

WAR AND WARFARE, WEDDINGS, BUSINESS, FISHING AND TOYS ADD THEIR BITS TO THE DAY'S NEWS

GIRL SOLDIER WINS ARMY MEDAL

Kara Bashkrowa, an 18-year-old Vilna schoolgirl, joined the Russian army last October and won the coveted Cross of St. George for bravery. Her sex was not discovered until she was slightly wounded. Kara is seen with her cousin and two younger sisters. Oh, yes; she is at the extreme right, in uniform and wearing the medal.

A BETHLEHEM STEEL WORKS FIELD HOWITZER

This is probably the only photograph of an uncompleted gun taken inside an American munitions factory since the war began. The weapon, ordered by the Allies, is of the latest pattern and contains as a new feature the long recoil air chamber on top.

WIDOW MARRIES HUSBAND'S PROXY

When Lieutenant Leslie M. Cowan, an English officer, was ordered to India last year, he left his fiancée, Miss Mildred Colliton, in Willimantic, Conn. But the wedding date was not changed, and the bridegroom was represented by his friend, Courtney Badinridge, at the ceremony a month later. Shortly after the lieutenant was ordered to France and was killed in battle. Now Badinridge is preparing to face the erstwhile Miss Colliton over the Bible again, but this time not as a proxy.

FISHING FOR CHANNEL BASS AT SUNRISE

Ocean City anglers get up with the sun to catch the early morning tide. September fish are running well all along the Jersey coast, according to reports, and there are people who think the fall is the best time of the year for fishing anywhere.

GETTING BUSINESS IN A PASTE-TUBE AUTO

R. H. Miller, an agent for a Detroit firm, has traveled more than 7000 miles in this curious-looking car. He is now in Philadelphia advertising the company's product while he goes about the city getting business.
