TWO SPILLS AMUSE HORSE SHOW CROWD IN HUNTING CLASS

Lurman Stewart, of Baltimore, Falls Off Sir Charles as It Takes the Rail Jump

J. R. VALENTINE THROWN

By a Staff Correspondent BRYN MAWR, Sept. 30.-Two small spills amused the Bryn Mawr Horse Show rowd today. Lurman Stewart, of Baltiore, a brother of Plunkett and Redmond Stewart, both well known horsemen, fell off Sir Charles, Miss Carol A. Harriman's entry, as it was taking the rail jump in one of the hunting classes. John R. Valentine went ignominiously over Hermanus's head when it balked in the open in the same class. Neither was hurt and the crowd rather enjoyed the mishaps.

The spectators got much amusement out of the difficulties the exhibitors had in class for three hunters, to be shown with five couples of hounds by the huntsman and whips in hunting "Pink." Middlesex fox hounds and the Cheshire Hunt dlesex fox hounds and the Cheshire Hunt had entries. The hounds got hopelessly mixed up, and the endeavors of the whips to unravel the tangle kept the grandstand and boxes in roars of laughter.

The first suggestion of unpleasant weather the Bryn Mawr Horse Show has had to contend with failed to dampen the arder of attendance today. Dark clouds overcast the sky during the early afternoon session, but there were more spectators on hand than any previous day. The blue ribbon in the class went to The blue ribbon in the class went to Mrs. R. E. Strawbridge's Radnor. Her-maus, the horse that spilled its owner mans, the horse that spined his order and rider. went to Valley Forge Farms' Gray Dele, Mr. Valentine's Choragus and Robert L.

Gerry's Hamsah. For the afternoon by all odds the most interesting class was the hunt team com-petition for W. Hinckle Smith's challenge trophy.

The cup must be won three times by the same hunt club. It has been "up" three years, the Riddle Hounds having won once and the Radnor Hunt twice. The latter club was out to win the cup this afternoon, but the Orange County Hunt, of New York, represented by Miss Harriman's entries; the Pickering Hunt, the Harford Hunt and F. Ambrose Clark tried their best to keep the silver in competition for another year. enge trophy.

Today's chief award in the hound show was that of the "Boggestowe Cup" to Mey Windsor, of the Middlesex Fox Hounds. The "Boggestowe Cup" was put up by Mrs. J. Stanley Reeve last year for the best stallion bound in the English or American bred English classes. It or American bred English classes. It must be won three times by the same pack to be retained in permanent owner-ship. The Middlesex hounds and the Brandywine Hunt divided most of the prize ribbons between them. Brilliant Gowns Give Place to Pic-

turseque Riding Clothes By a Reaff Correspondent

BRYN MAWR, Sept. 20. - Surely a more ideal spot for a horse and hound show could not have been chosen than the Polo Grounds at Bryn Mawr. The grandstand with its wide green striped awnings, the wonderful background of trees and the huge terrace of green opposite the stand, form a wonderful setting for the brilliantly gowned woman and the men, many of whom take this opportunity to appear in their picturesque riding clothes. It used to be that the well dressed woman appeared at all these affairs in her very flufflest gown, most feathered hat and daintiest feminine accessories, but now the proper thing is to wear sports clothes—sports suits and sports hats, sports sweater, aporta shoes, sporta gloves, even sports Today the number of white suits is very noticeable. Miss Margaret Supplee has chosen a silk sweater of a brilliant golden yellow.

Her large hat has a yellow rose.

Mrs. J. Stanley Reeve wears a white linen frock and canary colored wool sweater. Her straw colored hat is edged with blue and has blue streamers.

Mrs. Richard P. McGrann and Mrs.

Henry Wain Harrison were seated together on the terrace. Mrs. McGrann

And then there will be the los cream tables where the young people will have delightful little gatherings. Many children's parties will also be planned at these tables, for the children expect to have a royal good time at Darby next Saturday, when they will be allowed to use their spending money for many things, from chances on a really wonderful baby doll to visits to the little thatched cottage, where in its natural woodland setting near to the great old fashioned barn, one will be surprised to come upon a "bit of old Ireland." Inside this quaint Irish cottage will be found an old time fireplace with hanging kettle, and beside it the "old woman and her man" preparing their humble meal, or perhaps the visitor may happen in when the old lady is busily spinning yarn at her spinning wheel, while the Irishman alts nearby telling yarns. Yarns, that will make the children laugh and hold the attention of the grown-ups. And, to make the Irish thatch cottage life more realistic, a few children will be found sprawling on the floor, while a wee pik's grunt comes from a corner of the room, and a cow wanders in from the green just to frighten the city folk. And of course there will be a piece of the real Blarney stone for all the pretty maidens to kiss.
