

JITNEURS LOSE FIGHT TO RESUME BUSINESS; JUDGE REJECTS PLEA

Requests for Injunction, Which Would Have Permitted Nickel Cars to Return to Streets, Denied

LAWYERS STILL HOPE

Doyle Declares He Has Another Plan to Win for His Clients

Judge Ferguson this afternoon denied the jitneys of Philadelphia their two requests for injunctions against the city of Philadelphia, which would have permitted them to begin operations at once.

The court handed down two decisions. In the decision on the application of Michael Francis Doyle, attorney for the Philadelphia Jitney Association and the South Philadelphia Jitney Owners' Association, Judge Ferguson denied the request on the ground that the jitneys might have been more prompt in asking the court to intervene. He called attention to the fact that any one of the jitneys could have prevented the vacation of the original injunction, granted by Judge Sulzberger by filing the bond asked of $2500.

The court also contended if the jitney men were being done irreparable damage they should have begun new court proceedings as soon as the major portion of the original injunction was vacated.

In the case of the application of the Union Motor Bus Company made by Harry M. Berkowitz and Harry Shapiro, Judge Ferguson refused the injunction on the ground that, while the question they brought up in their petition differed somewhat from the original application for an injunction, their action should have been begun in Common Pleas Court No. 1, in which court the case is pending.

Mr. Doyle expressed regret when he saw the decision, but said he had no doubt that ultimately he would obtain the desired results.

Continuing, Mr. Doyle said he had a plan of action in mind that he would immediately put into operation. For the present he would not say just what course of procedure he would pursue.

Mr. Berkowitz was also confident that he could win the case for the jitney men, and said that he had filed a new bill in equity which would be in Common Pleas Court No. 1, and, therefore, be prepared to join with the attorney for other jitney men in order that a victory might be secured.

Although Mr. Doyle would not divulge the nature of his contemplated action to get the jitneys back on the street, it is understood that the plan is to have a jitney driver arrested, and fight the case in the court in order to test the constitutionality of the jitney ordinance.

General regret was heard among the scores of jitney owners and operators, who had been standing around the City Hall all day in the hope that they might begin to pull in the nickels. Several of them declared that the decision of Judge Ferguson spelled financial ruin.

They asserted that they owned part of the costs of their cars and other bills which their creditors had been willing to stay because of their hope that a new preliminary injunction would be granted and the jitneys could then make sufficient money to meet their obligations.

Very few of the owners and operators entertain any hope of being privileged to run until some time after September 20, when Judge Sulzberger will listen to an appeal for a date for a final hearing of the original injunction proceedings.

GAINS A DOUBTFUL VICTORY

Cherokee Indian Who Has Served Most of Sentence Finds He Was Falsely Tried

Tonkin S. Davis, a Cherokee Indian, and formerly private in the 3d Regiment, 1st Marine Corps, has won a victory that resembles the successful operation in which a patient dies. Judge Dickinson of the United States District Court, today upheld Davis' contention that he should have been tried by an army court instead of a civil court, but unfortunately for the prisoner the decision was not made until his sentence is about to expire.

Davis was found guilty of stabbing a comrade while his regiment was detached for service in the army at Vera Cruz. A naval court-martial sentenced him to a year in jail. He may now petition the court for an order for a new trial or stay in prison the few months remaining of his sentence, consulting himself with the thought of his legal victory.

ACCUSED OF ATTACKING GIRL

Three Men Arrested and Police Seeking Two Others

Three young men were held without bail by Magistrate Boyle, in the 39th street and Lancaster avenue police station today, on charges of assaulting a 14-year-old girl in Fairmount Park. Two other youths, who were participants in the alleged assault, according to the police, will be arrested some time today. A further hearing is to be held on Saturday.

Missing Husband Found in Jail

Mrs. Stephen Lambert, 66 East Walnut lane, Germantown, who, after receiving a note yesterday from her husband saying that she would never see him again, believed that he had committed suicide, learned today that her missing spouse was lodged in a cell in Moyamensing prison, under $500 bail for court on a charge of disorderly conduct. He wrote the letter, she learned, after Magistrate Boyle had held him in bail after hearing charges preferred against him by Park guards.

Steward of Quarantined Liner Dies

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—The cholera scare on the docks of Hoboken increased today when Gottlieb Stroehne, a steward on the liner Vaterland, died after an illness of only six hours. The body was sent to an undertaking establishment, but immediately ordered back to the pier by the Hoboken health officers. An autopsy is being performed. Hamburg-American line doctors say Stroehne died of heart disease.

JOHN HAYS HAMMOND, JR., CRITICISES NAVY NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—A criticism of the United States navy is contained in the report, issued today, of John Hays Hammond, Jr., who represented the Conference Committee on National Preparedness at the Governors' Conference in Boston. Hammond's chief complaint is that the American warships are only half manned and have not enough officers to handle them properly in time of war.

KAISER REBUKES COMMANDERS ON WEST FRONT LONDON, Sept. 2.—A Central News dispatch dated "northern France" says it is reliably stated that the Germans on the western front are evolving new campaign plans as the result of a stinging letter from the Kaiser upbraiding the commanders for their failure in the present operations.

DESIGNER OF BIG GERMAN GUN HONORED BERLIN, Sept. 2.—The Technical Academy at Karlsruhe has conferred upon Prof. Otto Rausenberger, who designed the famous 1644-inch Krupp gun, the degree of Doctor of Engineering honoris causa. Making this announcement, the Overseas News Agency adds: "A unique celebration has been held by the artillerymen with a battery of Austrian 30-centimeter mortars on the Isoneo line. One mortar fired its 1200th shot. This same mortar last year helped to reduce the fortifications of Namur and Antwerp, Belgium. This demonstrates the durability of the heavy Austrian guns."

AUSTRIA MUNITIONS WORKERS IN U. S. WARNED AMSTERDAM, Sept. 2.—Following the example of Germany, the Austro-Hungarian Government now announces, according to the Frankfurter Zeitung, that all Austrians and Hungarians in neutral countries, particularly in the United States, are warned not to work in factories producing war material for enemies of the dual monarchy. This newspaper says that violation of the decree is punishable by imprisonment of 10 to 20 years, and even by capital punishment under certain conditions.

BRITISH JAIL WAR WRITER MANCHESTER, England, Sept. 2.—Theodore Sington, a British journalist of German parentage, was sentenced today to six months in jail for writing for American newspapers matter "calculated to prejudice the relations of the British Government with neutral countries." When arrested, on August 21, Mr. Sington denied that his articles were intended for publication.

SCULPTOR SAYS COP FLIRTED WITH WIFE

Policeman Who "Uses" His Eyes Accused of Hugging Woman

A dapper young policeman who was quoted as saying that he was "not afraid to die" was before the Police Board of Inquiry today accused of conduct unbecoming an officer in paying too much attention to the pretty 22-year-old wife of Peter Albert Schroeder, a sculptor and former officer in the German army.

The bluecoat is Benjamin Schurr, of the Front and Master streets station. Schroeder testified that the alleged flirtation between his wife and the policeman had been going on for some time before he learned of it. He produced a number of notes that he said had been written by the woman to Schurr.

On one occasion, according to Schroeder, his wife and Schurr had an engagement to meet at 63d and Market streets. Schroeder heard about it and insisted on going along. When he saw Schurr he went up and demanded to know the man's name. Finally Schurr told him. In the course of the argument that followed, according to Schroeder, Schurr said:

"All men are pigs. If a man has 20 wives, he wants 21."

When Schroeder, after telling Schurr what he thought of him, was about to leave with his wife, he says Schurr asked:

"Well, shall we greet each other when we meet upon the street hereafter, or shall we act as though we were strangers?"

"I don't want you to talk to me or to my wife," said Schroeder.

"Oh, Albert," said Mrs. Schroeder, "let the gentleman speak to us."

Schroeder, however, was adamant, according to his own story, and he and his wife left.

Schurr's story was that he went into the Schroeders' house one morning and asked Mrs. Schroeder to cook his breakfast, saying he was all alone.

"I'm all alone every day," said Mrs. Schroeder.

The handsome patrolman then caught the woman in his arms and gave her several hugs and kisses. It was testified.

Counsel for Schurr brought out that Schroeder beat his wife for receiving Schurr's attentions. Neighbors heard her cries for help and sent another policeman in to see what was wrong.

Schroeder refused to answer when asked if he was not under bail in this or some other case.

Mrs. Schroeder testified that she tried to keep Schurr away by saying that her husband would kill him.

"I'm not afraid to die," he said. Schroeder asserted that Schurr threatened to arrest him at one time, but, on being dared to carry out his threat, lost his nerve.

Mrs. Schroeder, who is about 22 years old and attractive, in describing her occupation, said she is a trained nurse and a licensed chauffeur.

The bluecoat maintained an attitude of calm throughout the hearing. He is slightly below the average build and handsome, with flashing dark eyes that he "uses" considerably.

RICHMOND TRIAL NEXT WEEK

Church Court Will Decide Whether He Has Violated Vows

The trial of Rev. George Chalmers Richmond, accused of violating his ordination vows and of conduct unbecoming a minister, will begin on Tuesday afternoon, September 7, at 2:30 o'clock, in the Church of St. Luke and the Epiphany, according to Henry Budd, chancellor of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of Pennsylvania.

Louis B. Hunk, the church advocate, and Edgar N. Black, the Rev. Mr. Richmond's counsel, have been notified. Mr. Black is in California, and it was said at his offices there it little likelihood he would return home by September 7. His assistants declare they are unable to find him to notify him of the date for the trial.

AUTO OWNERS MUST PAY CENT MORE PER GALLON FOR GASOLINE

This Is Second Increase in the Retail Price of Fuel Within Period of Two Weeks. Charge Now Is 15 Cents

FUEL OIL RESPONSIBLE

The retail price of gasoline has been increased a cent a gallon for the second time in two weeks. Motorists now are paying 15 cents a gallon. The increase, according to officials of the Texas Company, one of the price raisers, is due to the continued jump in the price of crude oil, from which gasoline is refined.

Virtually the whole country will be affected by the order, and Philadelphia, with its hosts of automobilists, will pay heavily. The two increases, if the estimated number of 50,000 automobiles within a short riding distance of City Hall is correct, will mean an extra tax on car owners of approximately $1,500,000 annually.

The increase in the price of crude oil is due partly to the fact that the output of the big oil wells is decreasing, it being 150,000 barrels a day less than it was a few months ago. The importation of oil from Russia, whose big oil fields produce the best grade of oil, has reached a minimum and will continue at this low point until tankers can have a clear way from the Russian ports, either on the Black or Baltic Seas, to this country.

The price of crude oil has jumped from 20 to 25 cents on a barrel of 42 gallons, and the demand is growing faster than the supply. No wells with high daily capacities have been struck lately. The price of gasoline may be lowered again if a prolific oil well is struck in one of this country's fields.

No Sir! Our Horses Are Not Going to War We have only 208 now! One after the other of 288 of our horses in New York and Philadelphia have had to go to other employments, being superseded by our more rapid automobiles and trucks. We cannot consent for the faithful dumb beasts in our stables to be packed in a ship and transferred to a battlefield. Having always approved the work of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals we are constituting ourselves a society to keep these good old horses out of the wars. The good old days of horses for work and pleasure are passing—The four strong legs are giving way to the four swift wheels—But our sixty passenger elevators are in a sense flying horses carrying at once a dozen persons or more and doing it all day long from the street floor to the upper floors instead of the old-fashioned climbing of the staircases which customers had to do formerly. These are the better days for shopping and this store grows in its attractiveness and usefulness. [Signed] John Wanamaker August 31, 1915. From the John Wanamaker daily advertisement

700 CARPENTERS OUT AT REMINGTON ARMS PLANT AT EDDYSTONE

Work Stopped on 15 Buildings by Strike Based on Their Demand for Eight-Hour Day

ASK UNION RECOGNITION

Construction of 15 buildings which are being erected by the Remington Arms Company, at Eddystone, suddenly came to a halt today when 700 carpenters went on strike. The men who quit working demand an eight-hour schedule and positive recognition of their union. The strike followed a conference of the officials of the Building Trades Council.

It became known today that labor leaders are thinking of calling out other workers. There were reports also that Eddystone today that unless the demands of the striking carpenters were granted a general strike of the other men at the plant might follow.

Officials of the arms company, it was reported, were making arrangements to import carpenters from New York, Washington, Baltimore and other cities, to take the places of the men who were on strike.

The Metal Trades' Council has had several conferences for the discussion of a strike in event of the company refusing their demands. They asserted today that demands would be made on the Baldwin Locomotive Works in this city as well as on the Remington Arms Company, and that a strike would certainly be called if the demands were refused.

There is no apparent indication of a strike at the Eddystone plant. The bustling activity of the last few months is still evident. Workmen do not hesitate to assert that any strike called now will prove a failure. The men, they said, need money too much to obey the mandates of the union.

WANTED—SIX BEAUTIES! 50 GIRLS REPLY TO AD

Desire to Be Movie Ushers, Who Will Be Clothed in White, With Hip Boots

"Wanted—Six Attractive Girls." These four words in bold letters account for the beauty show in the Chestnut Street Opera House this afternoon, when 50 young women, real beauties, answered the advertisement at 3 o'clock. Many more followed later.

They wanted to be theatre ushers, and made application in response to an advertisement of the Triangle Film Corporation, which will present moving pictures in the Chestnut Street Opera House this season.

The first thing the applicants learned was that the Triangle concern is going to adopt a new feature in the usher line. It is going to dress its ushers in a replica of the costume worn by Maude Adams and Sarah Bernhardt when they played in "L'Aiglon."

Think of a theatre usher with a sword and boots. The Triangle concern is not sure yet about the swords—perhaps they would hamper the ushers in the work and will be dispensed with, but the boots are a certainty—great big patent-leather boots that will come up to the hips.

The costume, other than the boots, is to be all white, made of some smooth, soft material—satin, perhaps. There will be a high white collar, made in close-fitting military style, with trimmings to make the garment really picturesque. There will be no dress—oh, no! White breeches are to be worn. But there need be no fear, for there are the boots.
