British Hold Rear Lines as Allies Retire to Salonica Lines

EIGHT CANNON ARE LOST

Following is the seventh and final in-falment of William G. Shepherd's uncenstaiment of William G. Shepherd's uncen-sored story of the Allied retreat from Serbia. The previous instalment told of preparations for the French retreat from Strummitta, where Shepherd and other correspondents were sponding the night stating the French front.

SALONICA. Dec. 11.-Where the huge French camp had been the night before, all was hare the following morning. eking cinders, here and there, showed where the 4 o'clock coffee had been made, but the removal of the camp had begun at 3 o'clock in the morning, and by the time the newspapermen arose from their cots in the hospital tent and went outdeors to wash their faces in palls of cold water the French soldiers were several miles down the valley road with their wagons loaded with camp equipment.

There were explosions across the river. where a military road had been cut along the face of the river embankment. "Artillery?" I asked a captain.

"Blasting," he explained. "Blowing up the wagon road." "They take us to Kravilok today, don't sy?" a French reporter asked General Haud's nide.

Bellaud's aide.
"No, they don't," he said significantly.
"But three days ago General Sarrail said we were to be taken to Krivolak."
Krivolak was up the Vardar Valley
enly 60 miles, and the railroad on which were encamped led directly to it.

KRIVOLAK EVACUATED. "But three days ago isn't today," said the aide. "See all these soldiers march-ing along the railrond? Well, they've come from Krivolak. I'm not supposed to tell you, but the fact is we're evacu-ating Krivolak and the Bulgars are prob-ably in it by this time." Later developments showed that his

They didn't have an option in the matter. Either waves or some other potent agency carried the news to friends at Norristown that Harry E. Booth, an active volunteer fireman of that town, and Miss Viola M. Kingsiey, a Langhorne girl, had been married at Eikton. So, just when the "newlyweds" had settled down in their cozy nest and were congratulating themselves on eluding the rice throwers, et cetera, they were called outside. DINNERS FOR MEMBERS ONLY

Manufacturers' Club Will Discontinue Banquets for "Outsiders"

Dinners for outsiders at the Manufac-turers' Club are a thing of the past. Ac-tion and the announcement prohibiting them come as a result of a "friendly letter" sent the officials of the organiza-tion by the counsel for the Philadelphia Hotel Men's Association. The letter was read last night following the Brollers' Club dinner given at the Manufacturers' Club honoring Judge Joseph P. Rogers and Director of Public Safety Wilson. The communication brought out the fact that it seemed unfair for the club to serve dinners at which wines are served, when the hotels have to pay for the privilege of selling liquors and the club is exempt from such fees. Then, too, the letter emphasized the fact that if liquors were said to nonclub members, the Manufacturers' Club violated the law.

The club president, Nathan P. Fol-well, has officially announced that the dinners for outsiders will be abandoned, and that the hotel men need have no fear in the future.
