HOUSES FASCINATE ALLIES' COMMISSIONER AT BRYN MAWR SHOW

Monsieur E. Simons Comes to See Thoroughbreds, But Is Enchanted by Exhibit of Dogs

SUN LURES THROUGHS

By Staff Correspondent

BRYN MAWR, Pa., Sept. 28.—Monsieur E. Simons, of France, commissioned by his government to purchase horses in this country for the Allies, wandered into the grounds at the Bryn Mawr Horse show today to look over the pick of this country's thoroughbred hunters and jumpers.

He happened, however, into the tent on the polo field where the American horses were being shown. He got no further. Fascinated by the display of canines, he stayed there until the last ribbon had been awarded.

"I have never seen such dogs," he remarked to friends. "It's wonderful."

His judgment was generally sustained by experts at the show.

The awards for the best packs were made in the horse show ring and the novelty made an instant hit with the crowd.

Interest as far as the horse show was concerned, centered around an unusual jumping class, the last of the afternoon. The horses were shown over the open course, which runs from the ring out over a portion of the polo field. As nearly as possible, the jumps that might occur in the hunting field had been erected.

There were a brush jump, a water jump, an earth jump, "worm and picket" fences. Forty horses were entered and the competition was unusually keen.

An interesting feature this morning was the appearance in the ring of a new Mather generation in the person of Charles E. Mather, 2d, a son of Victor Mather, who rode one of the horses in the entries. The elder Mather has been a prominent horse show figure for many years. Judging by the son's riding today, he is more than capable of filling his father's shoes.

The Whip and Lady Prior, Miss Constance Vaulain's entry in the tandem class, misbehaved and got very much tangled up in the racing day, were eventually given the gate when it was evident that they were unmanageable.

Just because a horse is a king on a track a horse is a speed king on a race track. The reason for assuming that it can have things all its own way in a show ring. So Captain Edward B. Cassatt learned today, when his famous gelding, "Boards," which has carried Cassatt money for him on race tracks in various parts of the country, failed to place in a class for saddle horses at the Bryn Mawr show.

Captain Cassatt is a thorough sportsman and took his defeat good naturedly, thoroughly confident in the knowledge of his mount's ability along the lines for which it was bred and trained.

A. W. Aitchison's chestnut gelding, Field Marshal, led the field in the class in which Spring Board failed to place.

Weather clear as a bell and with the grandstand full of spectators, the early week made an unpleasant place, had its sprinkling of spectators.

The most interesting class on the program proved to be the "hobby" event. Each competitor had to pilot his mount over a series of jumps at a walk, trot and canter. It all required much skill on the part of the rider as well as manners and jumping ability on the part of the horse.

BLUE PREDOMINATING COLOR IN GOWNS AT BRYN MAWR

Cool Weather Brings Out Very Latest Winter Garb

By Staff Correspondent

BRYN MAWR, Sept. 28.—The continued cool weather has made it possible for milady of fashion to don her very latest winter garb. Some of the fashionable courtesies have taken advantage of the horse show to send a number of manikins out in the very newest of gowns.

Blue is the color which attracts the eye more than any other, showing that the woman of good taste has not yet been weaned from her favorite hue.

Miss Mary E. Bohlen, the debutante daughter of Mrs. Woodville Bohlen and one of the very prettiest debutantes this year, has chosen a stunning suit of dark blue serge which is made with a wide iddle skirt and hip-length coat. Her small hat is finished at the front in a decided point and is trimmed with wide-spreading flat wings. With this costume, Miss Bohlen wore white gaiters.

Another suit of dark blue was chosen by Mrs. John Hampton Barnes, whose radiant large hat was also of dark blue.

Mrs. A. J. Antelo Devereux is wearing a good-looking suit of navy blue serge with a very full short skirt, and Mrs. Howard Houston Henry looks very well in a sky blue sport suit and white hat.

The skirt of the suit is one of the new kilted models.

Mrs. John B. Thayer, Jr., and her two charming little daughters, Miss Polly Thayer and Miss Peggy Thayer, were on the scene early. Mrs. Thayer wore a handsome black coat and huge white fur collar.

Miss Edith Earle wore a lovely pink sweater. With her was her little sister, Miss Gladys Earle, in a sweater of deeper pink.

Mrs. Clarence W. Dolan and her daughter, Miss Alexandra Dolan, were here yesterday from Newport. Mrs. Dolan wore a tailored suit of black cloth, a large hat and white fox fur.

Miss Ruth Wood had chosen a smart sports suit of mottled green and a small tan hat.

Miss Helen Carson Brinton was with Captain and Mrs. Edward Buchanan Cassatt. The latter was wearing a fancy suit of olive green tulle and a small white turban trimmed with a flat canary. She also wore white fox fur.

Miss Brinton was grilling cooked in white linen with a pale blue sweater and sash and black velvet hat.

Much interest in the horse show was Miss Dorothy Mather, who wore a good-looking sports skirt of turquoise blue and a sweater of the same shade, made with angora collars and cuffs. Her openwork straw hat was bound in blue.

Mrs. Alexander Brown appeared in an extremely smart suit of white duvetone and a black hat, trimmed with black Paradise aigrettes. Her fur was a real fox.

A greater number of spectators arrived earlier this afternoon than on any of the previous days.
