NANCY WYNNE'S COMMENTS ON THE VARIOUS SOCIAL AFFAIRS

The 36th Annual Charity Ball Will Be Given Tonight in the Old Academy of Music-Miss Hannah Wright to Be Given an At Home

es rest at last, but the debutantes con't be able to, for they will have the Hutchinson's dance next day. It has been some week-so far.

After all the rehearsing of many weeks, the long-anticipated pageant of the Charity Ball will be given tonight, and to say the ball will be its usual social success is no exaggeration, for the entire "world and his wife" will go, if not to dance in the pageant, at least to see daughter or son do that same thing.

It is a so much better plan 1 think to get the people you want to have attend the ball to take part in some stunt, such as tonight's affair, for then they will take a personal interest, and there you are.

Of course there are some combinations in the various groups which make us ask questions, how did he happen in that group? and what a funny hunch for that one to be with? However, be that as it may, it is going to be great, and I for one will be on hand early, so as to see them all at their antics. Some of the performers, mostly the debutantes, will go after the pageant over to the Norris' supperdance, which they will give for Dorothy, at the Bellevue-Stratford.

In the afternoon, Hannah Wright will be given a tea by her aunt, Mrs. Henry Cadwalader Chapman. Hansah is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Wright. Her mother was Heloise Conover. Her older sister Margaret made her debut two seasons ago; they are both very popular girls. Hannah's brother Whitney Wright's card was sent in the invitation to Mrs. Chapman's at home. Hannah is tall and very chic; she comes by her style very honestly, as her mother and her aunt, who is Mae Conover, have always been noted for their smart looks and frocks. They spend their summers in Bar Harbor always, the girls being among the few of the younger set who go there, and they have the time of their young lives, I have been told by some who frequent that exclusive hunting ground.

Just as I said, we were all there and we had a great time! Tony was, as usual, in his own genial element. For some reason he did not introduce his mongsters this year, though he did lead his daughter-in-law out on the stage himself. Mrs. Biddle Jr.'s voice is good and shows careful training.

It is kind of hard on a tenor to have volce like Noah Swayne's precede him, but Dan did not mind; he argued with the audience that "All the world laves a lover, so why does not Betty love me?" in such sorrow that we all wanted to help him out.

All the brothers in the Bible Classes were about the room, and every now and then they would be called upon to sing several hymns, two of which had been written specially for, the Classes. The only trouble with the concert is that it is too long; if only amateurs would not give encores unless they are absolutely demanded, it would make their performances so much more enbeen able to sing and Elizabeth Latta riage in the early autumn. come toward the end of the profram as was the first plan. As it was she sang at the end of the first part. and it is no exaggeration to say she brought down the house. That girl has a big future before her. Best of all she loves her work, she enjoyed every minute of it, and even in long-seasoned professionals I have seldom seen such case and charm of manner. She was a picture of youth and joy and was undoubtedly the success of the evening. She is only about 19, having made her debut last year. I wish more people could have heard her, but they will mooner or later. It seemed a sort of fate that the two best should have been at the end of the program. Fortunately Miss Latta was put forward, but Robert Armbruster played in his regular turn, and the audience, having mostly left to catch trains, missed a very fine performance. Mr. Armbruster is another very young person, but his success as a planist is well established, and he played with great expression. Of course, there were the old favorites, Doctor Lipshutz and Arthur Jackson, who have both splendid voices, and Mrs. Anders and Mrs. Whelen. The Stotesburys had a box and the George W. Childs Drexels. In the front of the Drexel box sat Mrs. Gardner Cassatt, Mrs. Tom Ridgway and Mrs. Craig Biddle, and I thought. as I looked at them, "No wonder Philadelphia is famous for its beautiful women."

ToNIGHT we will be able to retire In the wee sma' hours and think we on rest at last, but the debutantes on wednesday evening next, in honor of Mr. and Mrz. W. F. Cochrane, who will leave the city very shortly. Much regret in being feit in all circles, particularly among the naval set, over the departure of this charming couple, and several de-lightful affairs have been planned prior will be represented by one of the sea-sons. Each month will have a set of 10 couples of dancers, making in all 240

Although Tuesday's rehearsal was the first in which all of the dancers were brought together, it went off with a precision and snap unusual at a dress re-hearsal. Mr. Charles Morgan, the old Mask and Wig star, has thoroughly drilled each set, and in spite of the fact that every month has a different dance, characteristic of the season and entirely original, the dances were well executed and promise to create a sensation, as compared with group dances of the past. Costumes of the dancers in each set have been especially designed and made to be appropriate to the seasons represented. As usual, the ball will be opened tonight by a band concert at 8:30, and the pageant of the seasons will begin at 9, Following this will be general dancing.

That there is nothing much sweeter after all in this world than the heart of a little boy is well illustrated by the fact that as a final tribute to the late Mr. James Mapes Dodge the boys of his neighborhood, who have always enloyed the skating pond on his grounds and received many of his other kindasses, have given of their very own money, and raised quite a nice sum, too, and sent Mrs. Dodge some flowers. "He Wishes the Bride and Groom Many Years Full of Health"

"So there would be speeches at the wedding!" Zapp said.

"Ain't there speeches at every wedding?" Birsky demanded. "Roosevelt will speak also. I bet he gets up and says he hopes the bride and groom will be as happy as he has been in his married lives. Also he wishes the bride and groom many years full of health, wealth and prosperity, and that without military training a nation could got exports of eighty billions annually, and what is it-am I right or wrong?"

Who wrote that? You're right! There's only one Montague Glass, and his work is easily recognized.
