know why the public had not been better informed regarding the Gallipoli enterprise. He joined with Trenchard in asking why a certain dispatch from General Ian Hamilton, formerly in command at the Dardanelles, had not been made at the Dardanelles, formerly in command at the Dardanelles, formerly in command at the Dardanelles.

SLAYS BREAK HINDENBURG OFFENSIVE ON DVINSK FRONT

LONDON, Dec. 22

The Daily Express correspondent wires from Gdov: "The German offensive on the Riga-Dvinsk front has completely failed. Field Marshal von Hindenburg has been forced to retire before Russian counter-attacks after burying his cannon and abandoning an enormous amount of material.

50,000 TURKS TO FIGHT ALLIES ON WEST FRONT

AMSTERDAM, Dec. 22.—For the first time a Turkish army is to take part in battle in Northern Europe. A frontier correspondent of the Central News reports that 50,000 Turkish soldiers, no longer required for the defense of the Dardanelles since the withdrawal of the British army there, have arrived at Bruges in Belgium on their way to the western front where they will relieve German infantry fighting against the Allied forces.

GERMANS ADMIT LOSS OF VOSGES POSITION

BERLIN, Dec. 22.—The German War Office today admitted that French troops had captured the summit of Hartmannswiller-Kopf in an attack on Tuesday, but stated that a small portion of the German army had been able to hold a position around the summit of the Hartmannswiller-Kopf and part of a trench on Hilsenfeld.

BRITISH STRAITS' FORCES TO STRENGTHEN SALONICA

BERLIN, Dec. 22.—British troops withdrawn from the Dardanelles are being sent to Salonica, according to the Athens correspondent of the Cologne Gazette. "Nearly all the English troops have left the islands of Imbros, Tenedos and Lemnos (distant bases of operations at the Dardanelles)," said the dispatch. "They are being sent to Salonica. The troops were most discontented. In Imbros they mutinied. It is reported that

JURY TO INDICT SIX GERMAN PLOTTERS

Persons Connected With Labor's Peace Council Named. Probe Bribery Charge

NEW YORK, Dec. 22.—Indictments against persons connected with Labor's Peace Council are reported to have been voted by the Federal Grand Jury that has been investigating activities of alleged German spies and conspirators. At least six, and possibly ten, persons are understood to be named in the indictments, which probably will be returned late today.

KELLER HAD CHANCE TO MOVE BODY

Some white substance trickled from a small hole in the floor. Enough to fill a peck measure fell out. The detectives said it was the same kind of lime that was in the trunk.

The police theory of the murder is that Keller, who is 47 years old and lives at 319 Frankford avenue, quarreled with McNichol, who was 23, a second cousin of State Senator James P. McNichol, and the latter to a little fortune. The quarrel is believed to have been over the failure of the Keller Leather Goods Company, which McNichol established with Edward and John Wade and for which Keller was manager. Keller lost most of his money in the failure and is said to have blamed McNichol.

After the latter's disappearance on March 30, 1914, Keller represented that the young man left his wife and was in New York. He got small sums of money from the wife and mother-in-law of McNichol at their home, 38 North 23d street, to forward to his former business associate. The police say they have evidence to show that McNichol was killed in his factory the day he disappeared.

The important link of evidence the detectives are now working on, and which they say they have nearly completed, are the actions of Keller immediately before and after the disappearance of McNichol in connection with the removal of his various belongings from the factory after it closed its doors. The defense has

LAWYER SUPPLIES CLUES

Important clues have been supplied by Marshall A. Coyne, a lawyer, who tends to strengthen the theory of Assistant District Attorney Taulance that the body was shipped in the trunk to another section of the city, possibly to Keller's home, before being taken to the cellar of his laundry, there to be buried.

After Mr. Coyne had told what he knew to the police, C. P. Sterner, attorney for Keller, admitted that his statement was true and that Keller had moved his personal effects from the leather factory in his former home at 1818 Wenden street several weeks before the goods and furnishings in the factory were sold.

"On July 2 or 3, 1914," said Mr. Coyne, "Edward J. Wade called at my office and said that his cousin, Daniel J. McNichol, had disappeared on March 30, and that he wanted the affairs of the Keller Leather Goods Company, in which he was financially interested, wound up. He explained that actual business had been suspended on the day of McNichol's disappearance, and that he wanted the goods in the factory sold and the proceeds applied to the debts of the concern.

"I made an investigation and found that the factory had been looked from March 20 until that date, and immediately set busy with creditors. Wade went to the factory on July 4, and, with hired laborers, packed the finished goods and other things.

"The leather and other raw products were shipped back to the wholesalers, who sold them to the company, and the finished products were sold to a store. The stock and fixtures brought $150. The outstanding bills approximated $100, and after paying them I kept the small balance left. The company, despite the losses of McNichol and Wade, was solvent."

POLITICIANS CAN'T FATHOM THE GARY DINNER TALK

NEW YORK, Dec. 22.—What happened at that Judge Gary dinner last Friday night when Colonel Roosevelt was the star diner may never be known until memoirs and autobiographies come off the press.

After groping for light for several days, political sharks confessed today that they have arrived at the point where they started. They know only that the Colonel

Prairie and Christmas "Grub" Delayed

Uncle Sam's sailors and marines stationed at Haiti are going to have a blue Christmas. The Prairie, loaded with turkey, Christmas gifts from home folks, cranberries and candy, which were to have sailed for the negro republic yesterday, could not leave League Island owing to a broken topmast, and it will now be impossible for the vessel to reach the 300 land and sea fighters until after the great holiday. However, the boys in blue and den will be notified by cable or wireless that their turkey is on its way 100,000 pounds strong, and that may help some.

Mortgage to City for $100,000

Simon L. Bloch, owner of the property at 125-67-69 Market street, which is leased for a long term to the McGraw-Hill syndicate, has given a mortgage for $100,000 on the property for a term of five years to the city of Philadelphia, trustee under the will of Stephen Girard.
