

Evening ILLUSTRATED Ledger

TUESDAY
October 5, 1915

READING THE DAY'S GRIST OF NEWS THROUGH THE EVER-PRESENT EYE OF THE CAMERA

DOING THEIR TURKEY SHOPPING EARLY.
Buyers for the Thanksgiving trade are already abroad in the land. A favorite gathering place for them is this big turkey ranch at Hatfield, Pa., where poultry auctions are held weekly. A regiment of holiday fowl is shown drawn up for review.

CALLING THE CITIZENS FOR THE READING OF WAR NEWS
News in the republic of San Marino, Italy, is distributed by word of mouth. The photograph shows the daughters of one of the regents sounding the bell in the palace which calls the people together

HE'S STRONG FOR IMPROVING THINGS
William H. Emhardt is president of the Germantown and Chestnut Hill Improvement Association and believes in more and better progress.

YOU'VE BEEN READING OF THE PANTALETTE 'GOWN'
Here it is on Fifth Avenue, New York, just outside Sherry's restaurant, where crowds gathered to gaze upon the novel but not disagreeable spectacle.

FIRE FIGHTERS—THE OLD CONTRASTED WITH THE MODERN
The staid figure is that of Joseph Ross, 63 years old, member of Cooper Hose Company, No. 25, in volunteer days, surrounded by youthful delegates to the State Firemen's Convention. He never thought paid companies would make good, he says.