

EXPLOSIONS AT TWO POWDER MILLS POINT TO ORGANIZED PLOT

Destruction of Plants at Acton and Wilmington Under Probe by Secret Service

OFFICIALS RETICENT

Damage at Other Factories During Past Weeks Blamed on Same Sources

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—That a well-organized plot exists to destroy munition factories that are turning out supplies for the Allies is the belief of officials here, who have been investigating the various German propaganda charges.

The wrecking of the American Powder Company's blasting mill at Acton, Mass., yesterday, which will tie up that plant for several weeks, destruction of a black powder mill at Upper Hargley, a suburb of Wilmington, Del., with the death of two men, following close on explosions at half a dozen other points the last week are considered far more than mere coincidences.

They deny pointblank that they are investigating anything else, despite the fact that it is positively known that a number of the best men in the secret service "leaked" to the State Department for confidential work. These are the men who are working on the German case, and it is believed that they already have started an investigation of the powder plant explosions.

Department of Justice investigators are expected also to co-operate on the case. They are also endeavoring to locate the source of various mysterious wireless messages that have been sent from the coast of the Atlantic coast. These messages, which have been copied at a number of points, have mystified experts. It was at first thought that they came from the Sayville plant, but the censorship there has been tightened and now only approved messages are sent out. But the mysterious messages have kept coming, and investigators are endeavoring to find out whether they are sent by some person with a "high-power experimental set" is having some fun with the wireless experts.

TWO MURDER SUSPECTS HELD; DETECTIVES SEEK A THIRD

Believed to Know Facts Concerning Assassination of Chester County Farmer

WEST CHESTER, Aug. 30.—County Detective E. O. Jeffrey now has two persons under arrest in connection with the assassination of William Lemmon, a West Grove farmer, a week ago, and his deputies are seeking a man supposed to be in Delaware.

The last man arrested is Isaac Thomas, a West Grove negro, who is being held as an accessory to the murder. Cora Lee was locked up some days ago and is in prison here, also as an accessory.

Both the prisoners are supposed to know the facts of the murder, but the man who lay in wait for Lemmon, and shot him as he stepped into a dark path from his motor car in company with a nephew, has disappeared.

RUSH TO PAY TAXES

Receiver's Office Crowded With Persons Eager to Avoid Penalty

The office of the Receiver of Taxes was invaded today by a small army of persons who wished to pay their city and school taxes before the expiration of the month, thus escaping the penalty of 1 per cent, which is imposed in the cases of delinquents.

On Saturday the department took $1,200,000 in taxes, which brought the receipts for the month up to $7,200,000. In August, 1914, the receipts were $1,600,000. Since January 1, of this year, the school and realty taxes were $4,448,000; payments for the corresponding period were $14,700,000. The total payments last year were $22,600,000.

ATTACK "BIRTH OF NATION"

"Dr." Moses Stern Presides at Meeting of Protest

A bitter protest against "The Birth of a Nation," the moving-picture drama which is to open at the Forrest Theatre next Saturday, was forwarded to Mayor Blankenburg today in the form of a typewritten paper of resolutions adopted at a meeting held last night on the City Hall plaza.

"Doctor" Moses Stern presided at the meeting, and although the audience was composed largely of white men, E. A. Casner, a negro, and A. A. Taylor, a Cherokee Indian, were the principal speakers of the evening. The ground upon which the picture was attacked was that it might cause racial difficulties in this city.

BLAMES DRINK FOR CRIME

Ex-Convict, in Toils for Theft, Holds Highballs Responsible

Poisoning of highballs, according to James McFadden, 44 years old, of 40th and Green streets, is responsible for his arrest today in Camden accused of burglary. McFadden recently completed a sentence of 18 years in the Eastern Penitentiary.

McFadden was arrested by a motorcycle policeman. He had a loaded revolver, $300 worth of diamonds and $1. He was taken into custody when found staggering about East Camden. Investigation by the police disclosed that the home of Charles Zang, of Belair, N. J., had been robbed last Saturday night. Mr. Zang today identified the diamonds found on McFadden.

"If I had kept away from highballs I probably wouldn't have been caught," said McFadden, as he was led to a cell.

TO SERVE WARRANTS ON 1200 MOTORISTS

Police Prepare for Wholesale Prosecution of Northeast Boulevard Speeders

More than a thousand motorists, who have been "burning up the road," along the Northeast Boulevard, will be required to pay into the treasury of the city certain specified sums in fines within the next few weeks, according to Police Captain McFadden, of the 4th police division.

For months the police have been troubled by the boulevard speeders. Nearly every car that could be coaxed into breaking the 24-mile speed limit on the fine thoroughfare has been tried out at some time or other, the police say, and accidents have been numerous.

Drivers of some cars rode without tail lights and frequently stopped in the middle of the road. Other cars crashed into them and there was work for the hospitals. Motorists who tried to drive at a sane pace along the boulevard began to complain.

Captain McFadden, who has charge of the district, including the boulevard, accordingly put eight motorcycle policemen and eight plain clothes men at work to get numbers. They have been at this for three or four weeks, and now have names of 1200 motorists accused of breaking the speed law.

Autoist Held for Boy's Death

John Green, Sr., 1923 North 3rd street, was arrested today by Motorcycle Police man Fritz, charged with running down 15-year-old William Burkhardt, 3111 Van Kirk street, in an automobile on the Northeast Boulevard. The boy died from his injuries. Green was arraigned before Magistrate Beaton at the Central Police Court and held to await the action of the Coroner.

HOUSES OF RICH ROBBED

Germantown, Folk Discover Thefts When They Return

Four wealthy Germantown residents, returning from their vacations, found their homes had been robbed, it was reported to the police today.

The home of Miss Esther Smith, at 155 East Coulter street, was ransacked while she was at Newport. The loss will not be known until her return, said her brother, Edward W. Smith, of 735 East Penn street. Other homes robbed were those of the Rev. Norman V. P. Lewis, 199 West Coulter street; S. V. Merrick, 4219 Wayne avenue, and C. H. Landenberg, Jr., 615 Westview street. The police believe that the same man entered all the houses.

A hold-up was reported by Mrs. Pauline Langerman, 618 Moore street. As she was leaving a shoe store at 7th and Moore streets last night, she was snatched her pocketbook, containing $50 in jewelry and money.

Louis Reda, 303 Green street, reported that he was jostled and his pocket was picked as he was leaving a car at 3d and Green streets. The pickpockets secured an unset diamond valued at $100 and $13 in money.

SUNDAY BALL GAME STOPPED

Ally of "Lib. Sun." Chief Arrested and Reprimanded

A 15-minute speech on behalf of Sunday baseball by Charles Schatzmann, of 1715 North 4th street, a follower of Dr. Moses Stern and the "Lib. Sun." advocates, ended in a hearing before Magistrate Holtz today. Schatzmann was accused of heating District Detectives Martin and McGrath, of the 4th and York streets police station, when the policemen broke up a game of ball between the Mud Gutters and the Flatiron nines on a vacant lot at 4th street and Columbia avenue yesterday.

McGrath and Martin ran out on the field and seized the battery of the Mud Gutters in the middle of the sixth inning, when the Flatiron nines, by six runs, when an angry crowd swarmed about the policemen, and Schatzmann attempted the capture of both. He was unsuccessful. Magistrate Holtz freed him this morning with a warning.

ACCUSES "FRIENDS" OF THEFT

Man Declares He Was Lured to Their Room and Robbed

Two men, who temporarily repaired their broken finances, according to the police, by inviting a friend to their room on the promise that he would meet there on a beautiful woman who was thinking of matrimony, are being held in $500 bail each for court, and have been forced to give up the money which, it is said, they got from him.

They are John R. Jones, 40 years old, and Raymond Skokey, 27 years old, both of the South 4th street. Their accuser is John Schofsky, 604 South Front street. He said he was robbed of $40 when his "friends" attacked him.

AVAST, SMUGGLED FURS, MAYBE? AWFULLY CHEAP AND DEAR AT THAT

Beware, Milady, When the Rollicking Jack Tar Opens Up His Mysterious Sea Chest Full of Sables and Hisses "Sh-h-h" to You

A blast of salt air blew into an office in the shadow of City Hall. Tanned employees, who had just returned from seashore vacations, looked up expectantly and were amazed to see a genuine sailor lugging a weather-beaten sea chest. He put his finger to his lips cautiously, placed his burden on the floor and closed the door noiselessly. Then he said "Sh-h-h"

His mysterious action immediately brought the click of typewriters and the buzz of voices to a stop. From the tip of his stub-topped to the top of his barnacled hat it could be seen that the visitor was a son of the sea, and the atmosphere of the Nancy Lee radiated from his storm-tossed clothes. It is small wonder that the landlubbers deserted their craft and mobbed about him with curiosity on edge.

Before a word could gladden the silence the man from the deep bit a chunk from his plus of rough-and-ready and opened his chest with an air of triumph. There was a gasp of amazement when its contents came to view. Before the lubbers could recover from their surprise the sneaky seaman passed out an emphatic wink as a preface of the news to come.

FURS FROM LANDS AFAR

In the chest was a cargo of furs, which would thrill the heart of the most fastidious feminine. There were pelts of the silver fox, lynx, seal, sable, leopard skins and parts of the hides of many beasts which haunt the treacherous forests of far off lands. And they were all transformed in dainty manner for adornment of milady's neck. There were muffs and hats, which would have attained pre-eminence in an "opening" of the most exclusive store.

Mingled murmurs of admiration preceded a wordy explanation by the brawny man of the brine. In sheer ecstasy the spectators soon had his furry treasures spread on desks and tables, and the closed view seemed to enhance their value.

Meanwhile the seaman was looking out the window in evident amazement at a nearby skyscraper. "How many decks atop that craft?" he asked before there was a question about the magnificent stock.

He gave a double hitch to his trousers and he blinked at the sidewalk from the high window.

EVIDENTLY JUST LANDED. "Ret' he's just landed," said one of the office force. "Not ashore a day," said another. And before the visitor could tell why he happened to be here, he was besieged by a score of employes for prices of the furs.

He seemed to be unaware of their actual value, and by a casual word or two he let those about him understand that he got them ashore on the "Q. T."

"I dunno the walley of these things," he said as he wiped his chin. "Yes, see I hunched 'em from traders over at Archangel and Irkutsk, an' I got a few of 'em on the coasts that the traders lugged over from Siberia. Sh-h, they're smuggled goods, d'y'e see?"

VALUES "FEELINGS" AT $12.50

Icceman Claims Damages to Sensibilities in Addition to Pecuniary Loss Suffered in Dispute

Are the injuries to a man's personal feelings worth $12.50? This question was brought up before Magistrate Beaton today at the Central Police Court when Philip and Bertha Holtz, of 5711 Woodland avenue, were arraigned before him accused of attacking Richard Dutton, an iceman, of 704 Walnut street, Darby.

Dutton said that when he went to collect an ice bill at the Holtz home a quarrel arose over the amount. Mr. and Mrs. Holtz, he asserted, locked him in the house and then called some women friends to help in beating him.

When the prisoners were held in $500 bail for a further hearing, this did not satisfy Dutton. He asked for $25 damages.

"How do you make that out?" asked the Magistrate.

"I had to get a new shirt for three dollars and a hat for a dollar," said Dutton, "and I had to get a pair of pants for two dollars, and four visits to the doctor cost two dollars more."

"That's only seven fifty," the Judge declared. "I deserve twenty fifty for injuries to my feelings," said Dutton.

At a further hearing of the case the financial end of the matter may be adjusted.

Dying From Automobile Injury

LANCASTER, Pa., Aug. 30.—"Hard to Beat" Ellis, a hobo who has spent 60 of his 78 years in jail is lying at the point of death in the county hospital. He was found by a farmer lying unconscious in a road in the southern end of the county last night. He had been there during Sunday night's heavy downpour. "Hard to Beat" had been struck by an unidentified automobilist.

BRIGHTEN THE CORNER WHERE SOUTH ST. IS

Wood Blocks, New Lights, Removal of Awnings on Improvement Program

A new day has dawned for South street. A movement has been started to make the street bright and clean and cheerful, and work is now under way.

The old order on South street is to change. This metamorphosis was actually started Saturday when the first wood block was laid at Sixth street. The entire street, from Second street to the Schuylkill River, is to be paved with wood blocks.

This is but one of the many changes to be made. All of the awnings that, in great abundance, extend over the sidewalk from the South street stores are to be torn down, and the pavements will be unobstructed. Telegraph and telephone wires will be placed underground and the poles supporting them will be removed.

The South street merchants even want to name the street anew in order that the change will be more complete. They say the name of their thoroughfare has come to have an odious sound in the ears of Philadelphia people. They suggest as a substitute "University avenue."

There are to be 35 new lights on the street—big lights that will make the illumination compare favorably with that of any other thoroughfare in the city. And with the improvements will come better trolley facilities. For the business men hope to have the 2d street line, which now ends at Dock street, turned west over South street and then southward to Snyder avenue.

BRILLS GET HUGE WAR ORDERS

Motor Equipment Worth $10,000,000 Contracted For

The J. G. Brill Company, car builders, has received orders from Great Britain for 6-inch high explosive shells, aggregating $3,000,000, it was announced today. It was also reported that the same firm had received large orders for other war supplies, including motor ambulances, field motor-machine-shops and field motor-kitchens, which would exceed $10,000,000.

A representative of the company denied that it had received any orders for shells, but admitted orders for the vehicles. He said the firm had been making these for some time.

Some of the Brill orders quickly spread and the workmen believe conditions argue well for a busy season.

SMUGGLED FURS "FAKE"

So two of the most athletic employes engaged the visitor in the corridor while the scouts steamed off to get a line on the cargo. They were greeted with a hearty laugh when they showed their bargains to the head of a fur department. "That's fake stuff," he said, "it's worth very little. You've paid 20 times too much for it."

The news was flashed to the office by phone, and in a moment the seafaring man was surrounded by the enemy. He dug out the bag and forked out all the cash, with a sigh.

Then he pulled up his anchor and wigwagged for an elevator. The very "wise" buyers looked crestfallen.

"That swindle could only have been pulled off in one other place," said the boss, "and that's in the Detective Bureau."

So, beware, milady, of the seaman just ashore and his smuggled furs. There's nothing to it.

PLANNING SEWER SYSTEM

Surveys Bureau Making Drafts for Ashdale Street Extension in Oak Lane

The Bureau of Surveys is at work on plans for additional sewer facilities for that part of Oak Lane which comes within the Philadelphia County line.

Residents of that section have been protesting against the present inadequate system, but Chief Webster, of the Bureau of Surveys, has not had sufficient funds to provide the additional sewers demanded.

It is estimated that the cost of a complete 10-inch sewer pipe system in the section would cost $300,000. The plans now drafted propose the extension of the Ashdale street 10-inch sewer to Olney.

House sewage in Oak Lane will be carried to a pumping station to be erected at 6th avenue and Old York road, and from there will be directed through a 600-foot pressure main in Haines street and Ogontz avenue to the main sewer at Chelton and Ogontz avenues.

The estimated cost of the changes now proposed is $7,500 for the piping and $18,500 for the construction of the pumping station.

TO URGE JEWISH NATION

Russian Revolutionist to Advocate Restoration of Palestine at Mass-Meeting Tonight

A world-wide organization of Jews to obtain the restoration of Palestine and form a Jewish nation will be advocated at a mass-meeting in the Arch Street Theatre tonight by Peter Rubenberg, one of the most picturesque figures in the Russian revolutionary movement.

Rubenberg, with Father Gapon, led the Russian peasants against the palace of the Czar in January, 1905, which became known as "Red Sunday," and as "Martin Ivanovitch" Rubenberg was one of the party that planned the assassination of Minister Von Plehve and Grand Duke Sergius.

Rubenberg intends to accomplish his work by calling a Jewish congress, which will demand of the world the freedom of the Jewish nation, with the fullest political and national equality for the Jews in every country in the world. He is supported in the movement by Louis D. Brandeis, Congressman Meyer London, a New York Socialist; Judge Leon Sanders, of New York, and Dr. L. S. Rubinsohn.
