STRANGELY ALLIED COUPLES; CLEVER MEN AND THEIR WIVES

A Familiar Coincidence Is the Stupid Woman Whose Clever Husband Makes Feminine Acquaintances Ask, "What Does He See in Her?"

By ELLEN ADAIR

marry not only are without brains, ery frequently quite devoid of looks. One can readily understand a man being attracted by the ns. however shallow, of a pretty for all men are human, and beauty, akespeare informs us, draws us by ugle hair! But why clever men a incline to marry the brainless and by type of woman seems a mystery.

Homely, stupid women are so rest"declared a business man in dissing this very point, recently. "When nan comes home tired at night after nard day's work, he doesn't want tore to listen to some learned dissertar on Bernard Shaw's latest essay or philosophy of some Russian savant, wants peace—and the gverage stupid man will give him peace.
In addition to this," he continued, "if is homely, then he need never be rried with jealous fears nor spend office hours in wondering what paralar cavaller is dancing attendance on now. I would not marry a pretty now, I would not marry a pretty man for worlds—because other men uld admire ber, too, and probably turn head with flattery after marriage.

VERYWHERE one goes, whether in Ject of choosing a plain-looking woman for a wife," said a second man, who had been listening to the conversation: "because a thing of beauty is a joy forevergant is marrying a woman not overendowed with mentality, take each other for better or for worsechiefly worse!

"The clover woman will insist in delving deep into one's business affairs, and I really don't think that women have any right to know much there. The less my wife knows concerning my business the better am I pleased. But she has never better am I pleased. But she has never once evinced the slightest curiosity in the matter. Yes, she is rather stupid, and for real interesting discussions I always go to my clubs. But she is a splendid housekeeper, is very kindhearted and always good-humored. So, what more could a man want?"

Such a standard of necessary requisites in a wife is not particularly high, and a marriage along these lines must indeed be a dull, proey affair. I question very much if a marriage of this sort could ever be happy. Certainly it is devoid of all interest, all real companionship. And the only real type of conjugal happiness is based on a very genuine companionship. companionship.

"The average clever man is only really clever in the eyes of his wife" declared an authority on the subject. "To other people he is generally merely a bore. Only a stup'd woman can stand the clever man for long. Outsiders soon grow sick of him." There is some truth underlying these rather exaggerated statements.

For stupid women often make splendid audi-ences. It is a well--known fact that we all admire in others what we most lack in ourselves. Hence the woman sans brains believes her comparatively clever husband to be a regunot before." | lar mine of wisdom and looks upon him | "I don't agree with you on the sub- with remarkable deference and respect.

NORFOLK JACKETS ARE COMFORTABLE AND STYLISH FOR SPORTS WEAR

MATERIALS of heavy weight for redicted for fall best designers for with little no trimming. The ularity of erfolk line is another notable feature. I had thought that this was a spring fad. and would, as such, be outclassed by a case, for the importers and wholesale ises show many shionable adaptaons of the English

One attractive feaabout this Nor-style is the fact it is becoming ost any one. It to almost any one. It is particularly neat and chic on a young girl, and for cold autumn days, when she must walk several squares to school, the warmth of the woolen material will be ap-Today's Bustration is a simple little street or sports costume, of a smart green and brown mixed goods. The lines are gractical in the extreme, and for a long country walk I could suggest nothing more becoming. The coat is almost exagperated in its fulness, with huge mannish patch pockets and a shawl collar. The sleeves are set in, and the normal waist line is outlined by a stitched belt, buttoning at the front. The skirt is wide account. skirt is wide enough to allow perfect free-dom for the limbs, but not too short to be orn on the street on rainy day.

Notice the stock collar. These are said to be coming in again, which isn't at all surprising in this season of revivals. The of revivals. The sports hat is made of elt, although many of he fashionable milliners are showing ve-lours and plush for this use. I think they are really charming, so soft and becoming.

Jimmy South-Breeze Returns

THIS surely does seem good," said But he was unusually late in coming north this summer—maybe he found too much of interest in the Southland, maybe he was just lary, or maybe—well, the membered how pretty and comfortable this little garden was, I never would thing was that he came at all. have stopped so long in the Southland." He blew over the nasturtium bed, brushed the bright paney faces and nodded to

"Hello there!" excialmed Mr. Garden Toud as he hopped kplunk out into the middle of the garden path where Jimmy South-breeze jumped squarely on his back. "No need to ask "Who's there?" said the toad. "I know you. Jimmy, by your funny little giggle. I'm giad to see you," he added, turning around to get a better look at Jimmy. "What have you been doing all apring?" you," he added, turbing better look at Jimmy, been doing all spring?"

"Oh, dear me, Mr. Garden Toad," ex-claimed Jimmy in diamay, "you want to know so much? What have I been doing all spring? I've been doing everything I could think of, and some other things, too! And I never in the world could re-member what I did after it was done any-way, so there?"

Mr. Garden Toad blinked his eyes thoughfully. "Yes, I do now remember." he said seriously, "that your memory always was about as long as—as—as—" "As your nose," supplied Jimmy with a siggle, "and you haven't any nose!"

giggle. and you haven't any nose:"

Mr. Garsen Tond opened his mouth wide and susped up a bug that carelessly flew too near. Then he said, with a little twinkie shining in his eye as he spoke. "But I have a mouth, and that's more important. Come on Jimmy, want to ride on my back?"

Of course Jimmy did, So the two old friends stopped their talk Jimmy hung tight around Mr. Garden Tond's neck, and away they hopped down the path, up another path, and into the midst of the goldengiew bed! There Mr. Garden Tond stopped breathlessly and Jimmy slipped away to Inke a map.

THE DAILY STORY

Light Opera Plorence Mabley was engaged to Phillip Chope. She was a fair-looking girl and a general favorite in social circles, and she had a good voice for singing. Young Mr. Chope was the foreman of a department of his father's factory. He wasn't like other young men of the town. He didn't play pool nor cards, nor put on any particular style as to dress. He had been dubbed "Old Steady" when he was 18. He loved solid reading and there were problems in mechanics that he was any lower to solve.

when it became known that he and Florence Mabley were engaged the majority of the young folks said: "Why don't she marry a man of 10 and be done with

There are two things that heaps of girls have made fools of themselves over, and others will do so while time lasts. They either come to believe that they were born to become a great actress or a famous singer. Miss Florence Mabley be-

Heved in the latter.
"What a pity that you don't go to Boston and have your voice cultivated so that you can sing in light opera."
The wedding had been set for six weeks hence, when a stranger arrived in the town. The advent of a stranger was no novelty, but this stranger was about 20 years old, rather distinguished, and came on an errand that brought him in contact with the people at once. Mr. George Swift was an agent of the great Unit.

Swift was an agent of the great Universal Fire and Life insurance Company. When he had prevailed upon the four leading merchants to insure, the rest was iending merchants to insure, the rest was simple. When he had called at every business place the doors of all the private houses were open to him. It so happened that on the first day of his arrival Mr. Swift met Miss Florence on the street, and he saw her two or three times subsequently before calling at the house to see about insurance. The girl was singing and playing the plane when he arrived. He had an object beyond insurance in making a good impression, and he said to the mother before his presence was known to the daughter:

"What a sweet and wonderful voice!"

"Yes?"
"Is it a professional singer?"
"Oh. no. It is my daughter."
"Wonderful! Wonderful!"
And when he came to introduce himself to Miss Florence he said: "You must have been told that you ought to have your voice trained?"
"Yes many times." 'Yes, many times.

"You should go to Boston or New York." "I do want to."
"But she can't," put in the mother;

"It's too expensive."
"Yes, if you don't know the ropes, miled Mr. Swift.

"How the ropes?"
"The first step is to find a home. I have a married sister living in New York. She as taken pupils of the conservatory at half price on my recommen-"That's nice, mother," said Miss Flor-

"And I know the officials of the conservatory, and all the teachers. In fact, I am a stockholder, and that means a savam a stockholder, and that means a saving of one-half to any one I recommend."

"I have been told that it would cost more than $1000 a year," replied Mrs.

Mabley.

"To the general pupil, yes; to one I recommend about $300."

"Hear that, mother?"

"It don't seem possible!"

"It don't seem possible!"
"There are five lady pupils of mine now going through, and the cost to them is even less than that."

"Why, mother, you ought to let me start

"It is kind of you, sir," said the mother to Mr. Swift, "but my daughter is to be married in a few weeks." "She couldn't put that off, you know."But I would, mother!" exclaime

Mr. Swift had no more to say on the subject. He talked insurance, and he talked it so well that he talked is out of the mother. When he loft he said that it was rather lonely for a stranger to entertain himself in a stranger town. The hint was taken and he was invited to call any evening.

Mr. Chope was informed of the agent's call and what he had said about Miss Florence's voice and the rates she was to get if she took training, and he quietly

'Don't get excited over it. I believe the Universal Insurance Company is a fraud, and I believe this man Swift knows

"Then he must be a fraud!" bristled up Miss Florence "I think he is!"
"I shouldn't a bit wonder if he was."

said the mother, "and I am sorry I paid him that $5."
"Phillip Chope, you are as mean as dirt," exclaimed the gorl; "and, mother, I am actually ashamed of you!"

'Do you know thos man Swift?" was "This man! This man! Why do you call him this man?"

"Well, let us call him Mr. Swift, then."
"He is a gentleman." "Wait a week or so!" "And he offers to put me through the conservatory for half price." 'Very kind of him, but why?"

"Because he sees a great future for

"Florence, don't be silly," chided the "It's you and Phillip who are silly, and he is jealous, besides. He does not want me to have any future."

"You are to be my wife." he calmly "Perhaps so!" Mr. Chops saw trouble in the air, and he wisely changed the subject and cut short his call. He had hinted that Mr. Swift was a fraud. He had a detective at work seeing what could be unearthed against him, and the prospects looked good.

good.

Twice more did Mr. Swift call at the Mabley house, and on the second occasion the mother was out. Three days later a livery stable keeper met young Mr. Chope on the street and said:

"There's rather mysterious things going on. That insurance agent is preparing to skip out tonisht."

ing on. That insurance agent is prepar-ing to skip out tonight."
"You don't say?"
"He has engaged a rig of me for 7:30 to drive over to Monroe to catch the 9 o'clock train for New York. He is to drive it himself and leave it at a stable

"I guess it's time for him to go."
"And I guess he will not go alone."
"What do you mean?"
"I'll bet that a woman goes with him?"
"Some man's wife?"
"Can't say."

They had reached the postoffice, and Mr. Chope entered. Among his mail was a report from his detective. The insurance company was a fraud and Mr. Swift a swindler, and there were written proofs ance company was a fraud and Mr. Swift a swindler, and there were written proofs of it.

Mr. Chope was exultant, but all of a sudden his smile became a cold chill. There was a female going with Swift. Suppose it was Fiorence Mabiey. A boy was dispatched to see if the girl was home. He came back with the answer from the mother that Fiorence had gone to pass the night with a girl chum.

"I see" said Mr. Chope, but he was very calm about it.

He returned to the stables and ordered a ris for 7 o'clock, and when the hour came he drove away without any baggage except a revolver. He was pacing the depot platform when Mr. Swift drove up. "Florence," said Mr. Chope, "you may alt in the buggy for a few minutes Mr. Swift. I want to see you insida."

When the interview was over Mr. Swift would have gone to a hospital had there been one present. Every dollar he had taken for insurance had also changed hands, to be restored to the victims.

Mrs. Chope still has her voice, but it sings iuliables to the baby, leasead of light opers to the public.

WOMAN'S SHREWDNESS MAKES LOBSTER BUSINESS SUCCEED

Wins Much Patronage by Her Lively, Kicking, Energetic Stock and Increases It by Her Smiles-Little Shop Wins Great Wholesale Trade

noticed that men were especially particular about the kind of lobsters they ate. In fact, they seemed to be more finical about lobsters than any other kind of food. Then the thought flashed through her mind "why not go into the lobster business?" When the woman told a few of her closest friends about it they shook their heads and seemed to be sorry for her. It was and seemed to be sorry for her. It was ridiculous, some said, to think of making a living selling lobsters. Then they told Mrs. Pickett about all the big sea food firms that sold lobsters by the thousands. She heard of the great number of boats and establishments they had, and many declared that they owned almost all the bastes grounds off the coast of New grounds off the coast of New

But these apparent obstacles only in-creased Mrs. Pickett's determination. She quietly looked over the lobster market and the source of supply and decided to

She opened a little shop on 2th avenue, New York city. It was tastefully ar-ranged. It had none of the disagreeable ranged. It had none of the disagreeable features of the average fish and oyster shop. In fact, everything was so neat that the best dressed women and men envered it as cheerfully as they would a candy of jeweler's store.

They figured that such an attractive place would have reliable goods. That their deductions were correct was evident by the persistent increase in business. In keeping with the general aspect of the place was Mrs. Pickett herself. She seemed to be always in good humor and inaugurated a policy of courtesy which was carried out by her employes. Even the "grouchiest" kind of a customer, who thought there were no more good lobsters in the sea, usually left with a smile and a lobster or two.

The proprietress saw that there were

The proprietress saw that there were no tired looking or passe lobsters in the stock. Each crustacean had to stand on its merits, and as a result there was always a lively, kicking, energetic stock.

Mrs. Pickett also made it a point to become thoroughly acquainted with her business. She took frequent trips to the best lobster grounds, and saw the lob-sters when they were brought from the sea in their traps. Therefore, she could talk "lobsterology" with the exacting customers who prided themselves on be-

It is small wonder, then, that she suon required more help. She had to enlarge the shop. Even then it didn't hold enough

Three Voices

The Tree:
A wind of pain and longing
Strips my boughs of their apringtime.
I bow, and rock, and sweep the ground;
Then, in stience, hold me listening. Is this the after-calm in life, Or is it death?

The Spirit Within: And gave my heart in the springtime. Lonely I sought the whole world o'er For one glance more. Unseeing, he passed

And then I laid me down within this

The Wind:

Bow, bow your branches, O tree,
And sigh exceedingly that the Spirit within
May have memories of me.
For I am he who passed her by
In the springtime. ringtime. —Frances Shaw, in Poetry.

MRS. A. REICHARD Stamping and Embroidery mstitching, 10c per yard 1113 CHESTNUT STREET

WHEN your teeth penetrate an especially tasty lobster, one that is so good that it makes you talk about it, there is a possibility that it was picked by Mrs. M. C. Pickett.

She knows all about the real lobster, his habits and where the best of his kin is found. A few years ago Mrs. Pickett.

Dealers in other cities and States same.

of the sea by larger establishments.

Dealers in other cities and States sampled the Pickett lobsters, and orders began to pour in for them by the barrel. While it is true that the crustaceans came from the sea just like other ordinary lobsters, they all seemed to be tender, and there were no "seconds."

Now Mrs. Pickett has an office force to help take care of details, and it requires many wasgons to keep the stock moving. But she is still on the job daily with her smile—and the smile is gradually increasing.

CASH ASKED FOR 'FRISCO TRIP

Second Regiment Would Represent City at Exposition

Funds are being raised by the 2d Regiment, National Guard of Pennsylvania, to send a large representation of citizensoldiers to the Panama-Pacific Exposition at San Francisco. A special committee has been appointed to solicit banks and other financial institutions, and considerable success in this direction already has been attained.

This committee, consisting of Colonel A. H. Hartung, Colonel Henry T. Dechert, Major Frank L. Mueller and Lieutenant Robert F. Gordon, hopes to obtain sufficient money to send the entire regiment to the fair. While the workers are especially active among the banks, other firms and corporations have been asked to conand corporations have been asked to con-

The 2d Regiment was selected by the Legislature and the Governor as Pennsylvania's sole military representative at the exposition. This was due to the fact that it says it is the oldest regiment in the State. The honer was received at a possibility fortunate time, this beam the that it says it is the oldest regiment in the State. The honor was received at a peculiarly fortunate time, this being the 75th anniversary of its organization. In its appeal to the public the committee warns against false solicitors and asks that funds be given only to persons who can prove their official identity.

Say They Found Few Suffragists

Delaware County does not favor the Delaware County does not favor the suffrage movement, according to Mrs. Simeon H. Guilford, member of the Executive Board of the anti-suffragists, who, with Miss Helen Markeson and Mrs. Robert Anderson, has just returned from a second automobile tour of the county. "In our tour," she said, "we did not meet one man who was a suffragist and we heard of only three women who believed in the franchise for their sex."

GUESTS FOR SEASON AT ATLANTIC CITY

Thousands of One-Day Excursionists Enjoy Wild Waves and Sea Breeze-Many Visitors From Upstate Citles

NO ACCIDENTS ON BIG DAY

By a Braff Correspondent

ATLANTIC CITY, Aug. 21.-A notch higher in the capacity of this resort was struck yesterday when the immense throng which came here on Saturday was reinforced by one of the biggest armies of one-day excursionists that ever came to this city.

The Pennsylvania Railroad brought 27 sections of excursion trains into the main depot in the early morning, the first arriving at 5 o'clock. Each section was made up of from 12 to 14 cars, and every seat was taken on all of them. The excursions came from Altoona, Williamsport, Lewistown Junction, Harrisburg and Hanover, Pa., and from Frederick,

The trains left those points at midnight Saturday. Cars from other railroads were preased into service, and it was by far the biggest crowd of people that ever came from distant points for a one-day trip.

In addition to this big crowd, about 20 sections of regular excursion trains, on the Pennsylvania and Reading were sent to the Georgia and Missippi avenues' terminals. Over 200 parcels were checked at one railroad station before 8 o'clock in the morning, and the restaurants were sorely taxed to provide food for the excursionists who had been riding all night. The trains for distant point left at an early hour in the afternoon. There were no accidents, but the regular passenger service was delayed.

BUSINESS MEN HAPPY. Every business man was happy here yesterday, for the crowds spent their money freely. The beach was packed all day, eating places ran out of food early in the afternoon, and all the amusement places were busy.

In the early part of the season there was a howl here because people did not was a howl here because people aid not spend freely. The August crowds have shown that they have confidence in the future prosperity of the country by spending their money like the proverbial drunken sallor. People who came here from the interior of Pennsylvania stated that business had improved in that sec-tion, that mills and factories of all kinds were running full time and that money was plentiful

Although no exact estimate could be given of the number of persons here yes-terday, it was the biggest crowd that At-tantic City has seen this season. Whis two more weeks of business before the the business men of Atlantic City citis that this extraordinary rush at the of the season will stimulate capitalies to build for bigger and better things.

NEW HEAD DRESS SEEN.

NEW HEAD DRESS SEEN.

The veritable gale which swept in from the ocean Saturday night brought out a new style of head dress for the fair see. The winds distended skirts and sent there over the heads of the wearers, men lost their hats, rolling chairs were swerred in all directions, but a number of wins women discarded their hats and brough out veils to use as head coverings. Then were draped over the hair and brough down under the china and around the neck. Many of them were decorated with a small bunch of flowers on the front and novel methods of draping with hastily devised, and added to the cequettish appearance. Autumn winds will now have no terrors for the fair promenaders on the Boardwalk, as far as head coverings are concerned, and it is believed that shot sown in the hame of the second of the control of the control of the second of the coverings are concerned, and it is believed that shot sown in the heme of dresses will be utilised in the future to prevant skirts from being disarranged.

Saturday night Mr. and Mrs. Vernes Castle danced at one of the piers, are nearly 10,000 persons were present fam-ming the ballroom to suffocation and ming the ballroom to suffocation and compelling many women to sit on the dancing floor. Chairs were at a premium Only a small section of the mammoth ballroom was utilized for the exhibition dances, yet hundreds of those who paid to see the dancers only got fleeting glances, at their heads as they gilded around the floor. And yet every one was satisfied, for they were present at the first and only appearance of the Captles in Atlantic City. JESS WILLARD ON SHOW

JESS WILLARD ON SHOW.

Many guests journeyed to the Inlet to catch a glimpse of Jess Willard, the champion pugilist of the world. He kept out of the sight of the crowd as much as possible, for he recognizes the fact that he is a valuable asset to the show and himself at the present time, especially in the "two-bit" concert, which is given after the regular show, when he appears in arena costume. During the day every big man on the beach was followed by crowds, every man over six feet in height was taken for Willard, and the mere statement that the pugilist was feet in height was taken for Willard, and the mere statement that the puglish was near quickly drew a big crowd. Cus man, whose regular weekday work a to dispense mait and spirituous liquors, bore such a striking resemblance to the pictures of the puglish that he was compelled to leave the bathing beach and forego the pleasure of his weekly bath on account of the crowd following him.

That all of the crowds here are not That all of the crowds here are not pirasure-seekers, pure and simple, cap easily be proved by a glance at any of the churches during August. With extra chairs placed in position during the services they could not take care of the worshipers. When the collections were counted, many new crisp bills were seen. Small coins were conspicuous by their changes. It seems to be a fad to put Small coins were conspicuous by their absence. It seems to be a fad to put new money in the collection box.

Many added touches of color were no-ticed on the Walk yesterday, when Indians, Mexicans, Cossacks, cowboys and cowgirls, joined the procession and took in the sights. They are members of a Wild West show that arrived yesterday morning and is exhibiting today.

OPPENHEIM, CLLINS & C

Chestnut and 12th Sts.

Special for Today Afternoon Dresses

For Women and Misses

Attractive taffeta dresses (as illustrated) in navy, black or gray; sleeves, vestee and collar of georgette crepe; skirt with three deep folds.

Exceptional Value

18.00

SUMMER RESORTS

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.

OSTEND Occupying an entire block of ocean front and connected with the famous Boardwalk; in the popular Chelsen section; capacity 500; unusually large, cool rooms, with unobstructed view of the ocean from all; sea and fresh water in all baths; running water in rooms; 4000 ft. of porches surround the hotel; the new dining room overlooks the sea; fines cuisine and white service; orchestra of sale ists; dancing twice daily; social diversions, magnificent new Paim Loungs. Special—421 up weekly; booklet muited. Auto meets trains. CSTEND CO., Owners.

TRAYMORE A Bold Original Greation SUBMASINE CRILL IN ST. JAMES HOTEL St. James Place and Beach (between Tann. & New York aves.), First-class table. $2 up dly.; $10 up whiy. D.C.PENNYPACKER, Mgr.

BEACH HAVEN, N. J. HOTEL BALDWIN OTEL BALDWIN Open All Year Ideal modern hotel; capacity 400; Amer & European plane; cafe & grill; garage. Booklet.

WILDWOOD, N. J. EDGETON INN Cap. 200. White service Free Bath Houses. J. ALBERT HARRIS. The Wade Glenwood & Pacific aves. Rate

WILDWOOD NORTH, N J. WILDWOOD SANITARIUM
PENNSTLVANIA AVE. AT 2078
N. WILDWOOD, N. J.
on for season. MARGARET MACE. M. D.

Chalfonte Sth & Ocean ave. Ocean view CAPE MAY, N. J. Glenwood Near station & Beach. Course Sincers. 60c. L. J. ROGERS.

OCEAN CITY, N. J.

RIVER STRAMBOATS THOMAS CLYDE Family Excursion Steamer to AUGUSTINE BEACH

100 Miles 50 Cents Comping at Chaster and Pennagrove Only Boat to Augustine Bench maining in front of grows; sate sate was me; 500 anningy bathreams. Pull of site on boat and heach; dancing all of sites on boat and heach; dancing all of all kinds of a warrants at bear SUMMER RESORTS WILDWOOD, N. J.

Thursday Aug. 26™

A Stupendous, Gorgeous, Joyous

Carnival

See the beautiful Queen and the captivating ladies of her court in their magnificent robes of state.

1000 Babies

will be in the pageant. Prises for the prettiest and fattest babies and for twins. Also for fancy costumes, comic costumes, family groups, most artistically decorated baby couch and most artistically decorated float.

d. WHITESELL, City Clerk