EVENING LEDGER-PHILADELPHIA, THURSDAY, JANUARY 20, 1916.

Copyright, 1914, the

CHAPTER XXIL-CONTINUED.

OR some minutes after Kazan's stunned senses had become normal he motionless watching Sandy Me-Every bone in his body gave m pain. His jaws were sore and bleed. His upper lip was smached bleed. m pain. His jaws were sore and bleed-# His upper lip was smashed where a dub had fallen? One eye was almost ored. Several times Sandy came near, uch pleased at what he regarded as the ed results of the beating. Each time brought the club. The third time he odded Kazan savagely with it, and the smarled and snapped savagely at the d of it. This was what Sandy wanted-mes an old trick of the dog-slaver. Inas of it. This was what Sandy wanted-twas an old trick of the dog-slaver. In-sently he was using the club again, and with a whining cry Kazan slunk mar the protection of the snag to which was fastened. He could scarcely drag imself. His right forepaw was smashed. It hind quarters sank under him. For a time after this second beating a could not have escaped had he been andy was in unusually good humor. "Til take the devil out of you all right," he told Kazan for the 20th time. "There's methic like beatin's to make dogs an' simmin live up to the mark. A month from now you'll be worth $200 or I'll skin ren allye!" andy was in unusually good humor

Three or four times before dusk Sandy ree or four times betor dusa sainty reed to rouse Kazan's animosity. But we was no longer any desire left in to fight. His two terrific beatings and the crushing blow of the bullet gainst his skull, had made him sick. He lay with his head between his forehis eyes closed, and did not see MeTrigger. He paid no attention to the meat that was thrown under his nose. He did not know when the last of the behind the western forests, or when the darkness came. But at last something roused him from his stupor. To his dazed and sickened brain it came to a call from out of the far past, and a raised his head and listened. Out on a sand McTrigger had built a fire and man stood in the red glow of it now. eing the dark shadows beyond the are line. He, too, was listening. What ad roused Kazan came again now-the ourning cry of Gray Wolf far out in the plain. With a whine Kazan was on his feet, ugging at the babiche. Sandy snatched up his club and leaped toward him.

"Down, you brute!" he commanded, In the firelight the club rose and fell with feroclous quickness. When McTrigar returned to the fire he was breathing ard again. He tossed the club beside the blankets he had spread out for a bed. was a different looking club now. It ered with blood and hair.

"Guess that'll take the spirit out of m," he chuckled. "It'll do that-or kill veral times that night Kazan heard

Gray Wolf's call. He whined softly in response, fearing the club. He watched he fire until the last embers of it died t and then cautiously dragged himself m under the snag. Two or three nes he tried to stand on his feet, but fell back each time.

His legs were not broken, but the pain f standing on them was excrucinting. is was hot and feverish. All that night had craved a drink of water. When crawled out from between his askets in the early dawn he gave him oth meat and water. Kazan drank the ater, but would not touch the meat. Sandy regarded the change in him with satisfaction. By the time the sun was up he had finished his breakfast and was ready to leave. He approached Kazan fearlessly now, without the club. Untying the babiche he dragged the dog to the cance. Kazan slunk in the sand while his captor fastened the end of the hide rope to the stern of the cance. Sandy grinned. What was about to happen would be fun for him. In the Yukon he had learned how to take the spirit out of dogs. dogs.

dogs. He pushed off, how foremost. Bracing himself with his paddle be then began to pull Kazan toward the water. In a few moments Kazan stood with his forefeet planted in the damp sand at the edge of the stream. For a brief interval Sandy allowed the bablehe to fall elack. Then with a sudden powerful pull he jerked Kazan out into the water. Instantly he sent the cance into midsream, swung it quickly down with the current, and began to paddle enough to keep the bablehe to puddle enough to keep the bablehe taut about his victim's neck. In spits of his sickness and injuries Kazan was now compelled to keep his head above water. In the wash of the canos and water. In the wash of the cance and with Sandy's strokes growing steadily stronger, his position became each mo-ment one of increasing torture. At times his shaggy head was pulled completely under water. At others Sandy would walt until he had drifted alongside, and then thrust him under with the end of his paddle. He grew weaker. At the end of half-mile he was drowning. Not until then did Sandy pull him alongside and drag him into the canoe. The dog fell limp and gasping in the bottom. Brutal ugh Sandy's methods had been, they had worked his purpose. In Kazan there was no longer a desire to fight. He no longer struggled for freedom. He knew that this man was his master, and for the time his spirit was gone. All he desired now was to be allowed to lie in the bot-tom of the cance, out of reach of the club, and safe from the water.

The club lay between him and the man. The end of it was within a foot or two of his nose, and what he smelled was his own blood. For five days and five nights the journey down-stream continued, and Mc-Trigger's process of civilizing Kazan was continued in three more beatings with the club, and another resort to the water torture. On the morning of the sixth day they reached Red Gold City, and McTrigger put up his tent close to the river. Somewhere he obtained a chain for Kazan, and after fastening the dog securely back of the tent, he cut off the babiche muzzle.

'You can't put on meat in a muzzle,' "You can't put on meat in a muzzie," he told his prisoner. "An' I want you to git strong—an' flerce as hell. I've got an idee. It's an idee you can lick your weight in wildcats. We'll pull off a stunt pretty soon that'll fill our pockets with dust. I've done it afore, and we can do it here. Wolf an' dog—s'elp me Gawd but it'll be a drawin' card!" "Twice a day aftar this he brought fresh

Twice a day after this he brought fresh raw meat to Kazan. Quickly Kazan's spirit and courage returned to him. The soreness left his limbs. His battered jaws healed. And after the fourth day each time that Sandy came with meat he greeted him with the challenge of his snarling fangs. McTrigger did not beat him now. He gave him no fish, no tallow and meal-nothing but raw meat. He traveled five miles up the river to bring in the fresh entrails of a caribou that had been killed. One day Sandy brought another man with him and when the stranger came a step too near Kazan made a sudden swift lunge at him. The man jumped back with a startled oath. "He'll do," he growled. "He's lighter he's got the teeth, an' the quickness, an' he'll give a good show before he goes under."

"T'll make you a bet of 25 per cent of my share that he don't go under," offered Sandy. "Done!" said the other. "How long before he'll be ready. Sandy thought a moment. "Another week," he said. "He won't have his weight before then. A week from today, we'll say. Next Tuesday night. Does that suit you, Harker?"

Harker nodded. Harker nodded. "Next Tuesday night," he agreed. Then he added, "I'll make it a half of my abare that the Dane kills your wolf-dog." Sandy took a long look at Kazan. "Til just take you on that." he said. Then, as he shook Harker's hand, "I don't believe there's a dor between here and believe there's a dog between here and the Yukon that can kill the wolf!"

CHAPTER XXIII. PROFESSOR MCGILL.

RED GOLD CITY was ripe for a night of relaxation. There had been some gambling, a few fights and enough liquor to create excitement now and then, but the presence of the mounted police had served to keep things unusually tame compared with events a few hundred miles farther north, in the Dawson soundry. The entertainment proposed by Sandy McTrigger and Jan Harker met with excited favor. The news spread for 20 miles about Red Gold City and there had never been greater excitement in the town than on the afternoon and night of the big fight. This was largely because kazan and the huge Dane had been placed on exhibition, each dog in a specially made cage of his own, and a fever of betting begun. Three hundred men, each of whom was paying five dollars to see the battle, viewed the gladiators through the bars of their cages.

through the bars of their cages. Harker's dog was a combination of Great Dane and mastiff, born in the north and bred to the traces. Betting favored him by the odds of two to one. Occasion ally it ran three to one. At these odds there was plawy of Kazan money. Those who were ris' ng their money on him were the odder wilderness men-men who had spent their lives among dogs, and who knew what the red glint in Kazan's eyes meant. An old Kootenay miner spoke low in another's ear:

spoke low in another's ear: "I'd bet on 'im even. I'd give odds if I had to. He'll fight all around the Dane. The Dane won't have no method." "But he's got the weight," said the other dubiously. "Look at his jaws, an' his shoulders..." "An' his big feet, an' his soft throat, an' the clumsy thickness of his belly," inan the clued the Kootenay on an only in the terrupted the Kootenay man. "For Gawd's sake, man, take my word for it, an' don't put your money on the Dane!" Others thruat themselves between them.

At first Kazan had snarled at all these faces about him. But now he lay back against the boarded side of the cage and eyed them sullenly from between his fore-paws. The fight was to be pulled off in Hark er's place, a combination of saloon and cafe. The benches and tables had been cleared out and in the centre of the one big room a cage 10 feet square rested on a platform three and a half feet from the floor. Seats for the 300 spectators were drawn closely around this. Suspended just above the open top of the cage were two big oil lamps with glass reflectors It was 8 o'clock when Harker, McTrigfer and two other men bore Kazan to the arena by means of the wooden bars that projected from the bottom of his

J. LAGINSKY. S. 4TH ST.

rule of the club. Yetta Lazar, Mc-Clellan street, says that her small brother divides his lunch every day with a little boy who does not have much. Margaret Baxter, 73d street, writes a very neat note and promises

Albert D'Emperio, South 12th street, says: "I have been more obedient,

honest and more studious since I joined the Rainbow Club. Every time I am up to some mischief with my boy

from RÉVOLUTION (Five credits.)

3. Mention a part of Philadelphia

Members of Farmer Smith's Rain bow Club wishing to earn money after school and on Saturdays please write to Farmer Smith, Room 418, Evenior

that was a battleground during the

Revolutionary War. (Five credits.)

many new members for the club.

Rainbow Band.

fighting cage. He stood blinking his eyes in the brilliant light of the reflecting lamps. He pricked up his ears when he saw Kasan. Kasan did not show his fangs. Neither revealed the expected ani-monity. It was the first they had seen of each other, and a murmur of disappoint-ment sweet the ranks of the 500 m a. The Dane remained as motionless as a rock when known a motionless as a rock when Kazan was proded from his owr cage into the fighting cage. He did not leap or snarl. He regarded Kazan with a dublout questioning poise to his spiendid head, and then looked again to the expectant and excited faces of the walling men. For a few moments Kazan slood a legged, facing the Darie. Then legged, facing the Darie. Then his shoulders dropped, and he, too, coolly faced the crowd that had expected a fight to the death. A laugh of defision swept through the closely seated rows. Catcalls, jeering taunts flung at Mc-Trigger and Harker, and anary voices demanding their money back minsied with a turnuit of growing discontent. Sandy's face was red with mortification and rage. The bits yeins in Harker's and rage. The blue veins in Harker's forehead had swollen twice their normal size. He shook his fist in the face of the crowd, and shouted:

"Walt! Give 'em a chance, you dam' fools!

At his words every voice was stilled. Kazan had turned. He was facing the huge Dane. And the Dane had tur.ed huge Dane. And the Dane had tur-ed his eyes to Kazan. Cautiously, prepared for a lunge or a sidestep, Kazan advanced a little. The Dane's shoulders bristled. He, too, advanced upon Kazan. Four feet apart they stood rigid. One could have heard a whisper in the room now. Sandy and Harker, standing close to the cage, scarcely breathed. Splendid in every limb and muscle, warriors of a hundred fights, and fearless to the point of death, the two half-wolf victums of man stood facing each other. None could see the questioning look in their could see the questioning look in the brute eyes. None knew that in thi this thrilling moment the unseen hand of the wonderful Spirit God of the wilderness hovered between them, and that one of its miracles was descending upon them It was understanding. Meeting in the open-rivals in the traces-they would have been rolling in the threes of terrific battle. But here came that mute appeal of brotherhood. In the final moment of brotherhood. In the final moment, when only a step separated them, and lunge, the splendid Dane slowly raised his head and looked over Kazan's back through the glare of the lights. Harker trembled, and under his breath he cursed. The Dana's throat was open to Kazan. But between the beasts had passed the velocies pledge of meas Kazan did not volceless pledge of peace. Kazan did not leap. He turned. And shoulder to shoulder-splendid in their contempt of man-they stood and looked through the bars of their prison into the one of A roar burst from the crowd-a roar of anger, of demand, of threat. In his rage Harker drew a revolver and lev-eled it at the Dane. Above the tumult of the crowd a single voice stopped him. "Hold!" it demanded. "Hold-in the name of the law!"

For a moment there was silence. Every face turned in the direction of the voice. Two men stood on chairs behind the last and other competitive games decisions must come shart as haristones. Sports do us as much good mentally as they do physically. The best head wins the game; to wabble is to lose. So it is in the game of life. We women are very apt to be lacking in perspective, mistaking little things for big things. How many of us could make ourselves decide to sacrifice a batch of bread already raised in order to accept a sudden and unexpected invitation to auto-One was Sergeant Brokaw, of the row. Royal Northwest Mounted. It was he who had spoken. He was holding up a hand, commanding silence and attention On the chair beside him stood another mobile to the city with some friends to hear an address by the Governor man. He was thin, with drooping shoul-ders and a pale smooth face-a little man, whose physique and hollow checks President? Too many of us would stay by the six or eight loaves of bread, and regret the decision the rest of our lives. Among rural people there is apt to be a slow, meditative way of thinking and Attions it may be due to a profound study of all sides of a question or it may be in some cases a sort of bovine disinclination to make a decision. Playing games, riding and driving, automobiling, boxing and wrestling are all mental developers told nothing of the years he had spent close up along the raw edge of the Arctic. It was he who spoke now, while the ser-geant held up his hand. His voice was of the highest value.

low and quiet: "Til give the owners $500 for those figs," he said. dogs,

Every man in the room heard the offer Harker looked at Sandy. For an instant their heads were close together. "They won't fight, and they'll make good teammates," the little man went on.

"I'll give the owners $500.

sticks to her decision The little man hesitated. Then he nodis not aggravated by nagging children. One of the very first and

ded. "I'll give you $600," he agreed. Murmurs of discontent rose throughout the crowd. Harker climbed to the edge most important lessons to teach a youngster is that "no" means "NO" and that "yes" means We ain't to blame because they would-n't fight." he shouted, "but if there's any of you small enough to want your money back you can git it as you go out. The dogs laid down on us, that's all. We ain't to blame "YES," neither more nor less." "It makes me almost crazy," I once heard a husband say, "to go shopping with my wife." Knowing her, knew exactly what the

Indecision, a Weakness of Both Sexes; and the Evils to Which It Gives Rise

"The Wabbler" is the title of a notable article appearing in a recent issue o, "The Wabbler" is the title of a notable article appearing in a rockit was a The Country Gentleman. It treats of the evils of indecision among both men and women, and has aroused wide comment and discussion. The article is appended. Read it. Are you "a wabbler"? Or, if you are not, can you suggest anything, from your own experience, as a cure for the fatal habit of indecision?

Some women shrink from a decision as a child shrinks from a cold bath: They have to be pushed in . Women on the child shrinks from a cold bath: have to be pushed in. Women wabblers, however, are no commoner than men wabblers. The wabbler, whether man or woman, has no place on the farm, where each worker must largely direct himself, where plans have to be made a year in advance and changed overnight if a killing frost comes or some other unforescen

民国制シ

"The Wabbly Woman is a Prey to Her Children."

C

atastrophe happens. A big department tore can supply neary everything but decisions, Decisions, whether they make of break you, must be your own. Two husbands and two wives must all get their minds made set their minds made up on the same prop-cestion at the same time if a real estate trade is to be put through A real estate man said to me sor-rowfully: "I never rowfully: "I never let the sun go down on a real estate deal people to make for them. The habit of indecision grows like any wood. Some learned teachers are a positive curse to the young their instruction, for the exception is more emphasized than the rule; every statement has to be modified and qualified ad infinitum, to meet the requirements of an oversephisticated mind, until a vague, misty habit of mind is developed that cannot say plain "Yes" or "No." Arrows marked "No, unqualifiedly," or "Yes, emphatically" are never carried in their quivers. Sports make us think fast and decide instantaneously. The batter faces the pitcher 60 feet away. The ball is hurled at terrific speed; whether it develops into problems that are now bringing lines of care and worry to many a mother and father omies practiced, and if you can induce to solve, but the fellow who has $15 or

the

Isn't the woman who manages to save on $29 a week for a family of five "up against the real thing?" Nothing could be more real than supplying food and clothing for five persons, maybe two or We should give the girls a chance at these things-some of them, anyway, We should give the girls a chance at these things—some of them, anyway. Dancing and gymnastics for the girls will replace some of the heavier and rougher things a boy ought to be put through. Country mothers should not deceive them-selves by thinking their sons well developed physically when they are only strong, heavy lifters, for instance. The country lad has the right to be graceful, speedy and defined in coordination. heavy inters, for instance. The country had has the right to be graceful, speedy and drilled in co-ordination. The wabbly woman is a prey to her children—the more she wabbles the more headstrong they become. They early discover that she does not know her own mind, and so they proceed to make it up for her. Teasing, that most pestiferous habit, is their weapon. Big and little join in the crusade, and soon she lets them have their own way "to get rid of them." The mother who says "Yes" or "No" and sticks to her decision three of them husky workers or growing The Budget Editor realizes that DOVS. this sum is by no means the average, nor is it even the ordinary wage of the day laborer. Twenty dollars was chosen as a starter; other budgets will be con-sidered later. Fifteen dollars or less per week is still above the average; according to statistics, the average man's wage is something be-tween $10 and $12 a week.

Almost without exception, the budgets published during the last week included a provision, varying from 50 cents a week to $2.50, for what Mr. Motisher calls "unforseen expenses." Any of these budgets be taken as an example. One al-for dentist, another for a saving forwar for utentist, another for a "saving fund, another for periodicals and tobacco-and several mention the "real economics" which are so essential to every household. Will some experienced housekeeper tell this gentleman how the weekly budget is stretched to save against the doctor's bill? How about the woman who saved enough to give each of her three chil-

the platform. "We ain't to blame because they would-

to the sapling bars of the cage he looked at Kazan and the big Dane. "I guess we'll be good friends," he said, Harker raised a hand, "Make it six," he said. "Make it six and they're yours.'

by 10 or 15 pounds than the Dane, but cage. The big Dane was already in the

GOOD-NIGHT TALKS

Dear Children-The other day we had a visitor and we asked the little gallery this evening. He is Jacob what he was going to be when he grew up, and he said, "I don't know." Your editor then asked him what his father did and he said that his Laginsky, of South 4th street. He father was an engineer. I thought, of course, he meant an engineer on a practices the violin two hours every but instead of that he happened to be a stationary engineer. A stationary engine is one that does not move, while a locomotive engine one which moves about on rails or the ground. Now, what is the difference between the two? I mean, can you think of ONE difference?

Our Postoffice Box A little musician is in our picture to blame.' The little man was edging his way between the chairs, accompanied by the ser-geant of police. With his pale face close

16

BUDGET EDITOR GETS BE CLASSED AS "WABBLERS"? INTERESTING LETTER

Writer Says Families Make No. Provision for Unforeseen Developments

Advice to Budget Contributors

On Monday, January 10, a first prize of $5, a second of $3 and two of $1 each were offered for the most practical household budgets of a $20-a-week income of a family of five, of five. The contest is still open, but as many of the letters received are written on both sides of the paper, the Budget Editor must insist that but one side be used. Contributions should be addressed to the Budget Editor, EVENING LEDGER, 608 Chestnut street. Names will not be published, if such a request is made.

Here is a letter which came to the budget editor, in which our housewives are brought to task for failing to make provisions against the proverbial rainy let the sun go down on a real estate deal if there is any possi-hie way to get all the parties signed up, for if I do, sure as fate, some one will wabble before morning, and the deal f a 11 s through." How many of your acquaintances really know their cwn minds? Too many peo-ple hold their opinions, ike the styles, subject to change with the seasons. Their deci-sions they want other people to make for provision for the unforeseen things, such as loss of income through sickness, lack of work from divers causes, doctor's bills, accidents, etc., etc. What you might call the overhead,

What you might call the overhead, fixed charges, such as rent, clothing, heat, light, life insurance, if any, etc., are fairly stable and can be brought to understandable percentages, but some of the other things are not so easily handled Facts are stubborn things. The truth of the matter is that a great majority of the families, not of Philadelphia alone, but of other places, have to make both ends meet with a great deal less than $20, and a discussion to show how this is done, with actual facts and figures to prove the statements submitted, would be of great and real interest, and solve some an incurve or an outcurve must be sensed like lightning, and the decision made instantaneously to strike or not to strike. To wabble is to let the ball go by, and that is just the same as to decide definitely not to strike. In tennis, basketball and other competitive games decisions must come as fast as hallstones. Sports

There are no doubt many real econ-those who practice them to send them to your paper, they will be of benefit to a large number of your readers. To repeat myself: The family having $20 a week or more has no real problem to go but the full of the family having less is up against the real thing. Yours very truly, ROBERT W. MOTISHER,

On a stationary engine is placed a controlling governor, which keeps the engine from going too fast. When a stationary engine is started, it would get to going so fast that it would fly all to pieces. We asked our caller If he knew this and he said he did not.

We asked him what kept a locomotive from going too fast and he did not know that, so, you see, he knew very little about his father's work.

A locomotive is very heavy and the weight of it on the rails keeps it from going too fast and this act of gravity serves as a governor. The point of all this is that we want you to KNOW about your father's siness so that you can talk to him about it.

You may not want to be an engineer, or a silk weaver, or a banker, or doctor, but you OUGHT to be interested in what YOUR father is doing, acause, well-because he is YOUR FATHER.

FARMER SMITH, Children's Editor, EVENING LEDGER.

Jungletown Movies

Tommy Firefly wiped the tears out of his eyes and sat very close to Doctor lettle. It was very dark in the movpicture theatre because Tommy as all wrapped up in the great big and a light flashed on the screen. My, such wonder-

12437

٧ too! Tommy was Wonderful Movie so excited when Potato Bugs. ⁹ picture Fireflies were struggling a a little lake that he slipped right at of the leaf.

"What's the matter? What's the ter?" every one cried. "Put on quite good friends. that leaf, Tommy Firefly, or you will ave to get out."

"Oh, excuse me," said Tommy, as the airship. a hurriedly got back into the leaf, a," said Lady Bug, handing Tommy a nice little thorn pin.

"Thank you, dear Lady Bug," said anmy, as he pinned the leaf coat Lady Bug. And, sure enough, they

"You will have to put some bachor buttons on that cont," said Doctor ow Tommy was excited. Into the tes came six little Potnto Bugs of an Grunshappars, Myl how r sould ridal. They were jumping on and off the Grasshoppers and do tempted to spend a penny for candy ing all kinds of tricks, when, goodhe thinks of the real live bank where ness gracious! out from behind a bush his dollars are rolling up, and thencame two big Roosters. he doesn't spend it. Some day our Such jumping and scrambling as those Potato Bugs and Grasshoppers did do! Away they went at top speed, with the two Roosters chasing All at once the crickets began them. Up hill and down hill they tuning their violins went, jumping over water and stones. Tommy was fairly dizzy watching them. Just as one big Rooster was about ful things as Tom- to gobble up a nice little mouthful of my saw! So many a Potato Bug, a Grasshopper jumped Lady Bugs, so right up in the Rooster's eye and many Doctor Bee- blinded him for a minute, and then tles, so many Fire- the little Potato Bug hurried under a stone wall and the Rooster looked all flies little Tommy had never dreamed around, but could not find him. Just of. Such wonder- then a white Butterfly flew into the ful things they did, picture and led the Roosters a merry chase away from the poor, tired little

> Then the two Roosters, the Grasshoppers and the Potato Bugs came and bowed to the audience; for, you see, they were really acting and were

"My that was a nice show," said Tommy, sleepily, as he climbed up in

"I am afraid we will not have much "Here, pin it together with this light going home," said Doctor Beetle, as he helped Lady Bug into the sirship.

"We haven't any light now," said hadn't, for little Tommy was fast asleep. "If you would see kindness,

Faith and hope and love, Read the EVENING LEDGER, Join the Rainbow Club. -Alfred Palmor, Clymer street.

day. Besides having a violin, Jacob and he spoke so low that only the dogs has a bank account. Whenever he is heard his voice.

CONTINUED TOMORROW.

HONEST BOY GETS REWARD

Messenger, Who Found $3000 in Diamonds, Is Showered With Gifts

The honesty of Frank Tabasso, 16 years old, who found a tray of diamonds valued at $3000 under a radiator in the Witheractions and a faultator in the wither-spoon Building four months ago, was re-warded today by the owners of the dia-monds, Kennedy & Brothers, 102 South 13th street, when the boy was presented with a gold watch and chain, a gold pen-knife and a charm.

with a gold watch and chain, a gold pen-knife and a charm. The boy, who was then a Western Union messenger, saw the diamonds under the radiator, where they had been hidden by a thief, who had smashed a window in daylight and snatched a tray. The thief was forced to abandon them me: "I show such only one thing, and try to make them say 'Yes' or 'No' to that window in daylight and snatched a tray. The thief was forced to abandon them because of the pursuit of the police. Nathan Heller, the man who stole the diamonds, was sentenced to serve seven years in the penitentiary last Friday, by Judge Carr in the Quarter Sessions Court.

St. Ignatius Home Buys Property small violinist is coming to play for A three-story house and a one-story office, at 2111-13 Vine street, have been purchased by the St. Ignatius Home for Homeless and Unemployed Men from the your editor. Have we any more musicians? Maybe we could form a Charles A. Rubicam estate, with a $700 conveyance from the Pennsylvania Trust Company and a $6000 mortgage to the home. The lot is 40 by 110 feet. Evelyn McCully, Mt. Vernon street, is going to be very faithful to the > Gingerisms Judge not a cook by her lovers.

The proof of the pudding is in the gas tronomio effect.

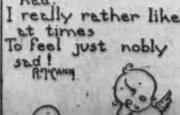

Some persons are more than swell-they are swollen.

Happy the wooing that's easy undoing. Economy is sometimes flith. We have known men to reverse their cuffa

How we advance! Once it was just as apple; now it requires a diamond neck

Wedlock and padlock-what a coinci

THE CHEERFUL CHERVB I often sit and idly About the woes I've had. I really rather like poor man meant. You have seen the wabbly woman, wandering from counter to coun ter, wondering what she wants; were she to meet it face to face she would not know it. She appeals to the clerk, to her friends, to help her decide. to help her decide. The more she sees the less idea she has o what she wants. In time she wabbles back to the thing she gaw first and buys it, o perhaps she goes home with nothing The clerks know her and detest her. One shrewd merchant told

"You Have Seen the Wabbly Woman Wandering from Counter to Counter.'

"Test or 'No to that one thing. Put out two patterns and the sale is lost, for the oscillating mind cannot decide on which of the two." Study the children; burn the indecision out of them. You can do it. I wish every boy in the United States had to have a year of compulsory military drill—no shilly-shallying, but drill; and the guardhouse for laggards. To wabble is to be weak, and to be weak is a sin. One of the Bible communds means of the ward of the Weak of the States of the States of the state of the states of the state of the states of th the Bible commands most often repeated is: "Be strong."

DEPEND ON FAMILY DOCTOR FOR ADVICE ON SPECIALISTS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

conspicuously these days of specialization, and, though he may deserve much of the criticism heaped upon him, assur-edly he does not deserve it all. Unfortunately, the average patient ex-perist the family physician to divine much that the specialist learns through many routine laboratory tests. Somehow a pa-tient is willing to have any sort of exam-ination or test the specialist suggests, remation or test ine specialist suggests, re-gardless of expense; not so when the family doctor requires such help. Unless the latter can satisfy the patient that the test is likely to disclose important facts bearing upon the diagnosis and treatment of the condition, it is scarcely tactful to request the patient to have the test made. We have cited instances in this column; any family physician could quote similar any family physician could quote similar instances.

Some one asked us recently to define an "internist." It was a difficult query to answer. An internist is a general pracan "internist." It was a difficult query to answer. An internist is a general prac-titioner of medicine who can and does persuade all of his patients to undergo whatever scientific tests or examinations ha may deem helpful in the diagnosis of the case. Often enough the internist, with the aid of his corps of laboratory workers and special assistants, hits upon a diagnosis which has naturally haffled the family doctor. In that event the in-ternist is halled as a great physician. Had the fumily doctors been permitted to put the same patient to the expense nec-essary for such tests as the internist deemed indifferenties. Specialism in medicine is a great bless-ing. But at the same time the modern fashion of running around to this and that specialist is doing harm. A good family doctor, one worthy of a patient's confidence, will generally suggest a spe-cialist's services when necessary. The pa-tient, or rather the invalid, who pleas his own specialist of the streamint. As a mainter of fact, the better specialiset, not in the permitted the experiment. As a mainter of fact, the better specialiset, not

THE family doctor comes in for his share of abuse from the public rather conspicuously these days of specializamarkable financial success of the advertising quack specialist (the all-round spe-cialist in whatever you think alls you) is considered, it is evident, we think, that the family doctor is the best judge of a specialist's ability.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Kindly explain the difference between

A many explain the difference between apoplexy and a stroke of paralysis. Answer-Apoplexy means bemorrhage into the substance of an organ, usually the brain. A stroke of paralysis is most commonly caused by cerebral apoplexy. Nerve centres in the brain are pressed upon by the blood clot, producing paraly-sis in certain muscle groups supplied from the damaged centres.

Please tell me something good for polson ivy eruption. Answer-Carbolic acid, 1 dram (tea-spoonful); glycerin, 5 cunce (tablespoon-tub; lime water, 1 pint. Pat on often with fingers.

Farm Sausage.

enough to give each of her three chil-dren $5 for a birthday present? The Budget Editor will be stad to hear anything you have to say on the subject '. acts are stubborn things.' says this letter. There must be hundreds of families who know how to handle both salary and the force of circumstances Let us hear about them.

Legacy for Jean H. St. Cyr Jean H. St. Cyr, of Yonkers, N. Y., who married the widow of "Silent" Smith, of this city, has received $34,000 from the es tate of his first wife, according to dispatches received today.

$5.00 Bohemian Boots High button, fine black kid, Louis heel, walking sole; all sizes in widths A to E.

Special $3.35 ALSO SOME $4.50 to $6.50 Blue Kid Boots $4.50 to $5.00 Black Kid Boots $4.50 to $6.50 Gun-metal Boots $4.50 to $6.50 Patent Leathers $5.50 to $6.50 Tan Call Boots

Now $3.35 At all of our stores. 919-21 Market Street Open Saturday Evenin

Open Every Eventor (4028-30 Lancaster Ave. 5604-05 Germantown Ave. 60th & Chestnut Sta 2745-48 Germantown Ave.

Do You Know This? 1. Tell about a "tea party" that is friends, I see the -Rainbow button, which is always on my coat, and I try to be kind instead of being mean." dental symphony Albert is going through grammar and high school and then he is going to