Punk, Fire, Smoke and Abattoir Fumes Mingle Merrily With Anti-Mosquito Lotions Across River

VISITING EXPERT QUILTS

Has West Philadelphia a little odor all its own? This question is one that has been argued time and time again in this city...

SCENTED IT IMMEDIATELY. "This must be West Philadelphia," he asserted. "How, why, the belated Fourth of July celebration?"

RESPIRATORS CALLED FOR. "I refuse to go further," the stranger objected, "unless you provide respirators to protect us from these poisonous fumes."

CLOUDS OF MOSQUITOES. "Let's get out of this," one member of the party suggested as he pulled his devil's "bit."

UNWELCOME GREETING FROM MARSH. On they sped, out Walnut street, to 23d, to Baltimore avenue. Then toward the outskirts of the city...

MORE BUSINESS MEN TO PREPARE FOR ARMY AT PLATTSBURG CAMP

Success of Training of Civilians Leads General Wood to Expect Second Group Following Present Assembly

HUNDREDS WISH TO JOIN

Notable Officials Will Visit Gathering, Twins Who Fail to Stand Pace Leave

PLATTSBURG, N. Y., Aug. 18.—General Leonard Wood returned to the military instruction camp here last evening and announced that in all probability a second camp of similar nature would be held immediately at the close of the present one.

The consideration of another training camp has been brought about, according to General Wood, by the volume of the applications that have been received by him from men unable to get away from business at the present time, asking that they might have an opportunity to receive the military training that the 100 men here assembled are receiving at the present time.

General Wood himself has received more than 300 such applications and with those received by Captain Gordon Johnston and the members of the committee in charge of registration in the various cities the total approximates 600. General Wood said that there was little doubt in his mind that an additional camp would be held.

"It would be singularly convenient," he said, "during the month of September. The regular troops will be here for their regular field training and the equipment and camp are already here."

The regular troops will arrive here before the end of the month, and the military camp will be organized as a provisional regiment, taking the place in the general maneuvers of the 25 Regular Infantry, which at present is stationed at Douglas, Arizona. As a part of the mobilization in connection with the maneuvers, a full field battery of artillery and a regular field hospital and ambulance unit are due at the camp at the end of this week.

The arrival of a field hospital will afford an opportunity to many physicians in attendance at the camp to study the military application of their profession. A sad and story is going around camp today. Twins, members of Company A, whose names charitably are withheld, have been sent home as lacking in the proper qualifications of officers. The axe hangs in sight above their heads a day or two ago, when they carried out the instructions of the commander and went together to the post exchange to include the price per yard of khaki linen for a company street. The axe started to fall when, in the same manner, they went to the commander of the camp, Captain Dorey, and asked to be measured for sentry boxes. The axe fell today when, after shooting 20 rounds of ammunition apiece, it was found they had perfect scores—that is to say, perfect zeros.

LITTLE MUSTACHE CAUSES MAN'S ARREST

Magistrate Holds William Carroll in $800 Bail for Snipping It

A dainty black mustache was worn by John Moore, of 147 Church street, for many years. He prided himself upon the fact that it had never been disturbed. It was a very harmonious, artistic adornment and was what might be called conservative.

But Carroll himself did not join in the admiration. In fact, he was opposed to the growth on Moore's lip, and to show his disapproval, he reached for a pair of scissors and snipped half the mustache off when Moore wasn't looking. The latter was indignant and declared that he would have satisfaction. Friends told him he could remedy matters by having the other half of the mustache shaved off, but Moore would not do that.

The more Moore thought of the offense the more angry he became, and finally he swore out a warrant for Carroll's arrest. Carroll had a hearing before Magistrate Benton and was held in $800 bail. Despite the fact that Moore's mustache is now much more than when it was originally cut off, he was decidedly unforgiving.

That the larceny of one's mustache, or even half a mustache, is not considered lightly is shown by court records. About a year ago a man was awarded $500 damages because another cut off the growth on his upper lip as a result of a dare. This was shown at the hearing by William T. Connor, Moore's counsel.

Therefore, a precedent has been established fixing the value of a mustache at $500. To be consistent, therefore, barbers should pick up the privilege of removing such things instead of charging 10 and 15 cents per lip, it is believed.

Mustaches are valuable. Many an ardent swain has won a wife through a carefully trained mustache. Youths who feel down in the mouth might therefore be encouraged.

INFORMED OF SOLDIER'S DEATH

Lieutenant Rawes, Brother of Chestnut Hill Woman, Dies in London

Word has been received in this city of the death in the Carleton Hospital, London, of Lieutenant Douglas Rawes, of the King's Royal Rifle Corps, 8th Battalion, on August 16. Lieutenant Rawes was a brother of Mrs. Lawrence Johnson, Jr., of Chestnut Hill, who before her marriage was Miss Gladys Rawes, daughter of an English merchant, whose home was in London, Portugal. Her husband is a member of the brokerage firm of Lawrence Johnson & Co.

Another letter received in this city, the recipient of which was W. D. Wegfarth, 2214 Yonango street, manager of the Walnut Street Theatre, tells of novel incidents in trench life at the front in France. It is from Jacques, an artist, an old friend of Mr. Wegfarth.

PREFERS SISTER TO MAN'S LOVE

Magistrate Grells Persuades Girl to Give Up Sweetheart for Faithful Nurse

Catherine McIlhenny, 19 years old, stood in the Twenty-sixth and York streets stable today with tears burning down her face trying to decide between the love of a young man she did not know very well and the love of her sister who had cared for her since she was a baby two years old. Magistrate Grells advised her to give the young man up and keep the friendship of her sister. She took his advice.

The girl lived with her sister, Mrs. Minnie Rogers, at 123 Federal street. She fell in love. Mrs. Rogers disapproved. Then the sisters quarreled.

Catherine left her home, the police say, and went to live at a boarding house where her sweetheart resided, near 13th and Dauphin streets.

The sisters met last Tuesday on the street and quarreled again. They were arrested. Magistrate Grells released Catherine in the custody of her sister and the two left the courtroom in each other's arms.
