CHILDREN'S HOSPITAL CAMPAIGN CLOSES WITH DONATIONS OF $308,053

Fund Short $191,946 of $500,000 Mark, but Managers Say It Will Be Raised by End of Year

ARTICLES TO BE SOLD

With approximately 6000 individual subscriptions, ranging from $50,000 to the penny of a newsboy, the campaign to raise half a million dollars in 10 days in aid of the Children's Hospital, of Philadelphia, closed last night with a dinner at the Adelphia Hotel, $191,946,47 short of the amount aimed for.

The grand total turned in In 10 days amounted to $368,053.53.

amounted to $308,053.53. Benjamin Rush, first vice chairman of the Campaign Committee, who presided because E. T. Stoteshury had been called to Chicago on business, pronounced the campaign an unqualified success, despite the fact the full amount had not been raised in the time specified. Mr. Rush said the balance needed, a little less than spm.000, would be obtained before the year 1915 closed, and that ground would be broken at the 18th and Bainbridge streets atte. on November 23, which will be the site, on November 23, which will be the 6th anniversary of the founding of the Children's Hospital, at 408 Blight street, with 15 beds.

with 15 beds. Mr. Rush announced a subscription of $5000 from John Wanamaker and a virtual assurance from him of the last $25,000 which will be required to round out the full half million. He said also that a woman, who in the last three years had given $125,000 to the hospital, had told him during the day that a little later she would be asked to make an additional important donation, and an additional important donation, a asked what could be built for $50,000. and

There was no doubt whatsoever, Mr. Rush said, that the group of buildings would be completed and in use according to the original plans before the leaves egan to fall in 1916,

It was intended to auction off for the benefit of the hospital several articles, induding Ellen Adalr's German shell, upon which rests a bid of $450; four rare United States gold coins, two pieces of furniture made and donated by the inmates of the Eastern Penitentiary and a doll made and dressed by the nurses of the hospital, but Mr. Rush decided that the only auction would be that of the doll, and that the other articles would be placed on display in the establishment of Bally, Banks & Biddle, there to be sold for the benefit of the fund. Jewery, consisting of diamond rings, braceless and a lavellere, valued at $2000, will be placed on exhibition and sold with the shell and other material dona-tions. This jewelry was donated to Team captained by Mrs. J. Ernest Richards. A, captained by property of Mrs. Fred-erick A. Riele and been placed in a deposit vault since Mrs. Riele's death, is months ago. Mr. Riele, who lives on De Lancey place above 22d street, de-cided it would be of more value turned into cash for the benefit of the hospital. and gave it to Mrs. Richards.

In addition to these money grants, sums aggregating $11,000 were appropriated for educational purposes in six of the cases and $28,500 awarded toward the purchase of homes in 40 cases, all of which payments are subject to the approval of the beneficiary's plans by the commission. The act which brought the bronze medal to Mahan occurred on Sunday,

July 28, 1912, at Cresson and Levering streets. He was approaching a grade crossing at that point when some one shouted that a child was on the railroad tracks. The child was sitting about 50 feet away from the lad, playing with ballast. An express train was approach-ing at a high rate of speed. Mahan ran up the track, selzed the child and jumped way just as the train whizzed by. The

BLIND GIRLS "SEE" MIGHTY BATTLESHIPS AT LEAGUE ISLAND

Their Verdict Is That a Warship Is Like a House-Deft Fingertips Their Weapon of Discernment

PLEASED WITH VISIT

A battlerhip is like a house. This verdict was rendered today by a majority of 30 blind girls from the Penn-selvania Institute for the Instruction of the Blind, at Overbook, after a "sight-seeing" visit to the may sard. They had never "seen" a battleship before, but, in split of their inshilly to behold the gray bulks with their see their their start. A battleship is like a house. spite of their manning to bend the gray hulks with their eyes, their description of the sentighters is much more minute and painstaking and accurate than that rendered by many a siddy sirl whose pretty eyes roguinhly wander over the outlines of the vessels and record neth-ter on the heat ing on the brain. Feeling their way over a ship, touch-ing here a gun, a cutlass, there a railing, a sample of powder, running their smooth a sample of powder, running their should hands swiftly over iron walls and port-hole frames and lockers, the girls slowly but surely grined a conception of the battleship—a house, a three-story house. Swiftly the trained nerves sent the im-pressions from the det invertion to the brain, and when the tedious journey over the ship was finished there was recorded the ship was finished there was recorded in the ever-active brain an image of the warship-a three-story house with stair-ways and many rooms. There are lockers, too, and hammocks with hooks, and stoves in the kitchen and a bakery.

I have helped haul up the flag on of one of the heroes and three others our flagpole, too, and I know that it is toll."

Just what "tall" means to her we cannot conceive "It is, after all, useless to ask a blind person for a conception of an object as coresenting the conception of all blind persons," said P. H. Burritt, principal of the school, "No two seeing persons con-ceive of an object in the same manner, and so it is with blind persons. And, offer we have heard their convention, do after we have heard their conception, do we understand it?"

The girls, under the care of teachers, have recently made several trips to League Island, where they are especially honored guests. The tours are part of their education, a model of a ship being "shown" them before the visit and written accounts, in the Braille system, being required in the classroom after the trip is finished.

Its Value Estimated at More Than $100,000

An estate valued at more than $100,000 was left by George C. Leupold, who died recently at his residence, 131 East Gorgas street, and whose will was admitted to probate today.

Although the exact amount of the estate involved is not named in the testament, its size is indicated by the fee paid to the Register of Wills, which was the maximum and is paid only on estates of more than $100,000. The bulk of the estate is left to a brother, Charles W, Leupold, and to six sisters. The executors are Charles Leu-
