

MAYOR TO SPEAK TO HELP PORTER DEFEAT MACHINE

Blankenburg Declares He'll Attack Good Government's Foes in Stump Speeches

WILL USE HARD FACTS

Mayor Blankenburg announced today that he intends to stump the city for George D. Porter, independent candidate for Mayor.

"You can say for me," said the Mayor, "that I will start next Monday and will appear three nights a week until the voting starts. I am loaded with facts that will stagger the 'Gang' Organization and they will not dare make an attempt to refute my statements. I will tell the voters about Porter in every section of the city and will also tell them some things about his opponents. It will be easy to tell the fallings of Councils and how they have tried to prevent the success of a non-political administration.

"I must issue an order prohibiting the officials from paying any voluntary contributions or paying heed to the assessments."

When told that his departmental directors had already issued such orders he replied: "That's all right. I want to tell them, too. I want to make it emphatic that they do not have to fear the results of not submitting to a gauge of this kind."

SCHEME OF COUNCILS

Again taking up the question of Council actions, the Mayor said: "They do not want to give us what is actually needed for departmental expenses because they would have me go out of office with the record of leaving a large deficit behind. They are forestalling a deficit of $300,000 which Director Loeb inherited in the Department of Supplies and which he has paid off during this administration. You can say for me, my health will permit me to stump for George D. Porter. I never felt better, even if they have had me half dead ever since I came into office.

CANDIDATES INDORSED

George D. Porter and the other independent candidates nominated on the Washington party ticket at the primary, were indorsed today by the pre-emptors of the Franklin party title. Their names will be placed on the Franklin party ticket as soon as nomination papers, which are now being circulated, are filed. The Franklin party headquarters, 233 South Broad street, issued the following statement regarding the Franklin party candidates:

"Pre-emptors of the Franklin party title in the city and county of Philadelphia announced today that the recommendation of the Public Service Committee of One Hundred regarding the indorsement of candidates on the ticket has been ratified, and the following names will be placed by the pre-emptors on the official ballot as Franklin party candidates: George D. Porter for Mayor, Eugene J. McAleer for City Controller, James Alcorn for City Solicitor, Max Herberg for Recorder of Deeds, George D. Cox for Sheriff, Harry E. Winters for Clerk of the Court of Quarter Sessions, John W. West for Coroner, George F. Holmes and Andrew J. Pfaff for County Commissioners."

"As suggested by the Public Service Committee of One Hundred, no action will be taken on the candidates for Magistrate until the official count has been completed. It will be impossible to know who have been nominated for Magistrate until the official count is available.

THE WEATHER

Official Forecast WASHINGTON, Oct. 5. For eastern Pennsylvania—Partly cloudy and cooler tonight with possibly frost in west portion; Wednesday fair, cooler in east portion; moderate west winds. It caused showers over nearly all of the region east of the Mississippi River, except New England. Under the influence of increasing pressure following the disturbance a general drop in temperature has occurred from the Appalachian Mountains westward over the Lake region and central valleys to readings that are from 5 degrees to 15 degrees below normal.

"The pre-emptors in the respective wards who control the Franklin party title are taking steps toward placing on the ticket unopposed candidates for Councilmen. "The new Franklin party has broken all records for independent movements in the way the voters are flocking to the party and are volunteering their services and organizing in every election division in the city to carry on the fight against the contractor bosses. "Herbert D. Allman, campaign manager for the independents, said today that within a week an organization never before equalled in the history of independent politics in Philadelphia will be in the field, prepared to roll up a heavy vote for the independent candidates on election day.

PORTER SPEAKS TONIGHT

AUTOISTS HELD FOR CORONER

Clarke Thomson, Son of Late Penny Head, Runs Down Pedestrian

Clarke Thomson, amateur aviator and son of the late Frank Thomson, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, is held under $1000 bail in Lower Merion township to await the action of the Coroner on the death of a man struck by Thomson's automobile. George Burgess, 43 years old, of Narberth, was run down and killed by Thomson's car at Montgomery Pike and Orchard way, Merion, last night. Mr. Thomson picked up the victim of the accident and carried him in his machine to the Bryn Mawr Hospital, where he died a short time after he was admitted. Burgess was an employee of Baldwin's locomotive works and was on his way home when the auto struck him. He is survived by a widow and six children. It is believed he became bored with the powerful headlights on his automobile as he was crossing the road.

REAL MANAGER NEEDED TO WIN, SAYS LUDERUS

Continued from Page One reason Pat is invaluable on the line because he can foresee with almost mathematical accuracy the defensive weaknesses of the opposing team and can plan his attack accordingly. "I have heard pitchers who have had Moran for their catcher tell me that he knows more about the batter's weaknesses than any other receiver in the league and that he could divine almost to a certainty when a man on first was going down, then he would call for a pitcher to throw a defensive ball. Certainly my experience with Moran has led me to believe that he knows the batters, even now when he is not playing, better than men who are in there every day behind the bat. Our pitchers say that they have learned more baseball under Moran this season than they have in all the rest of their past baseball experience combined. To this fact can be attributed much of our success this year. Pat can tell the pitcher whether to use a low curve outside, a high fast inside or whatever else the batsman is most likely to convert into an easy prodder or a weak fly. And he will be there doing the same thing in the series. "While our pitchers and Killefer and Burns know very well what balls to pitch to the National League, they are not so familiar with the Red Sox hitters, consequently all of them, including Alex, will be out in the box before the manager's directions rather than relying on their own judgment. "On the offense we rely even more on the manager's judgment than in the defensive end of the game. There is rarely a time that a hitter goes up without being told what to do. For instance, with a fast man like Parkert on first he is likely to tell Grath to play the hit-and-run, and also he will figure whether the second baseman or the shortstop is going to take the throw, and will tell the batter whether he shall try to hit into right or left field. "One of the most striking features of Moran's ability as a manager is shown by the fact that his decision on a play is never questioned. Of course, the main reason for this is that he has shown us that he knows better than any one else what ought to be done. He has proven this hundreds of times throughout the present season, therefore it is not in the least remarkable that we should rely implicitly on his keen judgment. It must be supposed by this, however, that Moran is not open to suggestions. On the contrary, he has an open mind and if, as sometimes happens at our meetings, a suggestion is made that does not coincide with something that he has previously told us, he will weigh the new idea, look at it from all angles, then make his decision. If he thinks the player's suggestion is the better he will adopt that and discard the old one. But when he once decides on a certain line of attack or defense, he wants that plan carried out and it is otherwise somebody is in for a good call. "I know that there were a number of people in Philadelphia who thought when Pat was appointed manager this he would be too easy with his players and that he would not get the work out of them. Well, that theory was exploded the first day we arrived in St. Petersburg for spring training. From the moment he went out on Coffee Pot field there was no mistake who was manager, and there has been none since that day. "From the time that we began to think we actually had a chance to win the pennant Moran put the kibosh on pennant talk. He told us, just as he told outsiders who asked him about his chances for the flag, that we were to get it the hard way and try to win that ball game; that nothing could be accomplished in baseball except by winning the individual games. We worked on this theory all season, with the result that for the first time in its history the Philadelphia team has won a pennant. "This same plan we will adopt in the world's series games. While I, as manager, with the other fellows, am confident of ultimate success, I know that the way to defeat our opponents is to think only of the one game we are in. Of course planning for the other side has to be strong, but Moran will do that, for it is a part of his duty, not a function of the player. "The attitude of our club today is one of confidence, but it is far different from that held by the Athletics last year, and from that of the Cubs of 1910. These teams were so overconfident that they completely underrated the power of the clubs they had to face. We realize that to win in the world's championship, we must fight an uphill battle. Every man on our club must be in trim and must be at his best, and they all know it. Even then we will have a hard struggle, because the Red Sox have a strong club in the field, a powerful attack, led by their outfielders, Lewis, Speaker and Hooper, and a pitching staff which is reputed to be far away the strongest in the American League. "This pitching staff is regarded as the big stumbling block to our success, but I don't believe we will have as much trouble with them as some writers would make the public believe. We know that we have not been up against first-class left-handed pitching this year, but that is not a fact. We have seen some good southpaws and have profited by the experience gained by battling against them. Just look what we did against Art Nehf in Boston—fourteen hits for nineteen bases! That doesn't show much weakness against the left-handed squarer, and Ruth will have to be awfully good, better than I believe they are, if they wish to keep us from hitting them. "We have men on our club, too, who are good hunters and the double squarer. Time and again we have pulled this on other clubs with perfect success and have won ball games by its use. Moran knows just when the play should be made and we have been able to make it nine times out of 10 and half the time the play itself has failed the runner on third has been able to either make a steal of home or get safely back to the bag. "This play and many others we have in store for the Red Sox and the fans of Philadelphia who have stuck by us so royally can depend on us to pull through when Pat gives the word.

INSTRUCTOR'S 'INSULT' LEADS STOTESBURY'S SON TO DROP COURSE

Resents Alleged Statement of H. L. Baldensperger That "P. R. T. Has the City by the Throat"

PRESENCE NOT REALIZED

A stepson of E. T. Stotesbury, financier and University of Pennsylvania trustee, has quit his course in economics at the Wharton School because, he says, Instructor H. L. Baldensperger said the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company "has Philadelphia by the throat and is strangling it." "I do not think he knew I was in the classroom. As I left I remarked the lecture was like an i. w. w. meeting. A student alongside of me said, 'No, you are wrong. That was a fine lecture.' I believe Mr. Baldensperger heard what I said, for he looked around at me. "I went home and told my father what had taken place. He told me to do what I thought best and I went to Mr. Breimeier, my adviser, and told him I wished to drop economics. He gave me permission to do so and I have decided to give up permanently that part of my college education. I know nothing of economics before I entered the course, and if that quit is an example of what is to follow, I'm mighty glad I dropped it. Mr. Baldensperger said he was going right on in Doctor Nearing's footsteps. I wanted to study economics, but I don't think young men should be taught that the rich are trying to strangle the poor. "That first lecture sounded to me very much like Socialism. I don't believe in Socialism, and since I've heard that Mr. Baldensperger Bunka you if you don't believe as he does, perhaps it is better that I am out of the course. "Mr. Baldensperger says he has no recollection of making the statement about the P. R. T. attributed to him by Cromwell, but he will not deny that he made it. "I do not wish to enter into a controversy with children," he said. "I should not be surprised if such statements as he attributes to me have been made in the past, nor that I might have made them, but I think it unlikely that at the opening of the course my statements should have been so definite as to name a particular company." Both Baldensperger and Breimeier are supporters of Scott Nearing. The former especially has taken an interest in the free-speech campaign started as a result of the action of the trustees in refusing to renew Doctor Nearing's contract. Dr. Breimeier was openly indignant at the publicity which had been given the affair. "I think this was a dirty yellow story," he said. "I don't know what is behind it, but I think that it was probably started by student newspaper correspondents. Cromwell came to me for no advice on the matter. A few days ago he did come to me and said he wanted to drop economics, but he did not say why he wanted to do so. He also wanted to change the hours of classes in French and Latin." Dean McCrea, of the Wharton School, was asked whether he did not think that the latest disturbance was evidence of the truth of Dr. J. William White's assertion that free speech is not restricted at the University.

YOUTH CONFESSES ROBBERY

Student Captured in Night School Admits Taking Cash Box From Clerk

Howard B. Ramsey confessed at a hearing today that he held up a clerk of the De Egan company, 125 North Franklin street, Richmond, and was held in $500 bail for court. Ramsey was arrested while attending an evening class of the Northeast School, 233 North Franklin street. Bert Witt, a clerk, was alone in the office of the sand company when the hold-up occurred. A masked man entered and covered the clerk with a revolver. "Carrying the cash box, he was chased to Eyre and Widley streets, where he dropped the cash box and disappeared from the sight of his pursuer. Witt, of the police of the East Girard avenue station that he believed he recognized the robber in spite of his mask, and led them to the school, where Ramsey was arrested.
