in the protection of anonymity, would ever furnish th's formula for James' system of selective composition: "Having first made sure that he had scarcely anything to express, he then sets to work to express, it with he then sets to work to express it, with an industry, a wealth of intellectual stuff that dwarfs Newton." More, no Ameri-can critic would have the audacity to compare Mary Austin with Mrs. Ward by saying, "It's like turning from the feet of a goddess to a pair of goloshes." And no American, critic or pencitic. And no American, critic or noncritic, would venture to describe Columbia as the Aunt Errant of Christindom

That is the sort of thing which wanders riotously through "Boon," and its itin-erary is just as riotous. The whole af-fair is supposed to be the literary remains of a world-popular author named Boon, pieced together by conversations with the great man when he wasn't dictating best sellers to the censorious back of his secretary. Sometimes it is scrappy little notes like: "Arnold Bennett as an abortive Great Man. Would have made abortive Great Man. Would have made a Great Victorian and had a crowd of satellite helpors. Now, ho one will ever treasure his old hats and pipes." Sometimes it is burlesque, like the gathering of the British authors at the conference on the Mind of the Race. Sometimes it is impassioned rhetoric, such as it describes the power of that Mind. This wonder that we calche the this digitly is wonder that we celebrate, this divinity, is the dawn of human divinity. Again there develops a strain of the fantastic Wells of vore; but a minor demon no so giving the spectators an opportunity to laugh long and loud at their had luck.

Notwithstanding the big percentage of losers, there is always a waiting crowd to try the new game, and as a mirth service of the Devil than he finds himself embarked on a hunt for German militar sits and their English counterparts who are "mewing for blood" and praying for home the "closest distinct longer in the "closest distinct longer in the counterparts who are "mewing for blood" and praying for the "closest distinct longer in the counterparts who are "mewing for blood" and praying for the "closest distinct longer in the counterparts who are "mewing for blood" and praying for the "closest distinct longer in the counterparts who are "mewing for blood" and praying for the "closest distinct longer in the counterparts who are "mewing for blood" and praying for the close the counterparts who are "mewing for blood" and praying for the close the counterparts who are "mewing for blood" and praying for the close t are "mewing for blood" and praying for the "closest, siliest, loudest imitation Prussian swagger" on England's part. And to cap it comes a little masterplece of irony, "The Last Trump."

But all this hilarity, this jovial dis But all this huarty, the finest guise of thoughtfulness, is not the finest impression you carry away. It is the portrait of Boon himself. Blatantly sur cessful piteously unsatisfied, struggling ludicrously with the surge of bigger things, rising to triumphant moments of elaborate self-expression which bore his hearers, Boon is another Ponderevo of "Tono Bungay," another of those great portraits of vaunting middle-aged genius cribbed, broken but loved, in this mud-dled world of counting-house glories.

The Woman Movement

Ellen Key writes of "The Woman Movement" (Putnam, N. Y.) in the bigger ense of the word-not as a historical sketch on suffrage or some minor phase. To her, motherhood, home-making, etc., give the truest development to woman, a view which she relterates in most of her works. She justifies her belief that the new movement, if properly developed, will have large "external" and "internal" results to the woman herself. And in her usual keen and somewhat idealistic temper she comments upon the influences these developments will have on men and women in general, single women, daugh ters, marriage and motherhood.

Charles H. Zellers

LANCASTER, Pa. Aug. 13.—Charles H. Zellers, a prominent resident of Mount Joy, died this morning at his home in that borough. Zellers at one time conducted the largest auction sales in Lancaster. caster County.

Shampoo with hot water, rubbing thoroughly into the scalp the rich, creamy lather of Resinol Soap so as to soften and stimulate the scalp, to remove the dead skin and cells, and to work the southing, healing Resinol buleauns well into the roots of the hair. Rinne is gradually cooler water, the final water being cold. Dry the hair thoroughly, without artificial heat. This simple, agreeable method always atops chandruff and scalp stehing, and keeps the hair live, thick and histrous. National many leaves so sticklines or Sealand Somp leaves so elichtness or unplements oder in th. hair. Soid what-ever toiler goods and carried. For sample from write to Francis Chem. Co., Balti-mers. Md.

PAJAMAS AND SAFFRON DRESSING GOWN"

SOME BODY VERY

MUCH RESEMBLING

MR WELLS

America's Part in Peace Those who have read Norman Angell's

OF PLATO

"Great Illusion" and "Armes and Industry" will probably find a good deal of old material in "America and the New World State" (Putnam, New York); at least they will recognize Mr. Angell's method of thought and see one of his greatest defects-his habit of redundancy. Those who have already criticised him for his theoretical turn of mind will be able to do so again. But he who appreciates Mr. Angell's new economy will find the usual originality and keenness of thought and analysis, and will be thoroughly in-terested in his contributions to the prob-lem that is confronting America as a probable mediator in the great European struggle We can readily imagine the impatience with which our militaristic leaders greet the theories which Mr. Angell puts forthe theories which Mr. Angell puts for-ward: That nations have not tried to reach a better understanding of national relations, but that they seek better arms, "not machinery for the settlement of dif-ficulties with other nations, but machin-ery for their destruction." And even many quiet people who cling so des-perately to the idea of nonintervention cannot see, until Mr. Angell presents his case, that the part of the United States could play in settling disputes can be anti-military in character. World-organization and constructive

World-organization and constructive leadership are Mr. Angell's plans for America's legitimate intervention. Lack of traditions, great material resources and a gift for improvised organization are ample reasons for her to undertake the task. And the fact that America is young will give the old European Powers little reason to suspect her of unfairness and

Prolific Zane Grey

Zane Grey will not add materially to his reputation by "The Rainbow Trail" (Harper & Brothers, New York). He is writing entirely too much, and the popularity gained through "Riders of the Furple Sage" and "The Light of Stars" will dwindle, as the result of a swift succession of novels of inferior plotting. characterization and construction

"The Rainbow Trail" is the third Zane Grey novel of this season. It is described as "a story of great adventure and greater love." Well, the adventure is as crude as that of Ned Buntline and the love as sentimental as Laura Jean Libbey. Zane Grey's public demands better things; it knows he can deliver them.

Motion Pictures

Efficiency will link arms and go to work for you—if you say the word. Phone Locust 332 and we will show you how Motion Pictures will open your doors to efficiency and with "him" bring you more and better business.

Pathescope Exchange of Phila. 515 Crozer Bidg., Phila., Pa.

For Housekeeper

and Mother A young housekeeper will find the useful hints and suggestions in Sarah Mac-Leod's "Housekeeper's, Handbook of Cleaning" (Harper & Bros., N. Y.), a great help in learning the details of housecleaning, ventilation, insects and pests, and general care of the clothes. Books on this subject are as rare as cooking books are plentiful.

ARISTOTLE IN

MODERN DRESS

(HE WOULD BE

Arthur Holmes has contributed a valuable book to the library of child psychology, with special attention to abnormal cases. "The Conservation of the Child" (Lippincott, Philadelphia) is a comprehensive study of the clinical methods used in available of the contract of t ods used in examination and treatment of the large mass of unfit who constantly make their appearance through no will of their own. The book is not of such ex-treme scientific character that it cannot form a useful part of every library of teacher and psychologist. Its purpose and value must be appreciated.

A Real Excursion for Hot Days & Moonlight Evenings WILMINGTON ALL BOATS STOP Leave CHESTNUT ST, WHARF and Wilmington daily and Sunday at 7:30, 9:00, 10:30 a. m. 12:00 m., 1:30, 3:00, 4:15, 8:00, 7:00, 8:30 and 9:30 p. m. FOR PENNSGROVE, N. J. Close connections on our Wilmington BRANDYWINE SPRINGS PARK Old rate restored. Fare now 10c to Brandywine Springs Park and return, but tickets must be precured on the boat to obtain this special rate. Good on day of basic only. MOONLIGHT SAILS Arrange for a Moonlight Sail. Coal All the Way GO TONIGHT.

Special tickets will be sold daily, excepting Saturdays, 25c Sundays and holidays for Wilmington and cetura, for.

