"A CONTINENTAL GIRL" GERMANTOWN FILM

Five-Part Feature, With May ward, Combines Local Setting With Historic Romance

Possibly the explanation is the cost of wigs and costumes and the difficulty of obtaining just the right setting.

The latter trouble was solved for the ducers of "A Continental Girl" when ay located their studio in Germantown One of the old houses on Germantown avenue furnishes a really beautiful wall garden for this new feature, while and a lake farther out town make an excellent imitation of the Lake ge district, where the scene of Di-r Adelman's photoplay is laid. George

DUSTIN FARNUM Who will be seen on the first Tri-angle program at the Chestnut Street Opera House in "The Iron Strain."

Other things make for beauty and Illusion. Excellent costumes, a picturesque Indian lover who dies to save the heroine, some clever use of rocky eminences, and particularly three very tasteful in-teriors, sparingly decorated in the charming way of those simpler times, all help make the Continental's first offering sresting on the pictorial side.

The story is a simple, straightforward tale of love and villainy, with duels, pursuits, escapes and a few spectacular details, like flagpole climbing and dives from high rocks, without which no movie is now complete. Two features call for special comment. One is the episode in which the girls go to war disguised as youths.

This common enough incident of romantic plays naturally fails of reality in the movies and supplies only comic relief. The other episode is the Battle of Saratoga. Though the aim of the producer was not to stage a scene which might be called into comparison with such big special films as "The Birth of a Nation" and "The Battle of Gettysburg," it is really remarkably effective. A slight rearrangement of earlier episodes would heighten the clash; but, as they stand,

Famous Expressman, Who Predicted Football Victory, Injured in Fall

Charles Skillman, or "Hell devil" Skill-Charles Skillman, or "Heil devil" Skill-man, as he was letter known to thou-sands of Princeton University under-graduates, one of the traditional charac-ters of that institution, is dead. He died yesterday in the McKinley Hospital, in Trenton, of injuries received when he fell down stairs in his home in Prince-ton the night hefore.

"Hell down stalls in his home in Frince-ton the night before. "Hell devil" reached fame and the hearts of the Princeton students when, in a wild, burst of prophecy, he predicted the score of the Princeton-Yale football game in 1908.

game in 1998. An expressman by trade, Skillman al-ways experienced a feeling several days before the annual gridiron clash of the two university teams that made work seem not only unnecessary but some-thing of a sacrilege. It was not often he was not thoreushly bund with Deiroe was not thoroughly imbued with Prince-ton spirit, but just before those games he just had to get a little bit more. And down at the "Nams," with scores of old grads around him, was the place to do it.

On one of these occasions, thoroughly mbued with spirit of one sort and another, including prophecy, he was unable to contain himself.

"By all the claws of the tiger versus the teeth of the buildog Princeton will ck Yale tomorrow by the score of 10 the rate tomorrow by the score of to to 5," he cried. "It's an omen," shouted the grads within hearing and backed it up hand-somely with the coin of the realm. Princeton beat Yale the next day 10 within Flushed with the joy of the feat which even the years could not dampen, "Hell devil" ventured predictions regularly in subsequent years. It spoils the story to say he never hit it right again, but it did not spoil his position in the affection of the Princeton students. He hit it once and that is all they care to remember

Doctor Hibben addressed the eighth an nual conference of masters in church schools at St. Luke's School, Wayne, yesterday, and was in Philadelphia for a short time.

APPROVES TRAINING CAMPS. Praise for the Administration's disposition of the Dumba case, approval of the proposed $1,000,000,000 loan to the Allies, hope for an early settlement of the Mexican situation and enthusiastic admiration for the work being done by the itigens and college camps were expressed by Doctor Hibben. Fifteen South Carolina countles now have dispensaries selling whisky. Of these Aiken, Calhoun, Florence, Jasper, "My views on the international situation have not changed since my address at Lake Mohonk in May last before the Georgetown, Lexington, Richland, Union and Williamsburg have voted for prohibition. We should all uphold January 1. the hands of General Leonard Wood in his efforts to make the people of this country realize how unprepared we are and what it means to be prepared." "Two years ago the first camp was es-tablished at Gettysburg, with 150 men from Frinceton present," he explained, using figures to show the increased in-terest. "The next year the encampment at Burlington, Vt., had about 300 Prince-ton students and this year there at Burnington, vt., and about so these were about 700 Princeton men in the Platts-burg students' camp. ### Reservist Accused of Theft

Frank Petuelli is an Italian reservist. He bid farewell to Angelia de Parthimo, his landlady, at 525 Fitzwater street, and his landlady, at 55 Fitzwater street, and left for New York, to sail on the next boat to Italy. Before going, however, ac-cording to Mrs. De Parthimo, he took from her home a 50 hill that did not be-long to him and also a pair of trousers the property of Michael De Parthimo. She reported the matter to the police and Petuelli was arrested on a train to New York by Special Officer McGinnis, of the Tork by Special Officer McGinnis, of the 2d and Christian streets station. He was held for a further hearing next week.
