MINNEAPOLIS GOES "WET" ALONG WITH WHOLE COUNTY

Anti-Saloon Workers, Who Expected Victory, Get Shock

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Oct. 5. - Minneapolls has declined to become the largest "dry" city in the United States. Today's footings of Monday's special election figures show that the "wets" defeated county option by 8950 majority. The voters' ultimatum came as a dis tinct shock to the anti-saloon workers, who confidently expected a sweeping vic-tory. Under the statutes, they cannot again put the liquor question before the electorate for three years. The only chance of making Minneapolis "dry" in the meantime is to force a State-wide prohibition bill through the Legislature and obtain its adoption at the polis.

SERGT. CLAYTON WILSON

FORTY YEARS AT ONE POST

Associates Honor Police Sergeant Wilson, Hero of Tenth District

Forty years of service at one police station is the record of which Street Sergeant Clayton Wilson, of the Front and Master streets station, is boasting today. Wilson, who is 64 years old, resides at 1227 Palethorp street. He was appointed to the force October 5, 1875, by Mayor Stokely and assigned to the 10th district, where he has been ever since. In 1897 he was made a patrol sergeant, and he was promoted to a street sergeant in 1910.

A handsome traveling bag was presented to Sergeant Wilson by Lieutenant William C. Knoell and the patrolmen when the men lined up for 8 o'clock rollcall this morning. His friends have planned a reception for him this evening, which will be held at the home of his son, Albert Wil-son, 1251 North Howard street. The sergeant was once prominent in athletic circles in this city and was a member of the old Vesper Boat Club. He was manager of the 19th District baseball team, which won the police championship this year. Wilson played a prominent part in solving the Schilling murder of about 25 years ago, and once nearly lost his life when he was attacked by the "Bloody Shirters," a notorious gang which he helped wipe out.

DR. WHITE ANSWERS NEARING'S DEFENSE

Issues Second Statement Justifying Dismissal by Penn Trustees

Dr. J. William White, a trustee of the University of Pennsylvania, continued his defense of the board of trustees of that institution today by issuing a second statement relative to the action of that body in failing to reappoint Dr. Scott

Nearing to the teaching staff of the Wharton School. Doctor White's statement is divided into seven counts, rebutting those made yesterday by Doctor Nearing in his reply to Doctor White's first open letter on the subject. The trustee relterates his belief that the "lay audiences" to which the assistant professor lectured were unfit to digest his views because they showed "symptoms of mental indigestion." The remaining counts made by Doctor White may be condensed as follows: It was not contended that Doctor Nearing taught certain theories, but that he was frequently misunderstood. Doctor Nearing's assertion that he was not asked to "better adapt his arguments to the understanding of his audiences" has become a matter of credibility.

Dector Nearing's claim that he did not receive an offer to have his salary con-tinued points either to a genuine misun-derstanding or a "quibble." The editors of the Ladies' Home Journal may have been responsible for attaching the title of professor to Doctor Nearing's articles in that publication, but it is not an explanation which would have curred spontaneously" to Doctor White

THIRD CALL FOR MEN MADE BY ITALY HERE

Untrained Citizens Ordered to Take Places of Home Guards Sent to Front

Hundreds of Italians in this city who were able to escape military service in Italy before coming to the United States may have to go home shortly despite the fact that they were once excused from military duty. A third call to arms has been issued by the Royal Italian Consulate in this city, and this time untrained men are affected.

This is the first time untrained men have been called out by the Italian Government, and it is believed the men will be assigned to home-guard duty when they return. They will, in all probabil-ity, be assigned to police railroad lines where military operations are being car-ried on, and it is considered unlikely that they will see active service for a long

The news of the call created considerable stir in Little Italy today, for those affected by the summons were, for the most part, excused from duty because of family conditions. Many of the men were the sole support of their families and were permitted to consent the control of their families. and were permitted to escape military on that account.

day the Italian papers sent out the call all over this section of the State. The Italian Consul orders these men to report for duty in the shortest possible time at the consulate or at the consular agency nearest their places of residence. The call is directed to untrained men of the "third category," who were born in 1881, and applies to natives of 33 military districts in Italy.

The heavy drain on the able-bodied men of Italy is taken as the cause of the call. Every available soldier in Italy is already under arms and the trained soldiers have been ordered to the front for actual duty. The reservists from this city will take the place of these men in doing guard duty.

After they have become fitted for active duty by a training of several months, it is likely that the men will get some taste, at least, of war.

Our Friends Greetings:

Our Retail Department is now one month old, and the results accomplished in this time have been extremely gratifying.

That we can guarantee a saving to you on all furniture of 40% is a daring statement, but we have more than proven its truth and are fully in the confidence of the people.

For a period of four years we have conducted a whole-sale show room, selling to dealers only. But with the opening of our Retail Department selling methods have been revolutionized. For, acting as manufacturers' agents, selling direct from factory to home, the necessary retailer's profit is entirely eliminated.

Many are the friends that we have made in this short period, and it is to them that we now wish to express our appreciation of their confidence and to say

Thank you
