Chestnut Hill Fortnightly Dancing Class Will Meet at the Philadelphia Cricket Club-Number of Small Parties Given for the Younger Set

Hill and its environs will have their mings tonight, when their dancing iss, known as the Chestnut Hill Fortnightly, meets at the Cricket Club. These meetings are always crowded, as most of the members subscribe season after season, and there is an atmoschere of "camaraderie" about them that is missing at many of the more formal gatherings. Among the dinners to be given before the affair is the Fisher Wrights' dinner, which will be given at the club; the John Story Jenks and the Morgan Churchmans will also of course, I was pretty well surprised to hear yesterday that Harry Adams had married his stater-in-law, Mrs. Harry Hudson Smith. The ceremony, I am told, was performed in New York at the Church of the Transfiguration, on Monday, very quietly, Mr. Adams' first wife was Miss Mabel C. Smith, the daughter of the late C. Ross Smith, and a sister of the late C. Ross Smith, Jr., and Harry Hudson Smith. For a time after the first Mrs. Adams death Mr. Adams lived in Washington, but when it was time to bring out his daughters he returned to this city, and three years ago introduced his elder daughter Phoebe, who last year married young George Harding. This year Mr. Adams introduced his second daughter. Elizabeth, at a large dansant at the Bellevue-Stratford. The new Mrs. Adams was Miss Margaret Newbold, a niece of the late Mrs. John Lowber Welsh, who was a Newbold, and with whom Mrs. Adams lived until her marriage to Harry Smith. She has two daughters, Miss Margaret Newbold Smith and Evelyn N. Smith. Mr. Adams has a son, Harry A. Adams.

Small Rachel Fitler had a wonderful time last night at the supper dance given for her by Dr. and Mrs. George Fales Baker at the Bellevue-Stratford. The Bakers always entertain so lavishly and with such good taste that it really was a wonderful party. The dancing took place in the ballroom, which was beautifully decorated with palms and various cut flowers, and supper was served, so to speak, all over the place, at small tables in the Clover room, Redroom, Pinkroom and in the hallways. It was a most successful affair, and the little debutante looked as sweet as a peach.

The Stricker Coles are to utilize Mr. Walter Lippincott's ballroom, which very conveniently adjoins their own home, for a small dance tonight. Most of the guests will be from the younger married set, although I know of a few of the younger dancing men not yet benedicts who have been included in the invitations.

Colonel William J. Elliott and Mrs. Elliott are to give a dance this evening at the picturesque Sedgley Club, in the Park, for their young daughter Betty, who attends school, I believe, at Westover. She has been heralded several times as a debutante; but this, of course, was a mistake, as she is still very young, although she probably will come out next season. Mrs. George Brooke's daughter, Lucille Carter, another member of the school set, will give a little informal tea this afternoon at her home on West Rittenhouse Square. This is a charming custom, which is gradually being revived, even among our younger generation. Nancy Cook and Emley Cook, the popular daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Gustavus Wynne Cook, will be given a luncheon and matinee theatre party this afternoon by their mother, and another party will be given for Esther Lallou by her grandmother, Mrs. George Spotz, of 1925 Spruce street. Although Esther is not yet out, her guests will be mostly debutantes; namely, Jean Bochman, Louise Grey, Agnes Allen, Denise Mercur, Peggy Perot, Mary Cerboni, Mary Scull and Helen Gleason.
