

ILLUSTRATED Evening Ledger

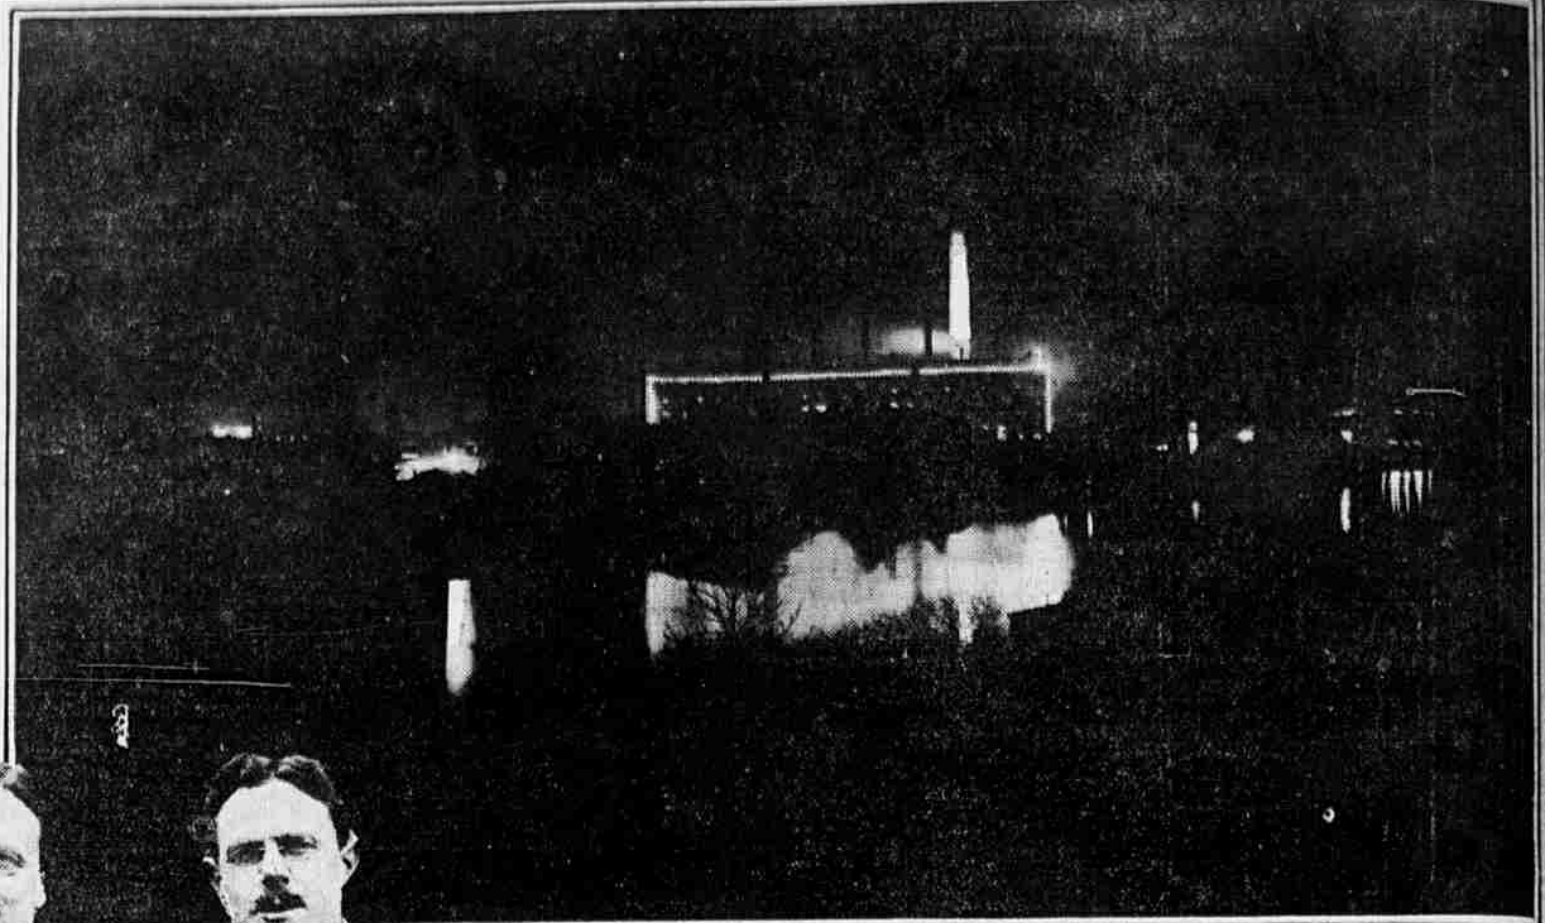

SATURDAY
December 4, 1915

PHILADELPHIA'S DAILY ACTIVITIES IN VARIOUS FIELDS TOLD BY THE PHOTOGRAPHER-REPORTER

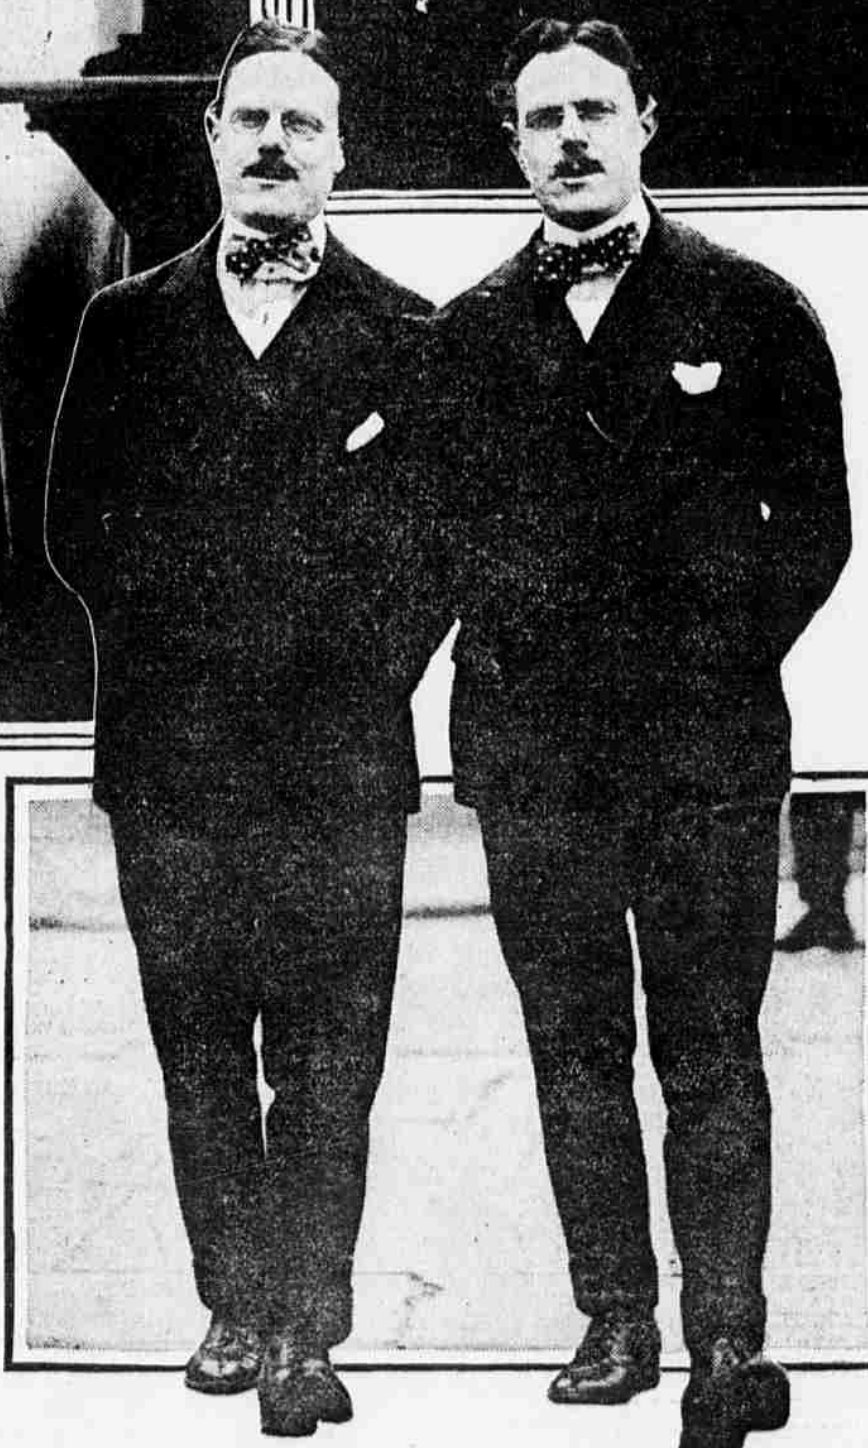

HELP PHILADELPHIA BUY A MILLION CHRISTMAS SEALS

Many of the stamps are being sold at this booth in the Central Postoffice, in the Federal Building. The Pennsylvania Society for the Prevention of Tuberculosis is working to dispose of 6,000,000 of the penny stickers in the State.

WATERS OF THE SCHUYLKILL A MIRROR IN THE NIGHT
The building ablaze with light is the Schuylkill Waterside Station of the Philadelphia Electric Company, situated at 28th and Christian streets. Here are housed the two largest turbo-generators in the world. The river reflects each ray of light.

WHICH OF THESE MEN DO YOU KNOW?

The extraordinary likeness of these two brothers, Alfred S. and Herbert G. Jones, familiarly known as "the Jones twins," is a constant source of merriment and perplexity to friends and business acquaintances alike. They have identically the same stature, speech and manner.

"WOMAN'S PLACE IS IN THE HOME"

With her baby on her arm, this little Italian mother earns a few pennies peddling peanuts on the busy city streets. Her husband left her to go away to the great war. She is fit for this, but going to the polls, the antis say, would degrade her.

"HEADING THE BALL"

Soccer is replete with spectacular plays, but this one surpasses all others from the spectators' point of view. L. Flannelly, captain of the Viscose team, of Chester, is tensely awaiting the moment of contact.

STRETCHING TO MAKE THE RETURN SNAPPY

The ball came a bit slower than B. Booth, who plays outside right on the Diaston team of the Allied League, had reckoned, and he was forced to "reach long" to prevent a second's loss. He got there nevertheless, although his effort threw him off his balance.

DRIVING THE SPHERE UP THE FIELD

Mearkie, of West Philadelphia High School, is one of the cleverest booters of the "Speedboys' eleven. His accuracy in passing and his speed have won him a forward's position.