FRENCH BREAK GERMAN LINES BEYOND ARRAS

Cross Roads Position Held by Invaders Since Last Winter Finally Captured

WON BY INFANTRY DASH

PARIS, Aug. 19.
The most important French victory in the fighting north of Arras in several weeks was announced by the War Office this afternoon. The French have captured the crossroads east of Notre de Lorette through which the Arras-Bethune and the Angres-Ablain highways rim.

The position, held by the Germans throughout the winter months and strongly fortified, formed a salient in the French lines. Its capture by infantry charges, accompanied by showers of bombs and grenades, puts the French in position to direct effective attacks against the Germans north and northeast of Souches.

Souches.

Driven from the crossroads yesterday afternoon, the Teutuns counter-attacked several times during the night, in an offert to recapture the position, but were repulsed in each instance. Other German attacks north of Chateau Carleul, preceded by heavy bombardmegts, were repulsed, this afternoon's communique stated.

stated.

Between the Oise and the Aisne, on the Flateau of Quenniveros, south of Arras and around Neuvron, violent cannonading continued throughout last night. The French batteries in each of these engagements proved themselves master of the enemy's artillerymen. Violent fighting continues on the summit of Linze Kopf in the Vosgos. The French have taken new trenches on the crest of Schratzmaenie.

BOY DROPS FROM SIGHT

Never Returned Home After He Was Paid-Strange Phone Message

The police are trying to find Henry Sarth, Jr., the 15-year-old son of Henry Sarth, or 4385 Leidy avenue, a superviser for the Philadelphia Hapid Transit Comany, who has been missing since last aturday. Mrs. Barth is prestrated over Saturday. Mrs. Harth is prestrated over the boy's disappearance.

According to Mr. Barth, the boy was omployed at Hoskins', 5th and Chestnut streats, and failed to return home after he had been paid. A telephone message was received by an aunt of the boy, sering her to tell his mother not to worry, as he was on his way to visit the Panama-Pacific Exposition, at San Francisco.

The aunt does not think her message was from Henry. The lad had only about 35 with him at the time of his disappearance.

REV. M'KNIGHT MOORE'S FEAR OF FALLS TOOK HIM TO DEATH IN RIVER

Not Daring to Shoot Treacherous Lambertville Falls, Minister Relaunched Canoe. Which Overturned

FAMILIAR WITH DANGERS

With Son Who Accompanied Him on Fatal Trip He Had Traversed Delaware Before

Lack of confidence is ascribed by friends today as the cause of the death of the Rev. H. McKnight Moore, who was drowned in the Delaware River yesterday when his canoe struck a submerged rock and upset in the Lambertville Falls.

Doctor Moore took the same trip in the ummer of 1912, and according to a friend who accompanied him, he did not take his cance out of the water during the entire length of the dangerous voyage, even to avoid the dangerous rapids and fulls in which many canoeists had been drowned during the same season.

Yesterday, according to reports, Doctor Moore expressed a fear about going through the Wells Falls at Lambertville and took his cance out. Together with his son Harry, who paddled in the bow on the trip, he carried the canoe below the falls and launched it. The pair set out for the middle of the stream and it is thought that the rushing torrent below he falls caught the light craft up before the occupants were ready and hurled them on a rock. Both were thrown into the water, Mr. Moore coming up in a dazed condition. He made no effort to save himself, according to the dispatch. Before assistance had arrived from other nembers of the party he was torn from the grasp of his son, who had sought to save him.

The scene of the drowning was but a The scene of the drowning was but a few miles above Trenton. In the other two cances which came to the rescue of Mr. Moore were his other son, James, and John Fine, Jr., students at the Haverford School; and Harold and James Fellows, sons of Dr. A. P. Fellows, of 4006 Chestnut street. The party had been camping along the route, but had stayed the night prior to the scrident at tayed the night prior to the accident at hotel in Lambertville.

On the trip, which included falls, rifts, rapids, eddies and whiripools that would tax the skill and strength of the most expert cancelst, Mr. Moore several times expressed the fear of being overturned on account of his weight. Three times he hesitated about going on, saying that he would rather carry the cance around and haunch it between the shiring water. The places that

At the Foul Rift that year the party was warned against passing through.

The other members of the party said they would go through the falls and Mr. Moore also consented. Half way through the torrent Doctor Moore's canoe struck a rock on the edge of a whiripool and un-set. Doctor Moore and his sen, Harry, set. Doctor Moore and his sen, harry, kept the craft near the rock, and it was saved from turning completely over. The two other cances turned around in the whirling torrent, and after a struggle, paddled back to the rescue. The cance was balled out and the journey was continued.

FRANK'S MOTHER FORGIVES GEORGIA MOB OF LYNCHERS

'Some Day They'll Know," She Says. Praises Son's Purity

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—Mrs Rudolph Frank today forgave the Georgia mob that tynched her son, Leo M. Frank. Only a few hours after her son's body had been brought here for burial Mrs.

Only a few hours after her son's body had been brought here for burlai Mrs. Frank received reporters for the first time in her Brooklyn home.

"It's all over," she said, sadly, "and we want to be left alone, but as Leo once said of his maligners:

"The Nazarene said, God forgive them for they know not what they do,' and I accept his words. Some day they will know—those men who killed him.

"Now that Leo's bedy is with us we feel that we ought to be left alone with our grief. But it is not my boy that is here. It is only the house, not the spirit. The spirit has been called to God.

"My boy never told a lis. He never did a mean thing in his life. He was as pure as he was on the day he was born. The remembrance of Leo's faith in God is all that remains to us. God has given me strength with which to bear this ordeal just as He gave strength to Leo.

"There was never a day that my boy did not write to me. He was always thinking of ms, but his was a quiet disposition. As a boy, whon given a book, he would go off by himself for hours at a time. He was always reading and studying."
