Daniels Persuades Companies Here to Bid on Submarine Contracts

GREAT STEP FORWARD

The Delaware River to destined to become one of the chief sources of supply for submarines for the United States Navy, according to plans of the War Department, made public today by Secretary Daniels.

The first manifestation of this policy appeared when the Secretary persuaded the New York Shipbuilding Company, as well as the Newport News Shipbuilding Company, to enter the submarine field by bidding on the newest undersea craft plunned by the Government. These blds will be opened September 30.

Behind the program of "persuading" arge shipbuilding concerns to compete or Uncle Sam's business is the broader rpose of enlarging vastly the number places where torpedo craft can be ade in this country for the American

In connection with the announcement of Secretary Daniels it became known that when Samuel M. Knox, president of the New York Shipbuilding Company, nearly lost his life through the sinking of nearly lost his life through the sinking of the Lusitania, on which he was a pas-senger, he was on the way to Europe to investigate foreign patents and study for-eign models of submarine boats, to aid his company in becoming a source of sup-ply for the American Government. Pres-ident Hopkins, of the Newport News Company, a fellow-passenger of Mr. Knox, was lost when the liner was tor-reduced.

The possibility that navy yards may be able to enter the lists of bidders was announced by Secretary Daniels. The work done by the Navy Department in onstructing a submarine at the Ports-outh, N. H., yard, he declared, gave-comise that navy yards may be in a sation to turn out undersea boats. The partment in the past has bid on battleships in competition with private ship

"It is true," said Secretary Daniels,
"that the department has received definite assurances from the New York Shipbuilding Company, at whose plant the battleship Arkansas was built, and the Newport Shipbuilding Company, which is building the Pennsylvania, that they will enter into the competition for they will enter into the competition for Contracts for submarine construction have been limited in the past to the Elec-tric Boat Company and the Lake Tor-pedeboat Company.

After talking the matter over carefully. Knox, accompanied by Mr. Hopkins and their Washington representative, Mr. Gauntlett, left on the ill-fated Lusitania to investigate foreign patents that could be used without conflicting with those held by the two companies named.

I consider the securing of these new bidders a long step forward in our subnarine program."

Persons Conversant With Facts Also Tell How She Was Divorced from Herman S.

Kammerer

The story of the married life of Catharine Karst, who claims a share in the estate of Edward Bromley, a millionaire manufacturer, as his common law wife, of her being divorced from her husband and cut off with $5 in the will of hers father, John Karst, a saloonkeeper, was gleaned from documents in the City Hall and related by persons said to be conversant with the facts.

The woman was married to Herman S. Kammerer on October 23, 1894, by the Rev. P. H. Dippel, at his residence on 6th street, below Thompson. The couple wents to live at 3645 North 15th street, and three at years later moved to 1811 North 6th street, residing there two years, and then moving to Olney. In September, 1991, Kammerer became suspicious of his wife's relations with Albert F. Mick and hired Detective Millard, of the Standard Detective Agency, to investigate. Millard, it is said, reported Mrs. Krammerer in the company of Mick at a hotel at Line Lexington, Bucks County, Pa., on October 20, 1901. In the company of the detective and Charles W. Karat, the woman's brother, Kammerer went to a hotel at that place and found them there, it is said. The woman, it is said, started to explain, but Kammerer replied: "Don't talk to me; here is your brother as a witness. We cannot live together any longer, so one of us will have to get out of our bated several years ago, he left an estate valued at $35,000. Of this $10 was given to his widow, "$5, and no more, to Carrie Karst," and the balance was divided equally between the other four children. The house at 4644 North Broad street, ic which Mrs. Karst is now living, was owned by Bromley, but there is no record to show that it was ever transferred by him to the woman. This was learned today by an examination of the books in the office of the Recorder of Deeds. Mr. Bromley purchased the house from one Emma Stewart for a nominal con-sideration of $1 and the transfer was recorded on November 15, 1910.

It was said today by relatives of the woman that Mr. Bromley gave the house to Mrs. Karst, or Kemmerer, or Cast, as she is variously known, and that a deed will be produced establishing this transaction. If there is a deed transferring the property to "Mrs. Edward Bromley." as alleged, it has never been recorded and is probably in her possession or that of her attorney.
