

HOW TO WIN TRADE OF SOUTH AMERICA, AND HOW TO HOLD IT

S. S. Brill Points Out That Methods With Our Latin Neighbors Must Closely Reflect Those Used in U. S.

MANY FALSE TEACHERS Alleged Experts Convey Erroneous Ideas to American Merchants and Manufacturers

Latin-American Trade Epigrams

To build up a trade with Latin America takes men, money and patience. Just as it does at home.

Trade does not follow the enactment of laws or the adoption of sets of glowing resolutions, nor can the development of export trade be forced.

The proper methods to be employed by business men of the United States who desire to take advantage of the immense field of opportunity in South America and the Latin American merchant were emphasized today by Philadelphia merchants by S. S. Brill, of the Department of Commerce.

Mr. Brill has spent 25 years in South America as a business man, and he is regarded as one of the most thoroughly informed authorities on South American business demands in this country.

There is a type of South American business investigator with whom a large number of business men are painfully familiar," he said.

"Talking through the hat," he said, "is the difference between a mark, franc, shilling and a peso without any real business knowledge."

Intimations that the Board of Revision of Taxes is preparing to allow only a $25,000,000 increase in property valuations for the coming year is causing some apprehension among the councilmanic leaders.

The municipal financiers of the Organization, committed to a $1 tax rate, will have troublesome problems to solve during the coming year.

It is pointed out that, if the Board of Revision of Taxes allows only a $25,000,000 increase in assessments, the amount will be less than half the increase allowed last year and far below the increase allowed during preceding years.

of mills and factories in 1914 will probably reach the fabulous amount of $25,000,000,000, or more than the value of the output of Great Britain and Germany's mills and factories combined.

"At the rate we are progressing it will be necessary to look for an outlet in foreign countries for our products as well as to intend to keep our mills and factories going. The necessity for these foreign markets will, no doubt, be more pressing than at present, but the time to look for these markets is at present.

"To take the necessary steps which will result in a closer acquaintance with buyers in other countries, not only the development of export trade but forced. It must work itself into systematic being in answer to business requirements.

"The essential factors appertaining to the development of our commerce with Latin America and the necessary steps to be taken by American business men to establish permanent business relations with those countries may be summed up as follows:

"To use every effort for the prompt establishment of proper and adequate independent transportation and banking facilities.

"To send out experienced commercial travelers who have a good knowledge of the languages, customs, and conditions of the countries they enter.

"To have an experienced man attend to the foreign business at this end, a man fully conversant with the details of export trade.

"To manufacture those products needed by the customer, even if the demand is different from that of the home market.

"To extend credit on account of the geographical condition in accordance with the customs prevailing and corresponding to those of other countries.

"To appreciate more fully the importance of correct packing and making of merchandise and the absolute necessity of sending shipping documents on the steamers which are used.

"To advertise properly and to correspond in the language of the respective countries and, by all means, to eliminate generalities and judge by facts.

"To remember that what is said to one country is not always applicable to another, and what may be true of the conditions in Argentina may not be true of those in Chile, or that what may be true of one State in the country may not be true of another.

"To remember that the systems of doing business with South American countries are not much different from those of the United States, but that the application of the systems and the methods of carrying them out are different from those at home.

"To train young men by practical, efficient methods for foreign trade.

"To employ with preference and, whenever possible, American men."

"FIRST-AID" ADVICE TO MOSQUITO VICTIMS OFFERED BY THE CITY

Various Remedies and Preventives Prescribed by Health Department to Residents of Afflicted Sections

"Eliminate everything which exposes moisture or garbage to the open air. Apply oil of citronella to the face, hands and ankles. Burn Chinese punk or some other effective smudge. If bitten treat the wound with an alkali, such as ammonia or borax. If the wound becomes infected treat with a disinfectant and consult a physician."

This advice is given by Director S. Lewis Ziegler, of the Bureau of Health and the mosquito-bitten residents of South and West Philadelphia. He regrets that the mosquito nuisance has not been abated in those sections, and asserts that the health authorities have done their utmost to exterminate the pests with the money at their disposal.

Residents of the afflicted sections assert that they now have a single aim—namely, to see that an appropriation of $50,000 is made in the annual budget in September of sanitation for the purpose of eliminating swamps, ponds and other mosquito-breeding places from the city.

Director Ziegler said today that he had asked Councils repeatedly for appropriations to be used in the mosquito campaign, but had been without success, although he was given assurance that he would receive such money—in the future. He now proposes to renew his efforts when Councils reconvene in September, and if successful, will beget immediately to eradicate mosquito-breeding conditions in order that a start may be made toward abating the nuisance next year.

In the meantime, the Director asserts that much may be done by residents of South and West Philadelphia in eliminating such conditions on their own property and on that of neighbors who may be away from home. Philadelphia out the pressure in pavements, neglected cupboards, barrels, chicken pans, watering troughs, bottles, broken china, tin cans, flower pots, defective plumbing and a host of other things, which, though thought of as mosquito-breeding places, may serve for the laying of the hundreds of eggs which a female mosquito will lay at one time. They will, he points out, breed indoors as well as outside, the only requirement being that the water is stagnant.

When asked his opinion on the proposal that the city insert clauses in all contracts involving excavation to the effect that dirt mounds deposited in September of the health authorities in swamps and ponds, Director Ziegler agreed that it would be a feasible proposition, but thought that it would be better to obtain the co-operation of other departments at City Hall.

"At one time," he said, "I offered the proper authorities all the ashes that come from the Philadelphia Hospital, thinking that they might be taken to South Philadelphia and used in filling the swamps and ponds in that section, but the offer was rejected because of the cost of hauling."

Others interested in the mosquito warfare say that if the contracts for the removal of ashes awarded each year contained the "mosquito elimination clause" the filling of these swamps could be realized at "a ridiculously small figure."
