

Photoplay Theatre Gossip

The beautiful oriental settings used in "Bella Donna," coming to the Alhambra next week, were made in Florida. "The Disciple," with William S. Hart, is the first Triangle subject for this theatre.

Cosmo Hamilton, author of "The Blindness of Virtue," which comes to the Girard on Tuesday, will give an address at the Broad Street Theatre on Thursday under the auspices of the Drama League.

It will be an easy matter for lovers of both Mary Pickford and Margaret Clark to judge the merits of these favorite players in their new plays which appear at the Locust-Miss Pickford in "Madame Butterfly" and Margaret Clark in "Still Waters."

Ruby Hoffman, the Philadelphia favorite, will appear at the Ruby on Tuesday in "The Danger Signal," while Hale Hamilton, remembered for his work in "A Pair of Sixes," will take the leading role in "Her Painted Hero," a burlesque of stage life.

Commencing with today and tonight, the long popular photoplay house, German-town avenue at Tulpehocken street, rechristened "The Rialto," and with the booking of its attractions entrusted to the Stanley Booking Company, will inaugurate a new period in its existence. As an initial attraction there will be Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Castle, probably the best known and most discussed couple in America, in "The Whirl of Life."

Dorothy Bernard, who formerly claimed Lubinville for her home, will be at the Strand on Saturday in Fox's "The Little Gipsy."

Robert Connors, of the Edison Company, who was the centre of attraction with the female fans at the ball, will appear at the Broad Street Casino next Friday in "The Truth About Helen."

The first episode in the new Universal serial, "Graft," will be shown at the Jumbo on Friday. This new story is written by 18 authors.

Florence Reed, appearing at the Susquehanna on Monday in "The Cowardly Way," is a Philadelphia.

"All-star Week" could be applied to the bill at the Globe, 5th and Market streets, with such players as Mary Pickford, Hazel Dawn, Blanche Sweet, Francis X. Bushman, Blanche Ring, Edmund Breese, Beverly Bayne and other favorites in productions.

Lottie Pickford, sister of Mary, will appear in a Mutual Masterpiece, "Curly," at the Savoy next Tuesday.

One of the finest cabaret scenes ever staged will be shown in "Midnight at Maxim's" at the Grand next Tuesday.

A double feature bill for Thursday at the Overbrook will include the first episode of "Graft" and Mary Pickford in "Emeralda."

Nance O'Neill, who recently joined the Lubin forces, will be seen in Fox's "A Woman's Past," at the Liberty on Tuesday.

George Beban, in "An Alien," gives his wonderful Italian character work in this play on Tuesday and Wednesday at the Jefferson.

Lillian Lorraine, the charming leader of the grand march at the recent ball, will appear at the Sherwood on Monday in "Should a Wife Forgive?" Theda Bara, in Fox's "Carmen," is billed for Tuesday.

Triangle plays will be seen at the Orpheum, beginning next week, and the new arrangement of the program will give the patrons an opportunity to see these new features here first.

Lionel Barrymore, brother of Ethel, is playing the leading role in "The Yellow Streak," a Metro film, at the German-town on Wednesday.

"Trilby," the latest play with Clara Kimball Young, will be at the Orient on Saturday, in addition to other films.

"Carmen," with Geraldine Farrar, will be the attraction for the first two days next week at the Cedar. This theatre now secures its plays through the Stanley Booking Office.
