NANCY WYNNE CHATS ABOUT MANY THINGS WHICH HAPPEN IN SOCIETY

Members of the Junior League Will Give "Orlando" in New York at the Ritz-Carlton on March 6 for Charity. New York Junior League to Lend Films

CERTAINLY our Junior League did | remarkable work last week in their pantomime, "The Ballet of Orlando," and the fame thereof has evidently spread to other cities, for yesterday I heard that the members had been invited to repeat it in New York at the Ritz-Carlton on the night of March 6, when a benefit will be given for the st. Johnsland Society. And at least afty of our charming society girls have accepted the invitation, and I assure you New York will sit up and take potice, for I challenge their league to do any better. As one woman said last week, it was the very best amateur performance she had ever seen, and that was going some, for that selfsame lady goes to every charity affair on the tapls each year. The New York Juntor League will loan its films of "The Flame of Kapur" for the performance that night. 'The Flame of Kapur" is a melodramatic movie, in which such charming New York belles as Angelica Brown, Theodora Larocque, Edith Mortimer and Cornelia Landon and a number of men take part. I am sure a great many will go over from Philatelphia for the event.

Friends of Mrs. Bobbie Glendinning will be glad to hear she has recovered sufficiently from her recent illness to be able to go down to Palm Beach with Mr. Glendinning. It is hoped that the warmer climate will have a beneficial effect on her eyes, as her sufferings have been intense.

The wee bird came in again today with two astonishing bits of news, that is, the breaking off of two engagements. I have been wondering why I have not heard of the date for the nuptials in the case of a very pretty girl whose debut was made about three years ago and whose engagement was announced a little more than a year past to a very popular young man. Well, it seems it is broken off, and now his best friend, who was also engaged, seems to have had differences with his fancee, and all is over. I hope it may all come right, for in the latter case the man has been devoted to his little erstwhile flancee ever since they were tots. However, if it is to be final, it is better for them to find it out now than after the bond is tied. Don't you think?

At a luncheon recently given by one of the 400 of this dear old snobbish city. I was standing by my hostess talking on various subjects of interest, when a very attractive young girl with light curly hair came up to her to say good-by. I noticed the hostess seemed very cordial and deligh. d that she had come, and called her by her first name. I was particularly attracted by her appearance, and so I asked who she was, Would you believe it? I'y hostess laughed heartily and remarked: "I was just going to ask you. I can't remember her last name to save my life." I thought it would be well to see how many more she did not know; but the story ended there, for the next one she called by her first name was her cousin; and as she explained, "I could not well forget a name which was the same as NANCY WYNNE.

All the Boxes Are Already Sold for the Performance to Be Given on February 22—Industrial Art School to Have Two Parts for the performance of the "Masque" for 1916, given by the Seven Allied Art Crganizations, and scheduled to take place in the Academy of Music on the evening of Washington's Birthday, Tuesday, Feb-Aready every box in the house has been sold, and nearly every seat in the two lower thors. The audience promises to vie in brilliancy with the participants in the production itself, which is proceeding on a big scale under the joint direction of Stanley Muschamp, Jr., music director, and Frank Buchanan, stage director.

Rehearsals are in active progress. The stage setting, in the hands of Arthur B. Carles and William A. Young, is ready for placing, and is understood to be someing very unusual in color and design.

thing very unusual in color and design.

In the "Masque" the School of Industrial Art is assigned two attractive parts, involving about 125 players.

The first is a gorgeous court scene, in which pomp and splendor will be the keynote. A remote period of civilization which has never heretofore been represented on any stage will be essayed. The story is based upon the legend of an an-cient tyrant, who holds away over his vassals and exacts relentless tribute from reighboring kingdoms.

This ancient civilization presents char cteristics in its ornamental forms, and other artistic expressions which mark it as distinctive from any other known style, and yet there is a sympathetic relation between the styles of dress in that remote period and those of the ultra-
