

NOT VERY CLEVER, THOSE ENGLISH, SAYS MAN TAKEN AS SPY

They Find Evidence of Guilt on Kaufman, of Philadelphia, and Elsewhere, but He Fools 'Em

LAUGHS AT HIS CAPTORS

Adventurous Spirit Gaily Re-counts Experiences With Scotland Yard Sleuths

When the English police caught him he was carrying enough evidence to convict him of being a German spy...

When Scotland Yard detectives took him out to see London, hoping he would drink too much and in a maudlin moment incriminate himself...

They cornered him in his stateroom six inspectors, this time—and they made a heap of German letters and papers...

Five times they grilled him at Avonmouth. Then they took him the 60 miles down to London and put him through an ambuscade of invidious questions...

Baffled, they warned him never again to set foot on English soil; but he smiles still and says: "After all, there are many English ports. They'll have to look sharp if they want to keep me out of all of them."

INSULTED WHEN CALLED SPY

But William H. Kaufman was not a German spy. "You insult me when you say I am," he told Woods, the Avonmouth inspector.

No, he's not a German spy. He's an American citizen and Philadelphia, who hangs his coat and hat at 310 South 3d street in the intervals between the incidents of his real life...

When the English had him in the tightest corner he couldn't resist the temptation to keep some of the most suspicious evidence. "You mustn't let the excitement run this," he says of it.

Back to Philadelphia Kaufman has come—long enough to look up his cronies and to write a letter to the police who caught him and then let their quarry slip away...

Kaufman sailed from Marcus Hook on the oil tanker Westwago on the last day of August, 1914. The tanker dodged torpedo boats and reached Avonmouth, on the east coast of England, September 11.

No sooner had the ship dropped anchor in the harbor than Kaufman was seized on suspicion—Word had gone out that a German spy was in Avonmouth.

FILLS CAPTORS WITH BRANDY

Daily for five days police officers questioned and cross-examined Kaufman. One night they confronted him in his stateroom and searched it, finding innumerable newspaper clippings and letters which proved his pro-German sympathies...

Next day they were obliged to congratulate him upon his shrewdness. "But," says Kaufman, "they stopped there instead of looking for other papers. And I had a camera in that room."

"If they find a camera on you, you're as good as convicted. Me, with my camera and a German accent and a German look—"

"They were shooting spies every day in London, then," he adds casually. After nine days of surveillance and futile efforts to draw out admissions—they were absolutely convinced that he was a spy...

PARENTS INSIST BOYS MAY GO TO SCHOOL COLLARLESS

If Teachers Wear V-Neck Dresses, Why Object to Boys' Attire?—They Say

The New Jersey State Superintendent of Schools will soon be called upon to decide whether the schoolboys in that State may go to school without collars.

The Board of Education in Merchantville has already decided that they will not be permitted to do so, but one protesting parent in Merchantville is not satisfied with the decision of the board...

The decision of the board upheld the action of teachers who refused to allow Robertson and VanLeer Turner in their classrooms without collars, and as a consequence the parents of the boys, Mr. and Mrs. Frank V. L. Turner, have announced that they will carry the fight to Trenton...

The two boys were excluded from the classrooms four days from September 14 to September 17, because they said it was so hot on those days they wanted to go without collars. The parents presented a petition that the boys be given credit for the studies they had missed during their absence from school on those days...

The angry parents hint that Miss Rogers and Miss Eiler, the teachers who sent the boys home to wear V-neck dresses, and that their action in refusing to let the boys do the same is inconsistent. If the State Superintendent won't agree with their point of view, Mr. and Mrs. Turner may even carry the case into the courts.

SALVATION ARMY PAIR TO WED

CAPT. EDITH MARIE HOLZ CAPT. CLAUDE E. BATES

SALVATIONISTS ARRIVE HERE FOR CONGRESS

Commander Eva Booth Will Preside at All Sessions of Delegates

The largest number of Salvation Army members that has ever assembled in Philadelphia is pouring into the city today. From 24 Eastern and Gulf States they are arriving to attend the 35th anniversary congress of the Atlantic Coast province of the organization.

A feature of particular interest will be the marriage tonight of Captain Edith Marie Holz, daughter of Colonel Richard E. Holz, commander of the Atlantic Coast province, and Captain Claude E. Bates, of West Chester. The ceremony will be performed in the presence of a great assemblage of Salvationists and guests in the grand ballroom of the Parkway Hotel.

Colonel Holz and his assistants have been busy for weeks preparing for the congress. As a result there will be plenty of entertainment for the delegates. The social activities started this afternoon, when a banquet was tendered the officers of the army in the Parkway Building.

BUSINESS BEGINS TOMORROW. Tomorrow morning the business of the congress will be first taken up at councils of private officers. These councils will be continued in the afternoon. In the evening at 7:30 a service of unusual interest will be held. It will be a council of soldiers and former soldiers in the Chambers-Wylie Memorial Presbyterian Church, Broad street, below Spruce.

Friday morning, afternoon and evening there will be more private councils of the officers in the Wylie Chambers Church. Commander Booth will give a lecture on her father in the Forrest Theatre Saturday. Starting from the Chambers-Wylie Church at 1:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon, the officers and soldiers, with their guests, will parade to Independence Square, and at 2:30 o'clock there will be an open-air mass-meeting in Washington Square.

PROGRAM FOR SUNDAY. The program for Sunday will begin at 10:30 a. m. with a holiness meeting in the 8th and Vine streets citadel. Colonel John Dean, of New York, will be the chief speaker. At 3 o'clock there will be a children's patriotic service in the Forrest Theatre, and at the same place at 8 o'clock in the evening Miss Booth will give her famous address on "My Father."

The visiting Salvationists will occupy many Philadelphia Protestant pulpits Sunday morning and evening.

ENGINES IN 11 U. S. WARSHIPS DECLARED TO BE FAULTY

Vessels Said to Range From Dreadnoughts to Destroyers

Surprise was expressed in naval circles today over the report that 11 ships of the United States Navy must be equipped with new engines to replace faulty ones.

All grades of ships are affected, says the report. Among the smaller craft affected are the destroyer Downes, Dunston and Henley. They have been in commission only a few months.

The chief fault with the engines, it is said, is their excessive use of coal. In most cases the shipbuilding companies have agreed to install new engines or adequately remedy the trouble that has developed since the ships were launched.

ANTHRAX VICTIM KEEPS COURAGEOUS FRONT

Jokes With Physicians and Tells Them He Is Sure He Will Recover

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—George F. Stackpole, the aged lawyer suffering from anthrax at Bellevue Hospital, rallied early today when it was thought that he was dying, and once more the attending physicians held out hope that he might recover.

The lawyer, though considerably weaker as a result of his temperature rising to 104 at 1 a. m., joked with the house physicians when they visited him. "You won't be able to keep me here long. I am sure I will recover."

IMPORTANT LIQUOR RULING

Court Holds Saloon Owner for Man's Death While Intoxicated

If a man is killed in an accident while intoxicated after leaving a saloon in which he became drunk the proprietor of that saloon is responsible and liable for damages, in the opinion of the Pennsylvania Superior Court.

This ruling was made by Judge Orady yesterday when he affirmed a verdict for $1000 awarded in Allegheny County to Mrs. Elizabeth Bier in her own right and in behalf of her six small children.

The court ruled that, since her husband was known to be of intemperate habits and it was proved that he was killed after "he became staggering drunk in the saloon of Florence W. Myers, of Dravansburg, Allegheny County, in November, 1914, the defendant was responsible and should pay damages."

ACCUSED OF AIDING THIEF

Man Arrested on Charge of Receiving Stolen Goods

An echo from the robberies in Logan last spring and fall, when several thousand dollars' worth of jewelry and other articles were stolen, was heard in the Park and Lehigh avenues police station, when John Steinberg, of 1129 Ragsdale street, was arraigned before Magistrate Emery today, accused of receiving the stolen goods.

Preston Yeates, who formerly lived at 2801 Park avenue, and was arrested last April and sentenced to from six to eight years in the Eastern Penitentiary, accused of the robberies, was brought to the police station by Warden McKenty, but refused to positively identify Steinberg as the man to whom he sold the stolen articles.

Steinberg declared that he was innocent of the accusations, but Magistrate Emery held him under $500 bail for a further hearing pending an investigation.
