

NANCY WYNNE EXPATRIATES ON MANY DOINGS OF SOCIETY

Miss Sarah H. B. Penrose Will Be Honor Guest at Dance to Be Given at Ritz-Carlton Tonight by Powell Evans

TONIGHT will be a very gay one for the buds. The Powell Evans are giving a dance for Sarah Penrose at the Ritz-Carlton, and there are to be lots of dinners before hand. Sarah is the very attractive daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Charles B. Penrose and a granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Drexel, of this city. Her mother was Miss Katherine Drexel, a sister of Mrs. Eric Dahlgren, Mrs. Harry Lehr and Mrs. Seton Henry. She is related to the Biddies, Morrills, Van Henselaers, Fells, Mills, Drexel, Pauls, Munns, Howard Henrys, A. J. Antelo Devereux, Smiths, Craig Biddies and numerous others of the foremost families of Philadelphia.

Besides her family, however, Sarah has a delightful personality of her own and is one of the most attractive debutantes. She is rather petite, with dark eyes and the softest brown hair, which has a bronze shade and gives the appearance of spun glass. It is a most unusual color and a great beauty. She has rather a quaint way of dressing which enhances her prettiness. The particular frock I am thinking of is of pale yellow silk flowered with tiny bunches of roses, cut open at the front over a very lacy drop skirt. The effect is very fairylike and gives the appearance of an old-fashioned picture.

Dr. and Mrs. Norton Downs will entertain for their daughter, Elizabeth, before the dance, and Mr. and Mrs. John Hamlin will also give a dinner. Helene Martin will be honor guest at a dinner which her parents, Judge and Mrs. William Wilkins Carr, will give.

She was in New York exactly half an hour, according to father. The next day, however, three large hat boxes, the size of young trunks were deposited in her front hall by the busy expressman, and after half an hour she was out of their capacious depths by the excited French maid.

"But the worst is yet to come," says father, knowing just the state of mind of his daughter. "The shoes! The shoes! The shoes—suffering mortals, are they not?"

The managers of the Hahnemann Hospital are about to do a very nice thing, and I think it is rather unusual. They have sent out cards for a reception for the medical students, to be given in the College Building, on Broad street, at the corner of Fifth street, on December 10, 11 and 12. Mrs. Potts tells me they will have a fine musicale in the early part of the evening. The women interested in the affair are Mrs. Thomas Carmichael, Mrs. E. Harbord Jones, Mrs. Harry Weaver, Mrs. Clarence Bartlett, Mrs. Joseph M. Steele, Miss Isabel W. Temple, Mrs. Dillwyn Wistar and Mrs. Potts.

He was coming over from New York and, of course, as he had not seen the man for some time, they began to exchange confidences, as they are great friends. And he said: "Well, you know I am engaged." "No," and then I just could not hear the name, but it is going to be announced soon, and knowing the man, I am sure it will be very interesting. She is a pretty, pretty person.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a costume of blue chiffon velvet, accented with broad bands of beaver. The house accompanying this was fashioned of cord chiffon, embroidered in gold thread. Her hat of gold lace was adorned with a single flower, outlined with a narrow band of beaver. She carried a bouquet of orchids and lilies of the valley. There were no attendants.
