"Tiny" Maxwell and "Vince" Stevenson Bury the Hatchet!

The Two Big Chiefs Now Smoke the EVENING LEDGER Peace Pipe

In the days when Stevenson was the most famous quarterback Pennsylvania ever had. Maxwell was guard for Swarthmore. The two teams met in their annual game on Franklin Field, and in the course of the tussie Maxwell and Stevenson clashed for real blood. It did not end there. The men were embittered against each other, and rarely did they meet without renewing the quarrel is some form. But they have been brought together as co-workern on the Evening Ledger's Sports Page. They have buried the hatchet and peace prevails. The energy they used to put into their famous plays is now centred in the Sports Page of the Evening Ledger. Watch for the Maxwell and Steven-son football articles. They will carry a message to swery football fan.
