The Philadelphia Chamber of Comierce, through its Convention Bureau. has begun a systematic campaign to bring conventions here. Letters and blank forms were sent to all its members yesterday by N. B. Kelly, general recretary, asking for information regardng any organizations to which they be-

The builders will thus have on record names and addresses of the officers the Philadelphia members, the time frequency of conventions, the place of the next meeting, the number of delegates appointed and the number who usually attend, the number of visitors received and other information which would be of aid in determining the desirability of having the convention in this city.

"If the business men get together in a systematic campaign, they can bring from $19,000,000 to $12,000,000 to this city that now goes to other communities," said Mr. Kelly. "This emphasizes the importance of the work of the convention eau and it is hoped that every member will give hearty support. Philadelphia stands pre-eminent in its ability properly to entertain and care for assemblies and as the world's greatest workshop and historic city we feel justly proud when inviting strangers here. OLD SOLDIERS ENJOY BLOCK PARTY GIVEN IN THEIR HONOR

Residents Decorate Homes-Dancing and Straw Rides Entertain

Hutchinson street, between Poplar and Thompson, has, for the last two days. been the scene of gay festivities in connection with one of the most successful block parties of the season. The block has been crowded since the opening of the party Thursday evening, and gives every promise of remaining so until the last lantern is taken down tonight.

The party is being held as a benefit for the Anna M. Ross Post, G. A. R., south-oast corner of Hutchinson street and Gi-rard avenue. The entire block is lighted with Japanese lanterns and at each corher is a brilliant electric light. Almost every residence of the neighborhood has been decorated. There are booths of all descriptions.

For the children, a vacant lot has been converted into a veritable circus grounds, with all the amusements dear to the heart of a child.

William Riebel, a City Hall guard, is master of ceremonies. Hs is assisted in his duties by George Meynell.

The Anna M. Ross Post is the only Grand Army Post in this city named after a woman. During the Civil War Miss Ross was head nurse at the volunteer hospital, located at the foot of Washington avenue. Eighty of the original members of the command are living.

Necessity drove Lord to make use of these sity drove Lord to make use of these assets some time ago. Like most men who have continuous thirsts, Lord lacks the wherewithal to keep apace with it. But he has initiative, and as most of the saloons in the northeast still use the summer swinging doors, Frank can creep under them and inhale the floating odors of whisky, ale and beer until he is ordered out. Of course, he could open the doors and inhale the liquid fumes standing, but this method makes it difficult to dodge the beer mallets and glasses which often come his way from the di-
