

NANCY WYNNE ANTICIPATES A PLEASANT TIME AT COSTUME DANCE

About Two Hundred and Fifty Guests Will Attend the Dance Which Mr. Gustave Heckscher Will Give on New Year's Eve—Other Doings

EVERY ONE is looking forward to the costume dance which Geo Heckscher will give on New Year's Eve at the Bellevue-Stratford. His parties are always great fun, and the very smartest people will be there. I hear that there will be about 250 guests, some among whom will be Mr. and Mrs. John C. Groome, Mr. and Mrs. Leland Thomson, of Troy; Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Townsend, Mr. and Mrs. W. Howard Hancock, Mr. and Mrs. Barklie Henry, Mr. and Mrs. J. Walter Steel, Miss Elizabeth Steel, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Large, Mr. and Mrs. Meade Large, Miss Henrietta Large, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Scott, Mr. and Mrs. Jimmie Potter, Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Harrison, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Montgomery, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Geary, Dr. and Mrs. Albert Francine, the Howell Parry, of Baltimore, and Mr. and Mrs. Parry, from Baltimore; the Ned Crozars, Stanley Reeves, Dal Dikons, May Easby and Mr. Sydney Wright. And all these people are only a few of those who will dance in the New Year under Geo's hospitality. Judging from foregoing entertainments given by that same gentleman, nothing will be left undone for the delectation of his guests.

The new Princeton Club opened yesterday and I must say the house is a beauty. Formerly they had only a couple of rooms at 15th and Sansom streets, but now a "whole house," and such a one; they have a right to be very proud of it. It is at 1222 Locust street, just on the corner, with the door opening on Camac street.

As it was the only chance we poor females had of inspecting the sacred premises, for after yesterday no inquisitive maiden may poke her nose in at the door even, of course, we were all there.

The grillroom is about the best thing in the house and gives full promise of a good time. It has high wainscoted walls of dark brown oak and a long table, a round one, benches and big comfortable chairs. The plate rail is decorated with a quantity of steins, on which were painted the names of various members. It seems the custom of collecting these died out about '98, so there were no names of graduates after that year.

President and Mrs. Henry Grier Hibben came over from Princeton to attend the tea, and a number of the members' wives received. Mrs. John Bright, who was Amelia Putnam, looked very sweet in a blue gown of a pastel shade, trimmed with squirrel fur, and Mrs. Lloyd Coats, Theo Bailey that was, was radiant in a rose-colored frock. The whole of the second story back is one large room, and yesterday afternoon it was given over to dancing, and the party lasted well into the evening.

I hear that several women are going to open a sale of peace cards, calendars and posters on Monday at the Lincoln Building. The sale will be under the auspices of the Pennsylvania Peace Association, and the proceeds will be used for the Red Cross work in France. Among the leaders in the work are Mrs. Edwin G. Grice, Mrs. J. Reese Lewis, of Lansdowne, and Mrs. W. I. Hull, of Swarthmore.

Grippe is here and holds full sway until it really has become a joke, except for the poor souls who have it. It is now quite the fashion to say instead of "among those present," "among those who have the grippe are—" Molly Thayer is one of the weebs who has just recovered from its distressful teils. She is so attractive and has such a good time, too. However, she is now on the well list, so we are all glad for that. Leta Sullivan has had it, too, and Dorothy Dinmore has had a bad case. In fact, it seems as if Germantown was sadly disturbed by the ravaging germ and just before Christmas. Well, "among those" suffering now and lately are both Mr. and Mrs. William J. Taylor, Dr. Charles A. Curry, Harry Sill, and here in town Elizabeth Taylor, who is at the Lincoln.

Mrs. Fisher L. Boyd, Mrs. Stanley Pearson, Allan Pearson, Sigourney Melloe and Mrs. Henry K. Kurtz, Jr., and Elizabeth Adams declared at the Fox tea yesterday that she was going home to bed. I don't know whether it was grippe or exhaustion. Peggy Perot and Marion Button will be two of the debs to be feted tonight. Mr. and Mrs. Button will give them a dinner before the meeting of Mrs. Troth's dancing class, which will be held for the second time this season at Manheim. Peggy is a dear girl and has had rather a sad time now and again through the winter, owing to the uncertain condition of her mother's health. Mrs. Perot has been very ill, but is now better. I am glad to say. Esther Hochman will have a dinner before the class also. All the young people love to go to these dances. There is a great deal of go to them. Mrs.

Troth is quite the ideal hostess and makes it her business to have every one know every one else, which is, after all, the charm of a real chaperone.
