TIME little French booth which will be Lunder the direction of Mrs. A. N. Burke, of Merion, promises to be one of the most delightful surprises at the alphabetical country fair and market day to take place Saturday, October 2, on the grounds of St. Francis' Country House for Convalescents, Darby, for Convalescents, Darby.

The following well-known women and young girls, Mrs. William Penn Cambios, Mrs. William J. Ryan, Mrs. Frederick Mencke, Mrs. N. Faust, Mrs. M. J. O'Mesra, Miss Kathleen Delaney, Miss Mary Dohan, Miss Marie Cambios, Miss Mary Dohan, Miss Mary Harrity, Miss Ida Pequignot and Miss Adelaide Pyle, have been working hard for the last weeks to help Mrs. Burke make the French booth, over which she has given such thoughtful care and attention, the success that it will undoubtedly be. And why should it not be, for has not every nook and corner from Paris to Philadelphia been searched to find the most exquisite and the newest Parislan novelties?

The most interesting of the Parislan The most interesting of the Parisian fancies to be found at this little French booth will be the collection of wax mani-kins, dressed in the costumes of the first and second empires, Louis XV period, as well as Aleatians of various periods. These wonderful creations, all coming from the hands of the great decoming from the hands of the great de-signers. Magraine et La Croix, are in-deed worth seeing by every visitor at the fair. Every dotail of the dress of the various periods has been faithfully car-ried out, from an exquisite Marie An-toinette costume to a little Alsatian maid of the lith century, dressed in red frock with black sprought benddress to the of the 14th century, dressed in red frock with black apron and headdress, to the wenderful lines of a costume of the first empire. And standing near to these wax ladies, with their kid less and slippers, will be found little dolls representing Russian, French and other soldiers, including one dressed as a French Zouave.

An interesting feature of these soldier dolls is the fact that they were purchased this summer in Paris at a basaar in aid of the war victims. Wonderful little favors, including an old Belgian woman and a Parisian lady in blue velvet and pink rosebuds, are other noveltles that were bought by one of Mrs. Burke's friends at this same bazaar.

Novel telephone covers to slip over the instrument in milady's boudoir will be other surprises at the French booth. These covers are formed to represent a Parisian lady with hoop skirt of blue, pink or green satin, fashloned in such a manner that a little door by which to slip in the telephone is hid by means of slip in the telephone is hid by means of the soft draperies of the skirt. All kinds of the loveliest of French perfumes and powders have been donated to Mrs. Burke by a leading French house, and several of the English and French talcum powders have never before been sold in America. But the above items can only give a glimpse of the beauti-ful things to be found at this booth, all of which articles will be on exhibition at Mrs. Burke's Merion home until Friday, so that the residents around the countryside may have an opportunity to view these treasures. And then there will be beautiful linens, including lunchcon sets, bureau scarfs and lovely French lingerie.
