

SENATORS HEAR PLEAS OF SUFFRAGE LEADERS FOR THEIR AMENDMENT

Dr. Shaw Heads Delegation That Calls on Senator Charles Thomas and Other Committeemen

EVERY ANGLE ARGUED

Workers' Cordial Reception Presages Victory Again This Year in Upper Chamber

By M'LISS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—That the Susan B. Anthony amendment calling on Congress to submit the question of woman's enfranchisement to the State legislatures will meet with the same success in the Senate this year as it did last, when it passed in the higher body of Congress, only to be defeated in the lower, was evidenced, suffragists assert, by the cordial reception accorded the suffrage delegation, headed by Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, which crowded Senator Charles Thomas' committee room at noon today and flowed over into the corridors.

EVERY ANGLE DISCUSSED

Reasons why women should vote first, last and for all times were presented from every angle. Mrs. Pattie Ruffalo, of Alabama, tore to shreds the arguments that Southern chivalry obligated woman's need for the ballot. Mrs. Harriet Stokes Thompson, of Illinois, took up the cudgels for the working woman. Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, of New York, in a masterly appeal pointed out that because of the tremendous vote cast for at the last election a new factor had entered into the realm of the great movement that should influence Congress in seeing the expediency of passing favorably on the Federal amendment.

PENNSYLVANIANS IN LIMELIGHT

The splendid results achieved in the last election by the Pennsylvania suffragists is responsible for a noticeable prestige accorded them at the convention. Mrs. Frank M. Roessing, of Pittsburgh, who was president of the association at the time of the Keynote address, carried outside of Philadelphia, is regarded as the authority on how a State should be organized for a successful campaign, and her name appears with insistent frequency on the program.

During the coming campaign which, according to Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, president of the International Suffrage Association, will be "the most gigantic battle for human liberty ever waged in bloodless war."

In speaking of the distribution of literature in Pennsylvania, Mrs. Roessing declared that, despite the fact that the voters had been almost buried in it, not enough had been given out. Between 25 and 30 million pieces, however, she said, had been distributed in the four Eastern campaign States.

The boom, or perhaps one should more properly call it a boomlet, which was launched no one seems to know where, to make Mrs. Roessing national president, when the election of officers takes place Friday morning, instead of collapsing after her first announcement yesterday, that under no circumstances would she permit her name to be used, seems to have gathered force.

Every one concedes that there is no woman big enough to stand up against Mrs. Shaw, the present president, or against Mrs. Catt. Many suffragists have expressed the opinion that the former will allow herself to be persuaded to reconsider her decision, but they have no hopes of Mrs. Catt, who stopped the circulation of a petition favoring her which was being the rounds yesterday.

LAD SAVES BOY SKATER

Seizes Thick Stick and Rescues Speaker Ambler's Son From Ice Pond at Abington

A 10-year-old boy saved Merrill Ambler, the son of the speaker of the State House of Representatives, from drowning in a pond in Abington. The rescuer is Edward Cooper, whose father, William Cooper, is a trolley car conductor. When a group of adults gathered about him last night to congratulate him on his brave act, the youngster exclaimed: "I was scared to death, but I didn't want to see Merrill drowned to death. Me and him is good friends."

LAWYER ENDED LIFE BECAUSE THREATENED BY TUBERCULOSIS

Clarence Winter, Who Killed Himself in a Hotel, Identified as a Resident of Indianapolis

Brother Explains Tragedy That Proved Puzzling to Police

Positive identification was made today of Clarence Winter, an Indianapolis attorney and Yale graduate, who committed suicide by shooting himself in the right temple at the Hotel Walton late yesterday, after having been missing from his home for about 10 days.

The mystery which surrounded the shooting was cleared up by Keyes Winter, of 125 East 28th street, New York, a brother, who arrived early today and identified the body at the Morgue.

"My brother was threatened with tuberculosis and that, perhaps, preyed on his mind," he said. "Why he came here to Philadelphia is a mystery, unless it was to commit suicide. He called me up on the long-distance telephone Thursday from lace and was to meet me in New York."

Clarence Winter, who was 41 years old, leaves a widow and two children living at 1300 North Meridian street, Indianapolis.

He was the legal Indianapolis representative of the Acetylene Gas Company and was to have met his brother and other representatives of the company in New York for a conference on an important decision affecting the concern which is to be handed down by the Supreme Court, according to a statement made by Keyes Winter at the Coroner's office.

The telephone call to New York and an automobile tag among Winter's effects aided in establishing the identity of the body, which will be taken to Indianapolis for burial.

A note signed "Tom," which at first puzzled Coroner's Detective Paul and the police of the 15th and Locust streets station, was explained by the suicide's brother. The dead attorney regarded the name "Clarence" as effeminate and always signed himself "Tom," he said. Both the brothers were graduated from the law school of Yale University.

Winter arrived at the hotel Thursday, registering under his own name. He left Saturday, but returned Sunday. Yesterday morning he went out and returned with a package, thought to have been the revolver with which he shot himself. He referred to it jokingly as "Christmas shopping."

The attorney carefully shaved himself and was seated before a mirror when he fired the shot. The body was found by a maid several hours later. Hotel attendants discovered a note asking Winter's father to care for his wife and children. The note read:

Dear Father—Look after Margaret

ELKTON, Md., Dec. 15.—The gang of yeggmen who have been robbing post-offices on the Eastern Shore for the last few months visited the Elkton postoffice today. The safe not being locked, the thieves gathered in about a similar amount in stamps. Postal inspectors from Washington arrived during the day and are making an investigation.

This is the Third Day!

A good day to fathom the meaning of "Intensified Value" in Suits and Overcoats at $15

It means simply this. We have procured by dint of determination and influence such Overcoatings and Suit fabrics as were this season—and are today!—choice values in Suits and Overcoats at $20, $22.50 and $25. At $15 their value is as discernible as a blue-blooded blonde in a village of Zulus.

All new goods, made of fabrics especially bought for this occasion! Not one of them had ever appeared on our counters before Monday of this week!

THE OVERCOATS are staple, both as regards fabrics and form. THE SUITS are made to play in the duet and not lack in equal distinction.

There's not a garish, gaudy style among them, either of Suit or Overcoat. They are the product of our supreme effort to make this December Week of Intensified Values lay it all over the weeks that have gone before!

There's the plain English of the proposition. Its nature is such as to require nothing further than its statement; and having made that statement as our part, the rest is up to you.
