BAL MASQUE AT CAPE MAY PROVES A GREAT SUCCESS

Masquerade Dance at the Hotel Cape May Scene of Gaiety and Jollification-Bridge Parties. Red Mill Dances Popular

CAPE MAY, Aug. 17. TIRTH reigned supreme and fun waxed M fast and furious at the costume dance given on Wednesday night in the grill of the New Hotel Cape May. Amid a swarm of balloons which were blown hither and thither over the heads of the dancers, a motley throng, representing all the types and characters beleved of the masquerader, threaded its Soft golden-tinted lights interspersed with Japanese lanterns shed a glow over the grill room, and the openair cafes adjoining were transformed into old-fashloned gardens with rows of sunflowers and hollyhocks growing against a latticed background. The dancing began at 10 o'clock, lasting until the proverbial wee sma' hour. The costumes were original in the extreme, and while many of the guests had procured special attire for the casion, quite a number trusted to their own ingenuity in converting a conventional frock or suit into an unusual one.

Miss Dorothy Frick, of Baltimore, looked quite stunning in a Pierrot costume of black and white. Her frock was short-waisted and quite full, of white lawn with a black figure in it and was tipped by a wide ruff of white. With this she wore a little black-and-white peaked she wore a little black-and-white peaked hat. Dancing with her was M. C. Aplin Spacks dressed as a private with a red bandana bound around his head. Miss E-Spencer Miller, 3d, and Miss Mildred White were dainty artists in pale pink smocks with black velvet caps and another artist was Miss Elizabeth Keanedy, a reliew smock with her black garet Keenan, at her cottage in Ventnor, N. J. other artist was Miss Elizabeth Keanedy, who wore a yellow smock with her black relvet cap. A seemingly grotesque Charlie Chaplin proved to be Mr. Ferdinand Graves, whose wife looked extremely well in a sapphire blue oriental costume. Miss Selby Tell was a very demure little girl in a short blue frock and socks, and, of course, there were Jack tars, among them Mr. Charles Davis and Mr. William Chunn. William Chunn. Miss Ethel Shields gave a stunning poster effect in an artist's costume of black and white, while brilliant in color-ing was Mr. Billy Morris as a Dutch boy. Among others present were Miss Mary Evelyn Chew, Mr. Fritz Freeman, Mr. and Mrs. John Blakeley, Mrs. David Young, Miss Mary Potter, Mrs. F. W. Self-Expression

Timidity, self-consciousness, lack of confidence, prevent many people from expressing their deeper ideas and feelings. This arrests personal growth, weakens influence and diminishes success. The Neff College courses put men and women in possession of themselves and start them on a career of personal, social and business ascendancy.

There are Day Courses, beginning and advanced evening classes of men only, and for men and women; classes, beginning and advanced, for men and women Saturday morning and Saturday afternoon; children's classes Saturday merning; class for women Tuesday afternoon; instruction privile and by correspondence. All courses leaf 't diploma and degrees. Send for general circular, new catalog and booklet on Education and Success.
