

BREAD MADE BY MACHINERY HAS REPLACED HAND-MADE LOAF

Louis J. Kolb Discusses Revolution Effected in Baking Methods—Wonderful Advance in Electrical Appliances

For 19 centuries, said Colonel Louis J. Kolb of the Kolb Baking Company, bread was made by hand. The first machinery for manufacturing bread came into use about 20 years ago. From that time up to today many improvements have been made, and bread is now being made in bakeries which practice the most modern methods...

No longer is bread baked done in the cellar out of sight. It is all done above ground in the open, where the public can see the whole process through glass windows from the public sidewalk. There are no secrets to hide. Another modern improvement is that each loaf is weighed. No flumes from coal or gas can reach the bread in the modern oven. The bread is all indirect, by an intricate and scientific system of draughts, in a most modern oven.

Electric Appliances in Demand. Seventy-five per cent. of our customers use electric current for at least one household appliance, besides the current used for lighting, said Howard K. Mohr, of the Philadelphia Electric Company.
